STATE BALKS DONNIE AIDING IRENE

Today

Going West.
The Old Indian Drives.
Thank Your Local Editor.
They Killed Reilly.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

GALLUP, N. M., March 15.

GOING through Colorado, New Mexico, Arizona, and on to the Pacific, for the hundredth time, is as interesting as on the first journey. You feel that you are in a BIG country.

A. L. Wathen, of the Interior Department of Indian irrigation service, in connection with looking after the Coolidge dam, says with conviction "no place East of the Rocky Mountains is fit to live in." He would not have said that when in the army, across the ocean a while ago. He is sure of it now.

ON both sides of the track, just now, is desert country, waiting for water to make it magnificently fertile. Plenty of water goes to waste in the ocean and gulf. A perfect cement road runs through the desert beside the track. Going up grade a small automobile easily passes the train, the driver waving his hand in triumph.

AN old Indian with a bright orange ribbon tied around his hair, sits high, on a load of baled alfalfa, driving two white horses. He does not wave his hand and probably has no high opinion of trains or white men. But his horses are hauling about three tons. He could not have hauled half that on the old desert road. It will take him three or four days to deliver that load and get home with about sixty dollars. A low-priced automobile truck would do the work for him in a forenoon, carrying a bigger load.

DANTE tried to describe heaven, but couldn't. In fact, his description is rather dull and doesn't compare with his description of hell. It is impossible to describe this western country. The sky is different from other skies, as the ceiling of St. Peters dome, in Rome, is different from the ceiling of a bungalow.

AT Albuquerque, N. M. Pickerell is at the station. He is editor, T. M. Pepperday is publisher of the Albuquerque Journal, which is a success. Wants you to know that the Rio Grande conservancy project, nothing to do with Boulder Dam, will soon irrigate 120,000 acres of fertile land above and below Albuquerque, providing jobs and prosperity. A natural gas main, on its way to Albuquerque, will secure the establishment of a big glass factory. Albuquerque, "healthiest place in the world, had 17,000 population a little while ago, has 35,000 now, and will soon double that."

THE value of an energetic local editor is not often fully appreciated by his community, nor is the value of his advertising columns appreciated by national advertisers, as they should be. His readers buy everything from paint on the roof to cement in the cellar floor, buy more automobiles per capita than city dwellers, have time to read about the latest products, clothes, foods, time-saving devices, etc., and buy them. An Indian sitting on the ground beating a little tom tom to attract attention, is indifferent to population, glass works, or irrigation projects. He sells you, for 25 cents, a pipe with a face in front of it as good as anything that Hoya ever dyed. That sale makes his day a perfect success. Everything is comparative.

HOW grateful a nation should be that has for its chief worry the fact that it possesses TOO MUCH of everything. Too much oil is the oil problem. Too much wheat is the wheat problem, too many acres of fertile land, too much water ready to irrigate thirsty acres, too much wealth in the soil, is the farm problem. To say that "He hath not dealt so with any people" is putting it mildly.

UNFORTUNATELY we haven't too much INTELLIGENCE, therefore we don't know enough to brin, in millions more of the kind of people that created this country, to conserve the wheat, use the gasoline, buy second-hand cars that are the automobile industry's problem, and later buy the most expensive new cars.

THIS nation is great because it has 120,000,000 people with more than they need. It would be 10 times as great if it had 240,000,000 people, to consume the surplus, creating at home the markets for which we struggle abroad.

IN the dining car, early, you look at the paper and read that, at about that hour, keepers and witnesses in San Quentin prison were climbing two flights of stairs outside an old brick building, taking Alphonso Reilly, 22 years old, from his death cell and strapping him in the electric chair in a room adjoining. He killed a man, the state killed him.

YOU see from the window of the car a high tableland, reaching for miles, without population, white clouds floating above it. And you believe that a better civilization in another age will find a way to eliminate crime, as disease germs are eliminated by sunshine.

DAVIS HERE TO LAUNCH CAMPAIGN

Secretary Secluded Drafting Announcement on Senate Contest Against Grundy

Secretary of Labor James J. Davis arrived here today to make formal announcement on Sunday of his candidacy for United States senator in opposition to Senator Joseph R. Grundy, who is seeking to succeed himself.

Mr. Davis said:

"I intend to make my statement to the public Sunday night, at which time I will give it to the press. I have been exceedingly busy today since my arrival in Pittsburgh, and have not been able to prepare anything.

"I will be glad to talk to any man, woman or child about my candidacy."

He was expected to begin drafting the formal announcement of his candidacy this afternoon.

Last night Davis delivered a speech at Landsdale, Pa., and journeyed to Philadelphia where he took a train for Pittsburgh.

Joseph G. Armstrong, county commissioner and Republican county chairman, said yesterday he expected to confer with Davis today just as he did last Saturday. They have been intimate friends for many years.

MELLON AWAITED

Many astute political minds are convinced that Armstrong has decided to back Davis, but will not

STATE MOURNS BRUMBAUGH

HARRISBURG, March 15.—(AP.)—Death of former Gov. Martin G. Brumbaugh little more than 11 years after leaving office occasioned surprise and sorrow at the Capitol.

Acting for Gov. Fisher, homeward bound from a cruise of semi-Tropical waters, Attorney General Cyrus E. Woods issued a pronouncement calling for the flying of flags on state buildings at half staff and the closing of offices on the day of the funeral, which has not been announced.

Brumbaugh, the Republican nominee, was elected governor in 1914 by a majority of 135,000 votes over Vance C. McCormick, the Democratic candidate. Brumbaugh, then superintendent of schools of Philadelphia, was indorsed for the gubernatorial

STATE ASKED TO RESTORE TAXICABS

Citizen, Blaming Owners, Petitions Public Service Body to Force Resumption

A request to the Public Service Commission that it force the Yellow Cab Transportation Company and the Pittsburgh Transportation Company to resume taxicab service in Pittsburgh or make possible establishment of another service, and rumors that attempts will be made Monday to operate cabs, were today highlights in Pittsburgh's 62-day taxicab strike.

Action was filed late yesterday with the Public Service Commission by W. F. Henry, of 5801 Penn avenue, acting as a citizen complaining of violence and general disruption to business in general. Henry was formerly chief of the Federal Indian Bureau and later a deputy United States marshal in Pittsburgh.

In his complaint he reviews the strike from the time it began, January 12, citing there has been disorder, unrest, great damage to property and injury to many persons as the result of riots which have gone beyond the control of police.

BLAMES COMPANIES

As a remedy for the general confusion, Henry asks the commission to find as a fact that the Yellow Cab Transportation Company and the Pittsburgh Transportation Company have knowingly, wilfully and completely breached their corporate franchises and obligations to the state, and to order them to cease and desist from further maintaining and indulging in practices causing internal disharmony and the lack of co-opera-

NEW YORK, March 15.—(AP.)—Fellow students of Columbia are advising Sidney Dressler to change his musical apparatus to a piccolo. He got all tangled up in a subway turnstile so much that police and railway employes were required to release him and his bass drum, snare drum, tom tom, kazoo, triangle, fly swatter and cowbell.

Edith Mayer to Wed Production Manager

LOS ANGELES, March 15.—(AP.)—Edith Annette Mayer, 24, daughter of Louis B. Mayer, motion picture executive and William Goetz, 26, motion picture production manager, today filed notice of intention to marry. Wedding plans have not been announced.

RUSH TO FILE TAX RETURNS

The last day's rush of belated taxpayers to file their income tax returns for 1929, at the office of Collector D. B. Heiner, started early this morning. To take care of the "eleventh hour" crowd Collector Heiner had on duty a large force of deputy collectors and clerks, who handled the late comers with little confusion.

When the office opened at 8 o'clock many were waiting to file returns. It is the last day returns can be filed without a penalty. At no times have the crowds at the collector's office, postoffice build- The internal revenue authorities explained that a great many taxpayers prepared their own returns and have been sending them in by mail.

The mail returns have been larger than previous years. Unless the returns are exceptionally heavy today the amount of taxes will be much below last year. The collector said more returns have been filed than last year, but many of them were non-taxable, because of exemptions and less earnings in 1929 than in 1928.

Prince Carol May Return to Rumania

BUCHAREST, March 15.—(INS.)—Court circles buzzed here again today with rumors that former Crown Prince Carol will return to this country.

These rumors followed a report he had informed his family of having finally separated from Mme. Lupescu. It was said that inasmuch as the Prince has broken his liason with the titian-haired beauty for whom he gave up the Rumanian throne, the royal family now favored his return.

JUDGE AND JURORS INSPECTING CAR USED BY CORP. PAUL'S SLAYERS

This bullet-riddled auto, the Commonwealth charges, was abandoned after the slaying of Corp. Paul and another car seized by Irene and Dague, who forced out its occupants.

Irene Bares Life Secrets

By IRENE SCHROEDER.

CHAPTER V.

WELL, now I'm on trial.

It's about time for me to answer all the lies—even if I have to tell things about myself I thought I'd keep secret until I died.

I'll have to tell later about being a poor girl in a family of seventeen in a factory town. What I've got to tell about now is after I married Homer Schroeder and had Donnie and Homer left me. Because that's when my woman's life began.

Donnie was 2 years old in 1927 when my marriage blew up and I took the baby over to Elm Grove, W. Va., and got a job in the Centre Cafe there. I had a furnished room and kept Donnie there. The landlady watched out for Donnie while I was at work and I fed him and changed him before I went out and when I got back.

It was a dog's life and I said to myself, what is it all about, this being in love and happy, that happens to women?

He Looked Handsome

THE first man I ever loved except my husband was Glenn Dague.

Glenn had a job then with the Prudential Insurance Company in Valley Grove, W. Va., and he got around in his car a lot, stopping in the Centre Cafe sometimes for a meal. I remember looking at him the first time as somebody 'way above me. I still think and know that.

The other waitresses told me he was married to a girl over in Viola who was a school teacher, and that the Hess family that he married into was pushing him along, and that he was a Sunday school leader. And then he looked so handsome and superior. I just thought of him and his wife being the kind of people I wanted to be like.

Then one day I was rushing to work, late, and I ran in front of a car that bumped me. And when I got up and brushed myself I saw the driver was Glenn Dague. He liked the way I was a good sport about being knocked down and he found out I'd be fired if I came to work dirty and fired if I was late. So he had me jump in the machine and broke speed laws getting me home to change and then over to the restaurant.

I knew I loved him right off. He was the finest person I ever met. I felt; now, if it had turned out he married me instead of the other girl, then I would have gone up and up, getting finer and better educated all the time, until I was worthy of him.

Then I saw he was interested in me. He came in to eat all the time and talked with me.

Had Two Children

THEN he asked to come and see me and I said yes. I might just as well have jumped in the river as try to say no. I remember sort of half sitting up with his arm

MOVE FAILS TO GET BOY IN COURT

By AL GOUGH
Staff Correspondent.

NEW CASTLE, Pa., March 15.—Attempts of counsel for Irene Schroeder to have her 4-year-old son, Donnie, brought into court failed today in the trial of the blonde former waitress, charged with the slaying of Corp. Brady Paul.

Thomas W. Dickey, assistant to K. W. Powell, chief counsel for the defense, objected to questioning by Special Prosecutor Charles J. Margiotti when State Trooper James Brooks was called to testify as to the return of Donnie to this city from Bellaire, O.

OBJECTION OVERRULED

"Where did you first see Donnie?" Brooks was asked.

"In Bellaire," he replied.

"I object," Attorney Dickey declared, "on the ground that the child is not in court for identification."

Judge R. L. Hildebrand overruled the objection, which meant that Donnie was not to be brought in. Brooks then went on with his testimony as to how Donnie was brought to New Castle.

FLIGHT DETAILED

Brooks' testimony was in line with the prosecution plans to trail Irene and her sweetheart, W. Glenn Dague, from the scene of the fatal wounding of Corp. Paul on the Butler-New Castle road, December 27, westward through Wheeling, W. Va., Louisville, Ky., and St. Louis to the Arizona desert, where they were captured two months ago.

Charles McGalley, motorcycle policeman at Wheeling, testified to finding Ray Horton's automobile in Wheeling. This is the car in which Irene and Dague are alleged to have made their escape to West Virginia on the first leg of their flight.

Mrs. Catherine Uber, of Wheeling, who testified she rented her garage to the blonde waitress and Dague, also told of the officer finding Horton's car where it had been hidden after the escape to Wheeling. Defense counsel succeeded in bringing out admission from Mrs. Uber that she did not see the car put into the garage.

Jack Dunlap, county probation officer, testified that clothing found in the car was worn on Donnie.

William Keissling, St. Louis policeman, will be one of the witnesses called to tell of a gun battle with Irene and Dague. They shot their way through St. Louis, Keissling says, having brought with him the bullet-tattered uniform he wore in the encounter. He is expected to be star witness of the day.

COURT ROOM HUSHED

Mrs. Mollie Crowl's testimony yesterday afternoon was the most dramatic since the trial, which began last Monday. Corp. Paul's

13 Airplanes Burn At New Jersey Field

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., March 15.—(INS.)—Thirteen airplanes and a hangar were destroyed by fire at Hadley Field, near here, today. The fire was followed by an explosion which was felt in nearby towns.

Employes at the field estimated the damage to be between $170,000 and $200,000. Four mail planes, valued at $40,000, were destroyed. The $25,000 hangar was a total loss.

last words, "Kiss mother for me, Mollie—I'm—done,' fell on the hushed court room, every one of the 10 men and two women jurors straining forward in their seats as the tall, motherly friend and confidant of the highway patrolmen at the substation in New Castle gave her testimony.

Margiotti's voice faltered as he repeated some of the last words of the officer as he gasped a request to "tell the boys I did my duty."

"There was a lump in my throat," Margiotti explained later.

It was most impressive; even defense counsel seemed under a spell. When Mrs. Crowl finished, Attorney Kedgwin H. Powell, chief defense counsel, said huskily, "No cross examination."

The afternoon session came to a close with the jury's inspection of the bullet-riddled automobile abandoned by Irene and her companions. The battered car was driven into the compound between the jail and court house and the jury filed out into the dusk of late afternoon to give the machine close scrutiny.

DEFENSE PLANS ALIBI

Introduction of commonwealth witnesses yesterday afternoon tending to prove Irene's presence in New Castle on December 26, the day before the shooting, opened an avenue of defense, with the denial that the blonde had been here prior to the gun battle.

"Of course the defendant was not in New Castle on that day," Attorney Thomas W. Dickey said, after the evening session, "and we will establish that fact with the introduction of alibi witnesses in rebuttal."

A little red book introduced as commonwealth evidence was revealed as the key to the blonde's alleged career of crime.

CLEARS UP ROBBERIES

The note book, found in the car abandoned by Irene and her companions after the shooting of Corp. Paul, according to the prosecution, contains a complete record of places held up, persons victimized and amounts obtained. It was offered as a commonwealth exhibit without objection by defense counsel and turned over to the jury for a study of the contents. It identifies Irene and her companions with a series of puzzling holdups and robberies over a period of several months prior to the shooting, it is said.

One item, it was revealed, concerned loot of $75.90. It was noted that it was split three ways, $25.30 being the share of each.

The book was introduced when Deputy Sheriff Williams took the stand. He identified it as one of the articles found in the abandoned car.

Ray Horton, owner of the automobile in which Irene and her companions fled after the shooting of Paul, gave the jury a vivid account of the holdup in which his car was taken by the blonde and Dague.

BULLETS IN CAR

Miss Elsie Nickum corroborated Horton's testimony, and testified to seeing a man pick up a bullet from the car.

Mrs. Edna Shippman, who resides near the scene of the Horton holdup, testified that there were bullets all over the floor of the car the couple abandoned.

All three identified Dague and Irene. Articles found in the car were produced by Deputy Sheriff William Reynolds and Lieut. T. W. Boettner, of the state police.

"I saw Mrs. Schroeder and Dague on the afternoon of the shooting," Mrs. Beyri Miller told the jury, "when they came into my restaurant in Monaca. They were in a great hurry and the woman wanted soup for a child who was with them."

"Did you observe their actions while in there?" Margiotti asked.

"I did."

"What were they?"

"She asked for soup. I served a regular portion of soup and brought it in and set it in front of the lady and she said there was too much, so I took it back to the kitchen and brought a smaller portion. I then took her a soup spoon and she said it was too large, so I gave her a smaller spoon and a smaller bowl, so she could lift some soup out so it would cool quicker, for she said they were in a hurry."

"Did they hurry about anything else?"

"She hurried the child in eating."

"Were there any other purchases?"

"Some sandwiches to go out."

"Who paid the bill?"

"The gentleman."

DAVIS ARRIVES TO OPEN RACE

say so publicly until he has explained his reasons to W. L. Mellon, who is expected home next Thursday. Armstrong has been Mellon's chief political aide for years.

Local dealers familiar with state politics scoff at the suggestion of a compromise slate that would heal the breach in the Republican organization.

They believe the stage is set for a bitter factional fight with Davis and his running mate, Francis Shunk Brown, candidate for governor, opposing Grundy and Samuel S. Lewis, also gubernatorial candidate.

In addition to the organization battle, former Gov. Gifford Pinchot is campaigning as an independent Republican for election again to the governorship.

SPEECH SCHEDULED

Members of labor and fraternal organizations in the Hazelwood-Glenwood district will be addressed by Davis next Saturday night at a meeting in Odd Fellows Hall, Second and Flowers avenues.

The meeting was arranged by Frank Lowe, representing building trades unions, and Thomas McDonald, Wade Simmons and Guy Bogardus, organizers of railroad employes unions. McDonald stumped the state for Pinchot in the latter's campaign for senator four years ago.

Nomination petitions were out today for Attorney D. P. MacQuarrie, of Ross Township, chaplain of the One Hundred and Seventh Field Artillery, as a candidate for state senator from the Fortieth district.

MacQuarrie was a candidate for senator four years ago, but withdrew in favor of Park Martin who was defeated by the late Edward Pfischner. Herman Brandt, who was chosen to fill Pfischner's unexpired term, is a candidate for re-election.

Poison Causes Man's Starving to Death

Frank Pavis, 52, a machinist of 108 Harriet street, Rankin, who drank poison by mistake January 10, died early today in the Tuberculosis Hospital, 2851 Bedford avenue. Doctors said death was caused by starvation, due to the affects of the poison on the stomach, which make it impossible for the patient to take food.

A few hours after taking the poison he was removed to the Braddock General Hospital, where he remained until 10 days ago, when he was sent to the tuberculosis hospital, where his daughter is a nurse.

Fortune Ryan, III, Hurt in Auto Crash

SHERIDAN, Wyo., March 15.—(INS.)—Thomas Fortune Ryan, III, of the wealthy New York family, is in critical condition in a local hospital today after an automobile accident here.

Ryan's jugular vein was cut by flying glass, and he suffered severe cuts on the face and body and possible internal injuries when his automobile was in collision with a large parked truck in the business section last night. Hospital attaches said his chances of recovery are good.

QUIZ FINNEY IN DOHENY TRIAL

WASHINGTON, March 15.—(AP.)—Cross-examination of E. C. Finney, government witness in the bribery trial of Edward L. Doheny was started by Frank J. Hogan, chief defense counsel, today in an effort to show that Albert B. Fall, former Secretary of the Interior, had nothing to do with negotiations that led to the leasing of the Elk Hills naval oil reserve to Doheny's company.

The government charges that Fall leased the reserve to Doheny's Pan American Company after receiving a bribe of $100,000 from Doheny. Fall was convicted of accepting the money as a bribe last October and is at liberty pending an appeal.

Finney said an order was issued by Fall in November, 1921, in which the then Secretary of the Interior ordered that all crude oil contracts must thereafter be sent to the Navy. The defense contends that Finney, who was assistant Secretary of the Interior under Fall, revoked the order without consulting his superior.

MOVE TO OUST LEWIS MARKS MINE MEET

End of Iron Arm Supremacy, Cut in Pay of Officials Urged by Committee

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 15.—Hearing of committee reports occupied delegates at the United Mine Workers of America convention as it opened its sixth day this morning. The convention was to take a recess at noon until Monday.

Although unanimous standing vote yesterday afternoon favored that part of the report of the Officers' Reports Committee which recommended disciplinary action against the union members in the "rump" convention at Springfield, Ill., the convention here was delaying in deciding just what action it will take against the Illinois rebels.

AIM TO OUTS REBELS

Convention leaders are asserting that the disciplinary action undoubtedly will be expulsion of the union members associated with the Springfield convention.

Resolutions, including recommendations for drastic changes in the organization of the United Mines Workers of America were distributed at the convention yesterday by the resolutions committee, of which Patrick T. Fagan, Pittsburgh, is chairman.

Action on the resolutions will be taken later by the convention. Among the resolutions were those advocating the removal of all present international officers of the union, including Lewis; reduction of official salaries; abolishment of the "iron arm supremacy of Lewis' administration," and the expulsion of all Illinois miners attending the convention at Springfield.

The scale committee yesterday received a resolution demanding that the central competitive field be re-established and that the contracts of bituminous and anthracite coal fields be made so that they would expire at the same time.

ASK 30-HOUR WEEK

Resolutions sent to the Scale Committee for consideration included one suggesting that the convention demand that operators "give a new contract or reform of the present contract providing that six hours from top to top shall constitute a day's work; that no mines shall operate more than five days a week, and that no employe shall work more than 30 hours a week."

Resolutions presented favored specifically expulsion from the union of John H. Walker, president of the Illinois Federation of Labor, who is alleged to have been active in calling the Springfield session; Alexander Howat, of the Kansas district; Harry Fishwick, president of the Illinois district, and Walter Nesbit, secretary-treasurer of the Illinois district.

tion which, he asserts, have resulted in the present situation.

He asks, further, that the body order the two companies to resume and continue a safe taxicab service, or failing to do this to revoke the certificates of public convenience and necessity held by the two companies.

If an attempt is made Monday to resume operation of cabs they probably will be manned by the more than 300 drivers who have signed the petition of the "back to work committee." This committee, according to its chairman, Maurice Fromme, has been circulating petitions among the striking drivers. The committee is occupying office rooms rented by the Yellow Cab Company in the Standard Life Building, Fourth avenue and Smithfield street.

The rumor persists that a new taxicab company is ready to put 400 cabs on the streets within 72 hours of its receiving a certificate of convenience from the Public Service Commission.

PLANS KEPT SECRET

U. J. L. Peoples, who announced several days ago that he had met with the striking drivers' committee and promised, if granted a Public Service Commission certificate, to start a taxicab company manned by union drivers, has not elaborated on his original statement.

John G. Hopwood, secretary of the Public Service Comission said today, "No application for certificates to operate taxi cabs or buses in Pittsburgh has been filed with this commission on behalf of U. J. L. Peoples."

Asked if he intends to lift the ban on taxicabs which he imposed February 21 by ordering them off the street, Mayor Charles H. Kline said:

"No representatives of the company have come here or been in touch with me relative to operating cabs."

nomination by the Vare organization of Philadelphia and ran for governor as the running mate of the late Senator Boies Penrose.

The first workmen's compensation act and child and women's labor laws were passed by the Legislature during the Brumbaugh administration and the governor was credited with having the bills enacted into law over the opposition of powerful corporation influences.

The former governor was the first commissioner of education of Porto Rico, where he introduced a modern American school system.

With his wife Mr. Brumbaugh went to Pinehurst, N. C., a week ago for a rest. He died there yesterday of heart disease.

The death leaves only three living former governors of the state—John K. Tener, Edwin Sydney Stuart, and Gifford Pinchot.

PETER KULCZYCKI

DETROIT POLICE QUIZ KILLER

Assistant Prosecutor John D. Watts and Detective Sergeant William McMullen, of Detroit, arrived here today to question Peter Kulczycki, 17, of 1921 Larkins way, South Side, about the murder of Policeman Dayton Winegar in Detroit last Saturday.

Kulczycki has confessed to the slaying during a holdup and has waived extradition, according to county detectives. He probably will be taken back to Detroit tomorrow.

Detroit police claim that Kulczycki, alias Joe Miller, former inmate of Thorn Hill Reformatory, is a member of a bandit gang, ranging in age from 17 to 22, responsible for 16 robberies, including safe cracking, in the Detroit district during the last seven months.

Kulczycki was captured Thursday night when he went to keep an appointment with a girl friend on the South Side.

STEEL MERGER FAILURE SEEN

YOUNGSTOWN, O., March 15.—(AP.)—Cyrus S. Eaton, Cleveland financier and commander-in-chief of the opposition toward the purchase of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company by the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, declared here last night that "the deal will not go through."

This is the first time he has broken his silence since the merger fight began. He arrived here to take personal charge of the fight to prevent the merger.

His first attention was toward repairing the breach opened on the opposition's proxy committee by the resignation from the committee of Julius Kahn, president of the Truscon Steel Company, of Youngstown. The purpose of the committee is to control the proxies at a meeting of Sheet and Tube stockholders next month to vote on the merger which was approved by the Sheet and Tube directors this week.

"This sale will not go through," Eaton said. "A good deal more than enough stock has been pledged against it and always has been. The terms are unsatisfactory and public sentiment is opposed to it."

During the opposition's battle for proxies, James A. Campbell, chairman of the Sheet and Tube board, and Frank Purnell, president of the company, were preparing a statement setting forth their views on why the sale should be made.

4 DIE, 9 HURT IN TRAFFIC MISHAPS

Two Men Killed When Struck By Auto in Freeport Road; Youth, Woman Succumb

Four persons were dead today and nine others were injured as a result of traffic accidents in the Pittsburgh district.

John Barna, 42, of 746 Second avenue, New Kensington, and John Patrick, 42, of Harmarville, were killed last night when they were struck by an automobile driven, county detectives said, by Norman P. May, 21, of 436 North avenue, Verona, on the Freeport road at the Hulton Bridge. A third man, Andrew Gates, 62, of Harmarville, suffered a fractured right leg and probable internal injuries, and was taken to Citizens' General Hospital, New Kensington.

DRIVER HELD

May, surrendering to Constable Edward Helwig, of Oakmont, told him that he was driving over the Hulton bridge and had just turned into Freeport road when three men stepped into the path of his machine, according to detectives. He was arrested and was to be turned over to the coroner today.

Joseph Ehitz, 17, of 2440 Gershon street, died last night in Allegheny General Hospital from injuries suffered several hours before when he was struck by a truck driven by H. B. Schreengost, of 1909 Forbes street, at East and Royal streets, according to a morgue report.

A fractured skull sustained Tuesday when she was struck by a machine at West, North and Sherman avenues, caused the death last night in Presbyterian Hospital of Mary Norris, 79, of 1321 Sherman avenue. Anetta Heick, of 111 South street, Avalon, alleged driver of the car, was ordered to appear at the coroner's office today.

HILLDORFER INJURED

Struck by an automobile at East Montgomery avenue and Nance way last night, Joseph Hilldorfer, 65, of 501 Chester avenue, prominent business and political figure on the North Side, was in Allegheny General Hospital with a fractured leg. Wesley A. Moffat, 30, of 2216 Perrysville avenue, was the driver of the car.

Mrs. Bridget Shelly, 68, of 2004 Carson street, was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital after being struck by an automobile in front of her home last night. She suffered fractured ribs.

Hurled from his wagon when the team ran wild at Colwell and Locust street, D. Eckels, of 27 Miltenberger street, suffered lacerations of the scalp and was treated at Mercy Hospital. The horses were stopped by a pedestrian after a run of several blocks.

THREE HURT IN CRASH

Three men were injured when their automobile crashed into a beacon light in front of the Duquesne incline, West Carson street, about midnight. At South Side Hospital they said they were Fred Schaffer, 47, of 3813 Bates street, the driver; Mike White, 29, of 2208 Forbes street, and Mike Gellegan, of 1600 Banksville road. Police placed a charge of being a suspicious person against Schaffer.

Dorothy Mason, 18, of 1416 Hamilton avenue, McKeesport; Betty Tanks, 19, of 423 Sand alley, McKeesport, and Thomas Tiffin, 23, of 2019 Towman street, McKeesport, were injured, and Alfred Dauer, of 607½ Market street, McKeesport, escaped injury, when a machine in which they were riding last night was sideswiped near Peters Creek Bridge, Clairton road, by a hit-and-run auto, driven by a Negro. The injured were treated at McKeesport Hospital.

Albee Funeral Rites In New York Today

NEW YORK, March 15.—(INS.)—Bishop Manning will officiate today at funeral services in the Cathedral of St. John the Divine for E. F. Albee, vaudeville magnate, who died early this week in Florida. Among the honorary pallbearers will be Mayor Walker, George M. Cohan, John Ringling and Adolph Zukor.

No Dates for Six Months, Co-Ed Smoking Penalty

LEWISBURG, Pa., March 15.—(AP.)—Forty-four of the 400 women students of Bucknell University may not walk on the campus nor have dates for the next six months as a result of their admissions that they smoked in their rooms during the present year.

The penalty was meted out by the Women's Student Senate, the self-governing student organization, after the 44 had found themselves unable to sign a pledge that they had not smoked in their rooms.

While the non-smoking rule is a college order, the investigation was made and the penalty imposed by the self-governing body without the college authorities being involved.

By LEE CURRAN,
Staff Correspondent.

NEW CASTLE, Pa., March 15.—Glenn Dague and Irene Schroeder are spectating again.

For the first time since he was brought into the court room where she is being tried for the murder of Corp. Brady Paul, he has noticed her.

Last night Sheriff Frank Johnston brought him into court. He bowed slightly as she looked up and she smiled in return. Dague, when first brought in, kept his eyes cast down, and she made it a point of looking ahead.

Court attaches had it that she wouldn't look at him or greet him because she was afraid she would betray his presence to witnesses of the shooting and of the Butler store robbery.

Now that he has been identified by a dozen witnesses, the court house attaches say, she is no longer afraid of that, and consequently she is willing and glad to recognize him.

During the hearing Dague attended they have watched each other and often have exchanged smiles of encouragement, but not until after he had been in court for a full day.

Last night was the first time that they actually greeted each other in open court. Everyone noticed their actions, and E. E. Grace, clerk of courts, was forced to pound with his gavel to secure order as spectators commented on the action of the couple.

U. S. AND JAPAN REACH NAVAL ACCORD

Tokio Gets Slight Increase Over Washington Parley Figures on Fleet Ratio

International News Service.
By HARRY R. FLORY

LONDON, March 15.—Although official confirmation is still unavailable, there was good reason to believe today that the American and Japanese delegates at the naval conference have come to a compromise agreement, the details of which are now before the Japanese government for approval.

The agreement gives Japan an approximate fleet ratio of 63 per cent, a 3 per cent increase over the 5-5-3 ratio agreed upon at the Washington conference.

It can be stated fairly accurately that the compromise provides that the United States shall have 18 eight-inch gun cruisers, totaling 180,000 tons, while Japan shall have 12 such vessels, totaling 108,400 tons.

PARITY IN SUBMARINES

In six-inch gun cruisers, it is believed the compromise provides for 144,000 tons for the United States and about 100,000 tons for Japan. In destroyers the United States would have 150,000 tons to Japan's 105,000 tons, while the navies of both countries would have approximately parity of 54,000 tons in submarines.

In general, the compromise gives Japan an approximate ratio of 70 per cent in all auxiliary craft and increased the ratio of her entire fleet, including capital ships and aircraft carriers from 60 to about 63 per cent.

These figures are arrived at from the 60 per cent ratio provided Japan in eight-inch gun cruisers, the 69 per cent ratio given her in six-inch gun craft, her 70 per cent ratio in destroyers and parity in submarines.

CRUISER SCHEDULE

The compromise provides that the United States will have no more than 15 eight-inch gun cruisers afloat by 1936, laying down the sixteenth, seventeenth and eighteenth in 1934, 1935 and 1936, respectively.

Japan reserves the right to insist upon increasing her eight-inch gun cruiser strength at the next conference.

With the Japanese-American difficulties disposed of, chief interest over the week-end centered in Premier MacDonald's efforts to solve the Franco-Italian differences.

Premier Andre Tardieu, of France, was to spend the week-end in private conversations with MacDonald on naval limitations, after which Tardieu has intimated, he will have an important declaration to make public.

TEACHER WAR AROUSES PARENTS

School Board Stands Pat On Failure to Elect Nine Instructors; Parade Held

The town of Verona is in a turmoil of talk today, and over a woman.

The woman is Miss Grace McCaughey, teacher in the high school for 21 years. Pupils "struck" yesterday, and promise to continue their strike Monday because she and eight other teachers virtually were "fired."

"We will be out 100 per cent Monday," one of the leaders of pupils said last night.

The parents were divided, prominent citizens split on their views of the wholesale dismissals. Principally, they objected to the failure to rehire the veteran woman teacher.

DECISION STANDS

Charles H. Westlake, president of the school board, said last night:

"We have given the problem consideration; we thought over our action beforehand. Our leading citizens have approved by phone and word of mouth. I'm afraid we plan to stand firm in our position."

About the pupils, he said: "I hope we do not have to expel any one."

"The problem" was actually not the firing, but the failure to rehire the teachers of the schools, including Miss McCaughey, H. A. Duncan, for nine years principal of the high school, Lloyd Peters, Edna Ling, Venus Shakerian, of the high school staff, and Elizabeth George, Erma Steinecke and Martha Kunkle, of the grade school.

"DO AS WE PLEASED"

Students admitted that the probable reason for much of the difficulty was "we could do as we pleased." They and a number of the parents opposed to the wholesale removal, blamed much of the upheaval on S. H. Jones, new supervisor, who, they say, came here less than a year ago from Fayette County.

Westlake, however, asserted that Jones was not to blame, since "members of the board approved and condoned the changes, and are responsible to the community."

Adding that he believed the student revolt which yesterday crystallized in somewhere near half of the 250 students marching in parade through the streets after striking, Westlake stated that he expected "the opposition to simmer down."

NO DRASTIC ACTION

"We plan no drastic action on the student body. I hope we do not have to expel anyone," he said. He refused to give reasons for the dismissals other than that they were considered "a helpful move for the community and schools."

While the town was divided, sentiment centered around Miss McCaughey, although Duncan was universally regarded as having been "victimized after loyal service." Other townsfolk felt that while the removal was drastic, it might improve the morale of the schools.

What form the striking pupils' demonstration would take Monday was being considered today.

"All we're sure of is that none of the pupils will be in classes Monday," a leading athlete of the school said.

AIDES SPREAD GANDHI REVOLT

LONDON, March 15.—(INS.)—While Mahatma Gandhi marches southward to the sea preaching his doctrine of civil disobedience in India his disciples in other parts of the country are making some headway with similar demonstrations, according to Bombay dispatches today.

At Poona, southeast of Bombay, a hundred natives have rallied to the Independence banner. With the same program as the Mahatma these hundred planned today to start on a self-refining expedition, spreading the propaganda of passive resistence against British rule en route.

Gandhi's march continued today from Sabaramati, where yesterday he and his "faithful 79" received a rousing reception.

CHOOSE NAMES FOR NEW ORB

PHILADELPHIA, March 15.—(AP.)—Dr. Harlow Shapley, director of the Harvard Observatory, through whom announcement of the discovery of the new planet was made, suggested last night that it be named "Kronos," after the mythological father of the six principal Greek gods. He spoke before the Philadelphia Forum.

BOSTON, March 15.—(AP.)—A proposal by Mrs. Percival Lowell that the recently discovered ninth planet be named "Percival" in honor of her husband, whose computations 15 years ago led to the discovery of the new sphere, met with the agreement of a host of her friends here.

Harvard astronomers, when asked what name would be given the new planet, said that the choice rested primarily with the Lowell Observatory, which made the discovery. They added that the observatory scientists doubtless would ask the American Astronomical Society to suggest a suitable name.

SENATE INSISTS ON DRY INQUIRY

WASHINGTON, March 15.—(INS.)—Senate backers of the proposed sweeping investigation of federal prohibition enforcement today prepared for a showdown at a meeting of the Senate Judiciary Committee on Monday when Attorney General Mitchell and Chairman George W. Wickersham, of the Law Enforcement Commission, are to be heard behind closed doors.

Both Senator Norris (Rep.), of Nebraska, chairman of the committee, and Senator Wheeler (Dem.), of Montana, are planning to wage a battle for their investigation resolutions.

Mitchell and Wickersham are expected to oppose a senatorial inquiry on the plea that President Hoover's reorganization program should first be given a fair trial.

The nation's dry organizations will be given another inning before the House Judiciary Committee next Wednesday, in their opposition to bills for repeal or modification of the prohibition amendment.

WOMAN PASTOR MISSING

NEW CASTLE, Pa., March 15.—Miss Jewell Imhoff, attractive 22-year-old minister known as the Aimee McPherson of New Hampshire, is missing.

To Franklin, N. H., where Miss Imhoff recently resigned her pastorate, her mother, Mrs. Eva Redman, has gone in search of her.

Miss Imhoff was expected to reach her home at Pulaski, a few miles from New Castle, last Tuesday.

Her father, Alex Redman, well-to-do farmer, suggested today that his daughter was a victim of amnesia, but there were no facts to support this theory above others.

Reports from New Hampshire indicated that Miss Imhoff, pastor of the Nazarene Church, was popular with her congregation of 21 members, although her trunk was reported attached by the sheriff for a bill of $11 before she left. This bill was for a payment on an auto, the authorities said.

JEWS SAIL FOR LONDON MEET

NEW YORK, March 15.—(INS.)—Both the Bremen and the Majestic, huge liners sailing from here last night, carried noted American-Jewish leaders, who are going abroad for international conferences on the development of Palestine.

Louis Lipzky, president of the Zionist Organization of America, sailed on the Majestic with Alexander Kahn and Rabbi Aaron Teitelbaum. Dr. Cyrus Adler, president of the American-Jewish committee, and Felix M. Warburg, chairman of the administrative committee of the Jewish Agency for Palestine, who will preside over an international meeting in London, were on the Bremen.

FLAYS MELLON IN TAX REFUND

WASHINGTON, March 15.—(INS.)—The United States Steel Corporation is expected to gain further tax refunds from the treasury as a result of over assessments made since 1920, Representative Hawley, (Rep.), of Oregon, chairman of the Joint Congressional Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation, said today.

With approximately $98,000,000 already refunded the giant corporation for overpayments from 1917 to 1920, during which war taxes were in force, other claims for later years are pending, Hawley disclosed.

Representative Garner, of Texas, Democratic leader in the House, has assailed the treasury for not taking the steel cases into court for settlement. Instead, he charged, Secretary Mellon adopted a policy which brought enormous refunds to big corporations, among them companies in which Mellon or members of his family are interested.

Garner assailed the latest $33,000,000 refund to the steel corporation, declared it escaped taxes altogether for 1921 because of credits established by treasury decisions.

Annuls Claim Of Juanita Hansen

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., March 15.—(INS.)—Owners of the Lincoln Hotel will not have to pay Juniata Hansen, blonde Cinema actress, a $167,000 court verdict under a decision of Supreme Court Justice Taylor, Jr., here today. He ruled that the jury's "sympathy for a comely woman" was responsible for the verdict in the case in which Miss Hansen charged she was disfigured when she opened a shower faucet marked "cold" and was caught under a rush of scalding hot water.

HINT LOST MAIL PLANE LOOTED

LOS ANGELES, March 15.—(AP.)—Officials of the Western Air Express here admit there is a possibility that the mail plane piloted by Maurice Graham, which disappeared during his flight between Los Angeles and Salt Lake City on January 10, may have been looted and destroyed and his body buried.

This theory was elicited from the officials when it became known that the Nevada State Journal of Reno today was publishing a story that the missing mail plane carried $75,000 in currency and securities amounting to nearly $250,000, that the country over which Graham was flying has been thoroughly searched and that searching parties believe the plane never landed in the territory over which a severe storm raged the day Graham disappeared.

Members of the searching parties, the Journal says, expressed the belief that if the plane landed, it was destroyed and the body of the pilot buried by those who robbed the wreck.

FALSE CHARGES COSTS $7,000

Alleging that she was falsely accused of embezzlement, Stella Ridenbaugh, of Bidwell street, North Side, was awarded $7,000 damages in her suit against A. B. Mitchell, of Wayne avenue, North Side, in Common Pleas Court.

She was manager and cashier for the North Side Maytag Company, and April 24, 1928, according to her charges, an information was lodged against her by Mitchell, part owner, charging embezzlement of amounts aggregating $900.

Mrs. Ridenbaugh alleged she was taken with her month-old child in a patrol to the North Side station, confined there three days, held for court at a hearing April 27, 1928, and released on bond. She was acquitted September 11, 1928.

German Duelist Jailed in Death

WEIMAR, Germany, March 15.—(AP.)—Werner Schoenig, a medical student of Jena University, must serve six months for killing a friend with a rapier in a fraternity duel. He lost an appeal, the court holding that the use of deadly weapons made him culpable though he intended no harm.

J. M. COWARD'S WIDOW WEDS

NEW YORK, March 15.—(AP.)—Mrs. Audrey Loder Coward, widow of John Mortimer Coward, of Rumson, N. J., was married here yesterday to Lee Wingate Carroll, of New York, son of John B. Carroll, of Detroit.

By her marriage, the bride gave up a yearly income of more than $800,000, left by Mr. Coward on condition that she did not marry again. Mr. Coward, a son of the founder of the shoe company bearing his name, died two years ago. All the income from the estate now will go to the son, John Mortimer Coward, III, who is 6 years old.

More Victims of Strange Paralysis

JACKSON, Miss., March 15.—(AP.)—Discovery of 14 new cases of a paralytic malady, so far undiagonised, brought to 202 the number of cases in Mississippi, Tennessee and Georgia.

Both Georgia and Mississippi health authorities have ordered analyses of samples of Jamaica ginger, which a large number of victims of the ailment were reported to have used as a beverage before being stricken.

John McCormack Sails for Europe

NEW YORK, March 15.—(AP.)—John McCormack, Irish tenor, sailed last night on the liner Majestic to fill some engagements abroad and then to spend the summer in Ireland.

Accompanying him were Mrs. McCormack and his daughter Gwendolyn, who recently was discharged from a hospital where she underwent an operation for appendicitis.

RUM SHIPMENT BAN ADVANCED

OTTAWA, March 15.—(AP.)—Premier Mackenzie King's bill to prohibit the clearance of liquor to a prohibition country was given second reading without division in the House of Commons last night and then went to committee.

The second reading without opposition was taken in many quarters as an indication it probably would pass.

In a speech in the House, the Premier said Canadian government officials now act as the connecting link between distilleries and United States bootleggers, a practice which the people of Canada want to abolish.

3 HURT, DOCTOR BRAVES FIRE

DETROIT, March 15. — Fire starting in one of the upper stories of a five-story brick building at 113-115 West Jefferson avenue shortly after 1 o'clock this morning destroyed that structure with estimated loss of $100,000 and was not brought under control until nearly five hours afterward.

Three firemen were hurt, one seriously, when one of the walls collapsed upon the roof of an adjoining building where the firemen were directing a hose line.

Dr. Carl H. Schulte, who was at the scene when the wall fell on the three firemen, fought his way up a ladder through dense smoke to reach Louis Pfafd, 26, one of the injured firemen. Pfafd suffered a broken leg which was set by Dr. Schulte on the roof of the adjoining building while the fire raged nearby. The injured man was lowered in an improvised sling.

Death Takes Father Of Nell Brinkley

NEW YORK, March 15.—(Universal.)—Robert Brinkley, 73, father of the famous artist, Nell Brinkley (Mrs. Bruce McRae, Jr.), is dead in Orlando, Fla. He died suddenly. The body will be brought north for burial.

Mr. Brinkley was born at Shawnee Town, Ill. When a young man, he went to Denver, where he became interested in the lumber industry.

Funeral services will be held from Mrs. McRae's home in New Rochelle.

Youths Confess Filching Famous Mustache

WASHINGTON, Pa., March 15.—The clippers of the world's champion mustache are in the Washington County Jail, facing such ignominious charges as larceny of an automobile and carrying concealed weapons. When arrested the pair, who gave their names as William Chew, 18, of West Newton, and Charles Moore, 21, of McKeesport, confessed to this unique crime, if such it can be called, while being quizzed by local state police as to their actions. Matt Rosky, of Wildwood, who was said to possess the once famous mustache, was the victim of this pair.

SEEK PROOF IN ERLANGER CASE

NEW YORK, March 15.—(INS.)—Charlotte Fiscal Leslay, who claims to be the widow of A. L. Erlanger, late theater multi-millionaire, must appear in court next Tuesday to show cause why her objections to filing of Erlanger's will should not be dismissed, Miss Leslay, who was not named in the will, demands a share of the $75,000,000 estate.

Attorneys for heirs of the estate obtained an order from Surrogate Foley requiring Miss Leslay to appear Tuesday. Dismissal is asked on the ground that Miss Leslay is not the widow.

SLAYER'S PLAY AIDS MOTHER

NEW YORK, March 15.—(INS.)—Mrs. Ella Blake, of Amarillo, Tex., whose son, Robert, shortly before he was hanged for murder, wrote a magazine article on which a Broadway success was based, today will sign an agreement covering profits of the play, John Wexley, 21-year-old author of the prison drama, which is now the most popular show in New York, will sign over to the white-haired mother certain royalties, the exact amount not having been made public.

Mrs. Blake said she was entirely satisfied with the percentage offered her.

Whether she will witness the play, which is built around the execution of her son, was undecided today.

School Seeks Land Used By Sun-Bathing Tramps

Vagabonds are to be deprived of one of their favorite places for basking in the sun if City Council shows the same disposition to oblige the Very Rev. M. A. Hehir, president of Duquesne University, as was shown by the County Commissioners yesterday.

Father Hehir went before the commissioners and told them the university desired to acquire a arrow strip of land lying between the university property and the retaining wall built in connection with the construction of the Liberty Bridge. The strip, although only a few feet wide, is theoretically a city street, but serves no purpose, Father Hehir said, except to provide tramps a place to take sun baths.

The university president proposed that Council be asked to vacate the street, in which case the university will get one-half and the county the other half. The commissioners voted, in that event, to sell the county's half to the university for a dollar.

Mary Nolan Quits Films, Will Sue on Contract

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., March 15.—(INS.)—Claiming that her contract with Universal Pictures Corporation was violated, Mary Nolan, blonde motion picture beauty, formerly known on the stage as Imogene Wilson, today was planning to leave the film colony for New York.

Miss Nolan's break with the motion picture company was revealed when she was barred from the set where a picture in which she was starring is being filmed, Pauline Stark has been engaged to take her place.

Carl Laemmle, Jr., Universal executive, ascribed the break to "too much temperament" on the part of the actress. He charged that only 30 scenes have been taken, although the company had been working on the picture for nine days.

According to Miss Nolan, she has started a suit to break the contract. She also plans to ask damages for a $500-a-week contract which she asserts was not kept.

JURY TO GET BOYS' CASES

Although it is unusual for Criminal Court cases to be heard on Saturday, Judge Ambrose B. Reid this morning was to charge the jury that had been sitting since Tuesday hearing the evidence against four youths on trial on 14 charges of entering buildings, robbery and larceny.

The prosecution, directed by Assistant District Attorney Charles J. Jarrett, calling more than 40 witnesses, took up all but the last day of trial. The defense was presented yesterday.

The youths on trial, ranging in age from 18 to 22, are Earl Grove, 6911 Hamilton avenue; Joseph Walker, 7617 Mulford street; Paul Bonarrigo, 40 Wheeler street, and Allen Grove, 6911 Hamilton avenue.

Five other boys, Hugh Berger, 1413 Coal street, Wilkinsburg; Thomas Harding, 7309 Tioga street; Kenneth Curnow, 419 Rosedale street; James Ross, 96 Amon way and Russel Bond, Penn avenue, pleaded guilty last Tuesday before Judge Harry H. Rowand to many similar charges, but sentence was deferred until trial of the four who pleaded not guilty is ended. The gang was charged with a total of 56 jobs.

A Charming Model to Make

Pattern 1796

Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern

By ANNE ADAMS

Slender lines are achieved in the styling of this lovely afternoon frock through the long scalloped collar and diagonal bodice closing. The wide girdle holds the hips snugly in place and fastens at the side with scalloped finish. The skirt is gracefully flared in smart manner.

Pattern 1796 is charmingly fashioned of printed flat crepe. A dark ground with tiny colorful designs should be chosen, particularly by women of larger proportions, in order not to accentuate the figure. Navy, black or dark green would be lovely trimmed with flesh, pink or beige flat crepe collar and cuffs.

Designed only in sizes 18, 20, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 36 requires 3½ yards of 40-inch fabric and ¾ yard trimming.

No dressmaking experience is necessary to make this model with our patterns. Yardage for every size, and simple, exact instructions are given.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins carefully wrapped, or stamps, for each pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, STYLE NUMBER and SIZE wanted.

Our PATTERN BOOK of NEW SPRING and SUMMER STYLES is FIFTEEN CENTS, but only TEN CENTS when ordered with a pattern. Address all mail and orders to Sun-Telegraph Pattern Department, 243 West Seventeenth street, New York City.

1.—Enclose 15 cents in coins.
2.—Write clearly NUMBERS of patterns and SIZE wanted.
3.—Write or print your NAME and ADDRESS plainly.
4—If you want SUN-TELEGRAPH Style Book send 10c extra.
5—Address your request to

SENATORS PRAISE PROPOSAL FOR REFERENDUM ON WARS

PLAN DECLARED STEP TOWARD WORLD PEACE

Members of Congress Voice Indorsement of Hearst Project for Amendment

By KENNETH CLARK,
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—Those members of Congress who are concerned with promoting the peace of the world joined today in lauding the constitutional amendment advocated by the Hearst newspapers to provide a referendum vote of the people before the United States waged war.

The proposed amendment would make it impossible for the government, except after a referendum vote of the people—

1. To declare or wage any war except in defense of territories and possessions of the United States, and

2. To form any alliance or agreement with any foreign nation or group of nations obligating the United States to participate in or confer on wars not having to do with the defense of the territories or possessions of the United States.

BROOKHART ENTHUSED

Senator Brookhart (Rep.), of Iowa, who served as a colonel in the World War, was so enthusiastic over the idea he announced he would prepare later a resolution incorporating the proposal.

"The referendum principle is the great principle of free government," he declared. "Its application to the declaration of war means world peace.

"It would logically follow that if this principle be adopted, all alliances or agreements which would involve war should also be submitted to referendum."

At the same time a warning was sounded that the mechanics of the proposal would have to be so carefully drawn and regulated that no danger would exist to the United States through a sudden, aggressive policy by a foreign power.

"The question of going into war by a vote of the people has many advantages, but practically it is complicated," said Representative Britten, (Rep.) of Illinois, chairman of the House Naval Affairs Committee. "The delay necessitated by securing a vote might give the opposing side a distinct strategic advantage while we were deciding whether to fight."

LAUDED BY FRAZIER

Senator Frazier, (Rep.), of North Dakota, who has sponsored a constitutional amendment to make all war by the United States illegal, hailed the plan as "a tremendous step in the right direction."

Other comment follows:

SENATOR NORRIS, (Rep.) of Nebraska—If the mechanics can be worked out it is the thing to do to promote the peace of people everywhere.

SENATOR ODDIE, (Rep.) of Nevada—Such delays as would be required under this suggestion might endanger national defense and national security.

SENATOR WALSH, (Dem.) of Montana—I am quite willing for the United States to confer with foreign nations at any time war is threatened, as a means to avert war.

Nanette Guilford, Singer, Bankrupt

NEW YORK, March 15.—(AP.)—Nanette Guilford Rosen, opera singer, is broke. She has filed a petition in bankruptcy with liabilities of $25,000 and no assets. Her father describes it as an unfortunate affair just like her marriage. She is contemplating a divorce from Max Rosen, violinist.

WHITE HOUSE GANG

Diplomat Saves Boys From Toils of Policeman

Theodore Roosevelt, when President of the United States, started the adventurous, rollicking, joyous career of the White House Gang by sending his youngest son, Quentin, to the Force Public School in Washington. Here the gang was recruited. The accredited members are Charles (Taffy) Taft, "Brom" Seeley, Dick (Sailor) Chew, Edward (Sluts) Stead, also called "Bedstead," Walker White, "T. R.," the most active member of the gang; Quentin, the leader, and Earle Looker, the author of this story.

Each day, after school, the gang went into a huddle to confound all rules of deportment in high places, mingle in the lives of presidents and policemen, win victories, taste honor, suffer punishments and engage in escapades which were swept along the wires to national publicity. Many exploits of the gang, however, either remain unknown or were known only to the President and Mrs. Roosevelt. Some there were securely hidden even from them.

CHAPTER X.

JUST then the main door of the embassy opened, and a short, energetic man, clad in a cape and carrying a cudgel rather than a stick, emerged and came down the steps. It was his excellency, James Bryce, O. M., envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary, jurist, historian, man of letters, Fellow of the Royal Society, recipient of many academic honors, mountain climber and ambassador from the British King to Washington.

"Ambassador Bryce!" the policeman said, and saluted.

"Well—well?" Bryce inquired, his sharp eyes sparkling under the gray thatch of his heavy brows. "What's all this about, eh?"

Meanwhile Q, for no reason apparent to us, had made himself scarce, disappearing behind our backs.

"One of these boys has just broke a carriage window with a snowball, sir," the policeman said, "and he tells me I can't come into the embassy grounds to get him—"

"Well, he knows his diplomacy," Bryce said, incisively. "The lad is entirely right. You are confronted with a problem. . . . May I ask, if there is any extraordinary crime in the fact of a broken window? Isn't it rather an inevitable result of this snowy weather? No; most certainly you cannot touch him here. And of course, you do not want me to lay violent hands upon him, to eject him, what? You'll have to wait for him!"

"And you'll wait forever and ever," muttered Q, from behind our backs.

Ambassador Bryce never looked at us; perhaps that was because he imagined he might break into laughter, if he did, over what he realized was an extremely serious matter for us. He simply marched through the gate, wheeled right, and strode down Connecticut avenue, swinging his cudgel, as if nothing had happened.

The policeman watched him for a moment, then, for another moment, looked at the gilded crowns on the posts beside the gate. After which, he turned slowly on his heel, and walked away, down N street.

Boys Grateful

"Bryce, the Lion and the Unicorn are all jolly good old beasts! What?" said Q, pointing to the Royal Arms of Britain, over the door of the old, Victorian, red-brick Embassy that used to be. "What? What?" Q repeated. "But if Mr. Bryce had seen who we were," he continued, defending his momentary disappearance, "the King of England would be laughing at us tomorrow morning in B-u-c-k-i-n-g-h-a-m Palace. We didn't want that, did we?"

We did not and said so; also, that Q was right

"Gosh!" said Quentin abruptly. "Isn't this t-e-r-r-i-b-l-e; I didn't get that old wallaby's name and she'll think I never intend to pay her . . ." Then, after a long moment of thought, he added, "She'll remember us, until her dying day—"

And I shall remember it, too, just as I shall another encounter with the cops, which also occurred while the Gang were on their way to the White House. But this time we were proceeding directly, as engagements with TR or Mrs. Roosevelt were sacred, and nothing allowed to stand in their way—not, however, from any grown-up reasons of paramount command, but because we loved them both as two very human people, who were close to us.

One fall afternoon the Gang was to meet TR, to take a walk with him. The trees of Rock Creek Park had turned scarlet and brown, and there was an exhilarating crispness to the air; even the work horses we passed along Sixteenth street stepped along with an added spring and verve.

Ruins Flower Bed

Q, detained at school, because of hilarious deportment, was frantically writing some foolish sentence 25 times upon the blackboard, while the Gang, in a bunch, went on ahead towards the White House. Quentin was to follow, mounted.

We trudged along rather glumly, for we had counted on taking turns riding the pony ourselves, a Gang privilege of which Q was ever generous. . . . Finally, at the end of Sixteenth street, we entered Lafayette Square. Looking behind us, we saw a black speck away up Sixteenth street, that looked as if it might be Quentin, and another large blot which possibly was Allen.

But we kept on going, discussing how best to announce Q's tardiness to TR. Just as we passed around the statue of Andrew Jackson, teetering on his hobby-horse, police whistles began to shrill, from both ends of the park. . . .

Q had galloped down Sixteenth street, but instead of turning right, along H, and left, again, at the next block, to go around the park, he was riding directly across the beautiful turf and paths! When we first saw him, he was jumping Algonquin over the corner of a small, carefully-raked flower-bed. The pony landed on all fours and slid, tearing up the sod in long deep gashes.

"Beat it! Beat it!" Q shouted to us. "Don't keep Father waiting! He hates nothing worse!"

Pursued by Policemen

The two park policemen were shouting, also, and running to catch Quentin and the devastating pony. Q jerked out his dollar watch, waved it at them, and yelled something about not having time to do anything else—which was incomprehensible as an explanation . . . But the officers kept on, fired with the obvious intent of capturing him, alive if possible; so Q pivoted Algonquin neatly, dodged about a magnolia tree, avoided the clutch of the law, bolted across the sidewalk out of the park, clattered in front of a street car frantically clanging for him to get out of the way, galloped furiously through the White House carriage-entrance, and up the roadway to the porte-cochere, abondoning Algonquin in a cloud of dust. . .

The motorman abruptly wound up his brake, when he saw the Gang streaming out of the park after Quentin, and being closely pursued by the two policemen trying to head us off. The park custodians were amazed and shocked when we, also, made for the White House entrance and were welcomed by the regular police guard. One of them left his post to explain to the park policemen. As I looked back, I saw the street car just starting again, its passengers sitting amazed by the sudden infantry charge bursting out of the park, led by its mounted commander, and its notable objective.

To our great relief TR's flashing grin which followed the explanations we had to make, together with his after-chuckles, showed us he was not very seriously concerned about the school deportment.

Gang Attends Church

Q said, a little later about school: "Dr. Rixey agrees with me that it isn't the college—I've been talking to him about Harvard—as much as it is the a-s-s-o-c-i-a-t-i-o-n. Now, its the same way with the Force School; it isn't the darned old school so much, it's the Gang!"

It must be borne in mind that every Sunday morning in church we were wont to hear that beautiful prayer: " . . . Most heartily we beseech Thee, with Thy favour, to behold and bless Thy servant the President of the United States, and all others in authority. . . . Endue them plenteously with heavenly gifts; grant them in health and prosperity long to live; and finally, after this life, to attain everlasting joy and felicity. . . ."

Gangsters Watched

Often, after playing with the President on a Saturday afternoon, our sureness of equality with him was so definite that at the end of this Sunday prayer we actually refrained from joining in the deep reverberating "Amen" of the congregation, because we felt not at all uncertain that the Gang was included in that prayer, as being among "all others in authority." We were exalted, and, somehow, it did not seem to be in exactly good taste to "amen" a prayer for ourselves, since, at that moment, we imagined, millions of people also were praying for us. So we stood very straight and quivering, for most assuredly we had been wrought upon by the influence of a great and good man.

It was in this period that the approach of a member of the Gang, to the White House, had something about it of an impossibly fantastic princely progress. There was a thumping, martial music in his heart, as he passed through one of the gates on Pennsylvania avenue, and walked with a sort of skipping cadence up the long path, curving beside the carriage-drive—ceaselessly watched by the Secret Service.

Still the Gangster would not have been so astonished had the long, blue arm of the law reached for him, and a heavy hand caught him roughly by the coat-collar. Instead, the policemen merely groomed their fierce moustaches with white-gloved hands as that small boy passed, and purred pleasantries like so many sleek cats. That in itself, was, at first, more than disturbing; it was not at all natural. So the boy would be breathless, as he came under the golden lantern, suspended from the ceiling of the high-columned porte-cochere; by the time the doormen, in the swallow-tails and brass buttons of the Presidential livery, popped out of the glittering, double-doors and bowed him through he would be speechless. . . .

Once, after I had thus safely entered the White House, without let or hindrance, I met the other members of the Gang, assembled in more or less mute contemplation of marble floors, and the Great Seal of the United States of America, inlaid in polished brass—we thought it solid gold—and we were steered to the ushers' room to the right of the main entrance. Here, a minor crisis arose, which, as I understand it now, was Rooseveltian in its unconventional conception, and correspondingly satisfactory in results.

Quentin Angers Boys

The ushers' room was connected, by an intercommunicating telephone system, with all parts of the White House; when I arrived an usher—Irwin H. ("Ike") Hoover, since become Chief Usher—judging the Gang completely present, telephoned to Q's rooms that we had arrived. Mr. Hoover, receiving an answer over the wire, looked startled and said into the instrument, "No! I can't say that, at all! What ever are you thinking?"

There was a distinctly audible click in the ear-piece, and Mr. Hoover looked out of the window, confused and embarrassed. Drumming his fingers impatiently on the table, he finally said, "Quentin says . . . well, he says he can't see you today—"

Slats Stead, who had been more or less argumentative all day, said quickly, "Darn him! You tell him that's no way to behave!"

Inasmuch as Slats had appointed himself first spokesman, the Gang nodded solemnly, and in angry agreement.

"Tell him," said Dick, "that we really didn't want to see him, anyway."

"Tell him, too," Brom said, "we only stopped in because we happened to be passing by."

"And tell him," Walker piped in, "that he can go and chase himself to Washington Circle—"

Personal Affection

Mr. Hoover was, and is, no mean diplomatist. So he laughed, picked up the telephone again and, after some delay, which we understood to be Q's ignoring the call, delivered the return messages verbatim, adding, "Quent, they're mighty sore at you, and I think they're right. They're all going now, of course—"

We could hear Q's answer, as he shouted, "Golly! Don't let 'em leave the house. . . Bring 'em up! Bring 'em up! I just wanted to know what they'd say, and they—said—it—and I want—"

We found Q standing on his head—with the help of a table—in the middle of the great upper hall, trying adequately to express his pleasure at our insulting remarks.

"Somebody," Q said, with his father's directness, "just told me that you only came to see me, because this was the White House; I wanted to kick him on his seat of government; but being able to tell him about this will be better than anything." Then the famous after-chuckle bubbled up—"And I won't get in d-u-t-c-h this way, either—"

Q's thought was not too complex for us to follow; inasmuch as we understood that he regarded our disagreeable remarks as proofs of personal affection—which they undoubtedly were—although it took us some minutes to forget that we were still angry. But in the course of a little while we did forget, and, forgetting, forgave him.

HIS PLANE WEIGHS ONLY 350 POUNDS

CAPT. JOHN P. MORRIS LIFTING HIS NEW 350-POUND MONOPLANE—IT'S EASY!
Capt. Morris, Rogers Field, with his new monoplane, on view at Motor Square Garden's aviation show. He's going to try it out in an endurance flight within a short time.

BABY AIRPLANE ON DISPLAY

"And if it's out of order, folks, you can pick it up and carry it on your back to a landing field."

That is the way the ballyhoo of circus days might describe the new Aeronca C-2 airplane on view today at Motor Square Garden. This is the plane, weighing 350 pounds, which will be used when Capt. John P. Morris starts his endurance flight from Roger's field the first week of April.

Manufactured by the Aeronautical Corporation of America, this plane is said to offer the safest training for a pilot. It is powered with a two-cylinder motor. Highest speed is said to be about 85 miles per hour, cruising speed 65 miles per hour, service ceiling 16,500 feet, price below $2,000.

Monday Capt. Morris will start flights to determine just how much gasoline he can carry. During the first week of April he will put his conclusions to test and try the endurance flight.

Destroyed Rum Fumes Invade Court Room

An aroma of liquor wafted through Criminal Court rooms. Spectators and witnesses nudged one another. Had a drunk found his way into the very halls of justice?

The mystery was explained when it was found that county detectives yesterday destroyed in the courtyard 3,000 gallons of liquor used as evidence in former trials.

The fumes had entered the courtrooms through the windows. The liquor was valued at $24,690.

CANCER WIZARD ARRIVES IN N. Y.

By GOBIND BEHARI LAL,
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, March 15.—Dr. Walter Bernard Coffey, noted San Francisco surgeon, whose anti-cancer research has aroused world-wide attention, arrived here from Washington.

Dr. Coffey said that he came here on a flying visit to take counsel with some noted scientists who specialize in cancer research, and some of whom participated with him in a discussion on cancer before the Senate Commerce Committee's Cancer sub-committee meeting last Thursday.

Dr. John Davis Humber, associate of Dr. Coffey in cancer work, will join Dr. Coffey here probably next Sunday. Soon after that the two scientists will return by way of Chicago to their clinics in San Francisco and Los Angeles, where more than 1,500 patients are receiving their experimental treatments.

"We shall not give any injections to anybody here, I need not say," Dr. Coffey announced, as it was brought to his attention that the interest in his work is extremely wide and keen in New York as it was in Washington.

Unbiased men, including many prominent doctors, concede that Drs. Coffey and Humber have made this nation, and even the Congress, suddenly conscious of the importance of the cancer problem in this country.

Read "The White House Gang"

You have lots of time to read on Sunday! That's why you'll enjoy tomorrow's installment of "The White House Gang" in the Sunday Sun-Telegraph—a narrative of the pranks of the Roosevelt boys and their pals when they made the Executive Mansion their playground. Every Sunday's installment includes a series of complete episodes in the life of Quintin Roosevelt and his chums.

Irene Reveals Secrets Of Romance With Dague

around me and beginning to ask Glenn about his home.

He didn't say anything against his wife and he told me about his two children, Delmar and Marlys. I saw he musn't lose all that.

I said: "What about your religion and your family and your job?"

He said: "I'll give them all up."

"But my love will make a bum out of you," I told him. But now that all the world says it did make a bum out of him, and a prisoner in the New Castle jail for murder, I've changed my mind.

Then I ran away to Statesville, N. C., with Davis. I even took Glenn's car to run away in.

I lived in Statesville three months. It was in the Statesville Hospital I had Glenn's baby boy. The baby was born just after an automobile accident. He lived only two days.

But I didn't want to hurt Davis and that's what made all the trouble. I went back to Wheeling as soon as I was strong enough, and Glenn came to me. This time I didn't even try to send him away. But Davis heard where I was, and he came up to Wheeling and said: "Irene, my boy Buck is sick and wants you."

Trick To Get Me Back

I WAS crazy about Buck. I'm made that way. If I'm taking care of a child more than a day or two, I begin to feel it's mine and want to keep him always. Buck was like my own flesh and blood. I went to Statesville with Davis, and there was Buck, jumping around and hollering, not sick at all. It was just a trick to get me back.

So I waited a chance, and took Buck in the car and went back to Wheeling. I had Buck and my own Donnie together there. I was planning to write Buck's father and say that I would be better to Buck than he was, being a single man without a home.

But just then, Glenn finally did what he often threatened to do. He threw up his job. It was a new one, better than the Prudential, with the Scott Motor Company in Pleasant Valley, W. Va. He took two automobiles to cover money he said was due.

"They'll yell I stole the cars," he said, "but that won't be true. They're my legitimate property. And, honey, I'm going to leave this part of the country and go to Toledo, O., and you're going to be my true wife there. I'm sick of this place and the deal I'm getting here."

When I saw that we'd go to Toledo, I saw that I wouldn't have such a fine home for Buck after all, so I left Buck with my folks in Wheeling and only took Donnie to Toledo. But the first day in Toledo I was worried about Buck. I made Glenn drive me back to Wheeling and pick up Buck there and drive on down to Statesville and give Buck back to his dad.

Things didn't go well for us in Toledo. That's where we did the first thing that started us wrong.

Isabelle M. Hanbury

Critic of First Impressions

IN A SERIES OF HER FAMOUS DRAMATIZED LECTURES—ON THE SEVENTH FLOOR

Beginning Tuesday, March 18th

Miss Hanbury, who is a world-wide traveler, a lecturer and author of note—and the very embodiment of charm herself—will explain how to acquire those engaging characteristics we call charm. The subject of her dramatized talks will be:

1. Etiquette
Tuesday, March 18th, 2:30 p. m.—
Secrets of etiquette everyone longs to know but dares not ask. Origin and reason for precedence.

2. Art of Conversation
Wednesday, March 19th, 2:30 p. m.—
Secrets of the "je ne sais quoi" left us by the world's most fascinating women. Tricks to accentuate or modify age.

3. Distinction of Poise
Thursday, March 20th, 2:30 p. m.—
"Savoir faire" in little things . . . and great. Professional secrets gleaned from women in other lands.

4. Successful Host and Guest
Friday, March 21st, 2:30 p. m.—
Technique that makes the successful host and guest. The art of appearing to the best advantage at all times.

5. Secrets of Fascination
Saturday, March 22nd, 2:30 p. m.—
The last . . . and one of the most intriguing of this series of lectures. Secrets of fascination that mean charm to women of every type, and can be applied to the younger generation where early training means so much.

Pittsburgh Colonists Guests at Costume Ball in Pasadena

NEWS from the Pittsburgh colonies in the West varies news about folks at Palm Beach and St. Petersburg. And the Hotel Huntington, Pasadena, Cal., has the gayest social life of Pasadena. Last night the event of the week took place, the Huntington Hilarities costume ball. And of course all the Pittsburgh folks at the resort were seen.

Virginia Willock was there and appeared in a chorus composed of the younger set at the resort.

Another Pittsburgh group was entertained by the W. S. Hornes with the C. B. Steffys, of Pittsburgh, as guests of honor.

Among the most recent arrivals at the hotel are the H. N. Van Voorhises. Mrs. Van Voorhis is often seen riding on the bridle paths of Pasadena, famous for their beauty. And Mrs. Willock and her daughter, Virginia, are the most indefatigible golfers at the resort.

FOR some time we've been hearing about tryouts for "The Wizzard of Oz" to be presented by the Pittsburgh Junior League as a part of the National League's children's theater program. And now I know the dates of production. The first performance will be given the morning of April 5, and the second the morning of April 12 in the Pitt Theater. The hour of both performances is 10:30. George Sharp, of the Pitt Players, has given the theater to the league for the two performances to show his interest in the project of the league. Mrs. Joseph M. Scribner is in charge of the production and Virginia Goldsbury is chairman of the dramatic committee of the League.

AN interesting concert will be held Tuesday night in Carnegie Music Hall when the Dramamount Singers will be the artists.

Sponsor Concert

The concert, did you know, is being given for the benefit of Pittsburgh singers who will go to Dramamount, a summer camp in New York state, to train under the direction of T. Carl Whitmer for one of his works, "There Were Four Kings."

Patrons for the concert Tuesday include Mrs. A. S. F. Kiester, Mrs. Frank B. Ingersoll, the Frank J. Lanahans, the A. A. Germains, the Ralph Butler Savages, Miss Jane McClure, the David Gordon Ashtons, Miss Josephine Waterhouse, Oscar Demmler, Miss Mary Jan Paul, Mrs. H. H. Harris, the Christian Ludebuehls, Mrs. H. S. APPROVE PLANS FOR SCHOOL

Adoption by the Board of Public Education of the architectural program for the new Arsenal Junior High School, to be erected at Thirty-ninth, Fortieth and Butler streets, is expected at the meeting of the board Tuesday. The program was approved last night by the committees of property and supplies, finance and administration.

The plans will be prepared by Schwab, Palmgreen and Merrick, architects. It was suggested by Dr. A. L. Lewin that the building, if possible, follow the lines of the old arsenal, from which the school derives its name.

Child Owes Life To Truant Officer

WASHINGTON, Pa., March 15.—Phyllis Cooper, 19-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Cooper, Monessen, owes her life to the fact that Truant Officer Martin A. Crawford happened along at just the right time. The child fell into the opening to a sewer. Crawford, passing a few seconds later, saw her hand in the water, which was four and a half feet deep. He saved her from drowning.

GROWERS FORM SOCIETY

An organization to be known as the Allegheny County Horticultural Association was formed yesterday by 30 fruit growers of this district. They were brought together by the Chamber of Commerce and the County Farm Bureau with the aim of growing better fruit and promoting the industry here. F. G. Retter, superintendent of Treesdale Farms, was named president of the organization which is to be affiliated with the state horticultural association.

Other officers elected were: Vice president, Robert Powers; secretary, Carlos E. Norton; assistant secretary, Edward Shenot, and treasurer, Samuel Simmons. It was decided that the members would make a tour of county orchards this spring and that they would conduct a general educational campaign among fruit growers.

SKIRTS GO TO NEW LENGTHS TO ACHIEVE GRACEFULNESS

—Sketched in Paris—

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, March 15.—This year of grace finds the skirt going to great length to achieve that simple flowing line that is so contributive to the charm of the mode as it is expressed this season. After dark ankles go into discreet retirement, concealed by long skirts reminiscent of the soft draperies of the Empire or early Grecian periods. The mode has a lien on line in its efforts to achieve grace and subtle distinction of silhouette. The band plays a part in the scheme sartorial that is quite obvious from even a superficial observation of the new models, for ever so many of the newer dresses have diagonal bands strategically placed. Big bertha still looms large and is used for both day and evening frocks and often with sleeved dresses. The capelet and the bolero are both very much in the mood of the mode, thus the bodice of the frock comes in for its share of attention, and the new spring frocks capture much of the freshness and charm of the boulevards on a blithe May day when all the world glows with the flush of youth.

WE THINK you will find much that is new and delightful in the smart little dinner frock from Hefern shown here. It is almost Grecian in its simplicity and length of gracefully falling line. A bertha-like scarf borders the decolletage and falls in a point back of the left shoulder. The softly draped bodice is bloused at the natural waistline. Exceedingly flattering and slimming are the lines of the long skirt, cut in points with a circular movement formed by deep godets. The material is crepe morocain, in the ever popular black, which this season is more than ever of prime importance.

THE lovely evening ensemble is from Thomas et Leon. The high belted frock is of heavy white georgette and the short coat of white panne velvet heavily trimmed in black fox. Strass buckles hold the shoulder straps at the front of the bodice and a similar buckle adds brilliance to the belt. Diagonal bands of georgette are set in at front of the bodice and crossing beneath the belt form a deep point in back from which starts the circular flounce just glimped at either side from the front view. A very deep circular godet is placed at the center front, then intricate "empiecements" creating a graceful line.

Ballad folk songs arr. by Vittorio Giannini

J. Fred Lissfelt

The Art Society offered its last recital of the present musical season in Carnegie Music Hall last night. Dusolina Giannini, an American soprano, now well-known on both sides of the Atlantic, pleased the audience insofar that some of her songs had to be repeated.

Since Giannini has sung here last, her voice has gained in power and brilliance, but has lost some of its ease, in fact, a noticeable vibrato is sounding a danger signal. It is a bright and beautiful organ, and accurately placed, capable also of much color in dramatic singing. Her declamation is at times somewhat emphatic, though she is careful in sensing the underlying meanings of her songs.

The program closely approached old-time song selections for the Art Society, and we were permitted a few great classic works. Giannini's Italian music varied from folk song and popular opera to modern lyrics. Her German group was excellent, with a few new touches that were finely schemed. She added Schumann's "Fruehlingsnacht."

The English songs showed how Frank LaForge has gone to seed as a composer, and how easily an audience falls for high notes.

Molly Bernstein played facile accompaniments.

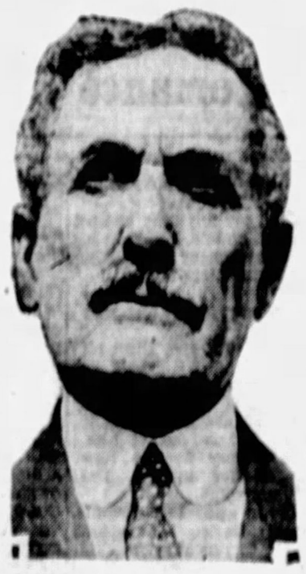
OWN STORY OF THE

Outbreak of the World War

When War Burst Upon the World In 1914 the Ambassador Was In Paris



IN THE first of a series of articles in tomorrow's Sunday Sun-Telegraph, some of the most vivid personal impressions of these stirring days in Paris are given by this outstanding of diplomatic figures in that historic crisis.

This remarkable narrative is from "Myron T. Herrick's Memoirs, An Autobiographical Biography," by Col. T. Bentley Mott, who was military attache at the American Embassy in Paris. From many intimate conversations, from letters and personal information, he has completed a revealing record of the late ambassador's notable and colorful life, especially as America's official representative in France.

Gossips Find Miss Gaynor So Charles Farrell Leaves Boat

By DOROTHY HERZOG

(Copyright, 1930, by Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, March 15.

PERHAPS more rumors center around the name of Janet Gaynor, these days, than any other flick-ite in the colony. The latest whispered that not only would she not portray the feminine lead in "Lilliom," as originally intimated, but because of her sudden jaunt to Honolulu, Fox has dissolved the contract.

Sol Wurtzel, production head of the Fox Studio, denied the rumors. He stated the feminine lead in "Lilliom" had never been settled upon. That the company is testing different girls for the part, just as they are testing different men, including Charlie Farrell. That Miss Gaynor is expected back in Hollywood around March 3. That the contract remains as is.

Janet Gaynor

GOSSIPS ARE BUSY

AT the time it became known Miss Gaynor had sailed for Honolulu and that Charlie Farrell, to avoid possible talk, had canceled his trip aboard the same ship, rumors sprang up with renewed vigor concerning Janet's separation from her husband, Lydell Peck. But Mr. Peck, denied this.

A curious item about Charlie prior to his leaving the boat was that he heard different passengers mentioning the presence aboard of movie stars. Charlie was walking around the deck at the time. He decided the stars mentioned were Joan Crawford and Doug Fairbanks Jr. Finally, he went to the purser to ask what stateroom they were in. Then it was he learned that Janet was aboard and that they two were the only flick-ites making the voyage. Therefore, Charlie abandoned his vacation to Honolulu.

Charles Farrell

A local reporter investigated when Charlie had booked passage and discovered it was weeks before Janet had. Nevertheless, rumor will rumor.

To top the old ones came the newer one of Miss Gaynor and Fox parting company. Mr. Wurtzel holds the studio reins in his hand and certainly knows of what he speaks when he puts the kibosh to this news bubble.

BEATRICE LILLIE DUE

BEATRICE LILLIE and Grace Moore steam into the old town today—unless something happens, of course. Miss Lillie arrives to traipse in a picture for Fox. Miss Moore—the latest Metropolitan opera sensation—to sing a picture for M. G. M. The two stopped off in Little Rock, Ark., my informant said. Miss Moore gave a concert to this lil' Southern city.

THELMA FEATURED

SCREENALITIES: Thelma Todd has been borrowed from the Hal Roach Kumpny to portray a featured fem role in Famous' musik-komik, "Follow Through," along with Nancy Carrol, Zelma O'Neill, Buddy Rogers, etc. This is Miss Todd's first picture for Famous Players in several years. Her return is auspicious. Incidentally, as she must play a golf champ in this vocalloid, the Todd is taking her golf lessons daily . . . Colleen Moore and her mother are enroute to St. Louis. Reason: To be present Sunday when brother Clive debuts in the stage hit, "June Moon." . . . Roger Davis made quite a personal hit when a Warner technicolor short yclept "The Sultan's Jester," bowed into Warner's Hollywood theater. Roger plays the role of the jester and it's his job to make the sultan laugh. A job, as jobs go . . . well, I'll be seeing you.

NEW PICTURES TODAY, STAGE AND SCREEN BILLS MONDAY

Monday night the curtain will rise in the Alvin on the second of the series of Victor Herbert operettas, "Mlle. Modiste." The Viennese prima donna, Fritzi Scheff, is featured.

Edith King is enjoying rehearsals of "It Pays to Advertise," which the George Sharp Players will present in the Pitt next week, because the role she enacts is that of a business woman. Miss King has always had a hankering for business and, before she went on the stage, spent considerable time in the office of her father.

NEW FILMS TODAY

"The Furies," talk film featuring H. B. Warner and Lois Wilson, opens today on the Warner screen.

Regis Toomey, featured player with Evelyn Brent in "Framed," a story of the underworld, coming to the R-K-O Sheridan Square today, just couldn't help being an actor. While attending the University of Pittsburgh, he earned his extra money as a prop boy in a local theater.

Victor Graff begins his farewell week in the Harris today. The screen talkie is "Cohens and Kellys in Scotland," with Charlie Murray and George K. Sydney.

MONDAY OPENINGS

Polly Moran, comedienne, plays the principal comedy role in "The Girl Said No," William Haines' new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer comedy, which comes to the Penn Monday.

Catherine Dale Owen, who scored with John Gilbert in "His Glorious Night," was directed in her second picture by Lionel Barrymore, who launched her to talking screen fame when she played opposite Lawrence Tibbett in "The Rogue Song." This Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer singing and talking drama comes to the Aldine Monday.

POLICE AND ROMANCE

The all-talking attraction in the Olympic is "Party Girl," with Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., and Marie Prevost in the leading roles.

Earnest Torrence and Dorothy Sebastian are cast opposite William Boyd in his latest picture, "Officer O'Brien," current in the Enright.

LOCAL MUSIC MAKERS, SILENT FILMS IN GAYETY

By MILDRED FILLMORE

A large orchestra, overflowing the pit and extending into the boxes, launched the presentation of silent pictures with musical accompaniment by living musicians in the Gayety last night. A few brief years ago this was the order of things. But now it is a novelty—and, as presented by Umberto Egizi and his 50 Pittsburgh musicians, known as the Cine-Symphony, it is an entertaining novelty.

In addition to the film and its orchestral accompaniment there is an overture, a medley of popular tunes by a 30-piece jazz orchestra, an atmosphere prologue and several other stage features. All of which win approval. And this goes for Alfred Gallipoli's scenic effects also.

EUROPEAN CINEMA

The screen feature is "Hungarian Rhapsody," a UFA production. It is crowded with the craftsmanship of the German cinema school. Its story concerns an officer in the Hussars and his romance with a farmer's daughter. A triangle complex is there and the green-eyed monster has a peep in. But happy days arrive at the end.

An outstanding episode depicts the unexpected and early morning arrival of a general at an army barracks. The officers are just finishing an all-night revel. But they certainly scamper out of it when the bugle calls.

MUSIC WINS APPLAUSE

Willy Fritsch, Lil Dagover and Dita Parlo, all of whom have been seen by American audiences before, play the lead roles.

Last night's opening was something of a gala event. William Robson and tuxedo were in the lobby with a glad hand for every one. And after the overture, which sent a large audience into enthusiastic applause, there were speeches and flowers. Today the performances go on a continuance basis, running from 11 a. m. until 11 p. m.

PICTURE IN ENRIGHT HAS ROMANCE, COPS, MELODRAMA

By HOWARD L. BROWNING, JR.

"Officer O'Brien," in the Enright, hasn't a song or a dance among its flickers. But it has the right faces, just the right expressions, just the right Irish sentiment, just the right father-and-son-love make it a sticky, enjoyable romantic melodrama.

Gangland meets its match in "Officer O'Brien." It gets the heroine's brother, it gets Dad O'Brien. Earnest Torrence. O'Brien, senior, is a crook, his son is the bravest cop. The father hates policemen. But he and his son, alias William Boyd, strike it off drippingly. You'll like them.

The girl, a telephone operator at headquarters, has been injected for feminine interest. Without her the film would be artistically better. With her, her quarrel with O'Brien must be settled, an anti-climax must be filmed. But her beautiful smile nearly justifies her.

Best set: The courtroom. Best sound sequence: Father O'Brien returning from jail, meeting a buddy on the Pullman. Listen to those rails click!

Buddy Paige is your master of ceremonies this week. Jay Mills has another engagement. The direct anithesis of Mills, Paige doesn't show up to advantage.

The orchestra is its usual excellent self. Its novelty feature is funny. The chorus is poorly drilled. The Eline Sisters and their characterizations of Geo. Washington, Esq., of a Bowery couple, are funny.

Britain and Chile Advance Diplomats

LONDON, March 15.—(AP.)—King George has approved raising the status of Great Britain's diplomatic representative in Chile to the rank of ambassador. The Chilean minister in London also will become an ambassador.

With Walter Winchell On Broadway

NEW YORK, March 15.

MAN ABOUT TOWN

WHEN the pseudo fun places and the other Broadwayward dives begin to grate on the nerves there is always that urge to "discover" something you've never seen before, although it practically has been right under your nose all the while . . . Take frinstance, the oldest saloon in New York . . . Probably the only old-fashioned saloon in the town, where you do not have to knock, or ring a bell, and ask for Eddie . . .

Walter Winchell

You walk right in and gargle delicious Golden Wedding rye highs for two-bits a shot up against the bar, which is this long! . . . It is five miles south of Forty-second street and a block this way from Broadway . . . And the walls are choked with your favorite actress's photo in the lewd, and after-theater-time, the Main Stem terpsichorines hasten to do a Helen Morgan on the bar, and otherwise make boop-oop-a-doopee . . . It is, to spare words, the salooniest place in town!

WERE THEY MAD!

JUST as enchanting a spot is the new Cocoanut Grove on One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street, this side of Eighth avenue, where the floor revue isn't fancy, but where the cast use the same undressing room . . . You remember that gag about the one-night-stand troupe which was touring the provinces. Well, the startled men and women in the show demanded to know from the veteran opry house manager if he thought they were going to dress in the only room set aside for them . . . "These are all ladies and gentlemen!" thundered the leading man, "and they must have separate rooms!" . . . "What's the matter," indifferently answered the smalltowner, "are they mad at each other?" . . . At any rate, Louis Armstrong, the most torrid of the horn-tooters and blue-shooers, is at the Cocoanut Grove, and his delightful specialties serve to entice the bored-with-Broadway diversion seekers, on Sunday eves, particularly, when Armstrong offers an endless routine of terrifically-tempoed tunes.

DROOLIN' TONIGHT?

AND if the attractions at the Cotton Club, Connie's Inn and The Nest have been breathlessly enjoyed, there is Dickie Wells' newly-opened hot-spot in the latter 130s which he calls "The Drool Inn" . . . "Droolin" incidentally doesn't mean what you imagine . . . "Droolin'" is Harlemese, it appears, for "galavantin'" or "steppin' out" . . . And it is where if They Talk Out of Turn, the dapper bouncer wastes no queries or explanations, and you fly out as though you were on wings . . . But what makes it a most distinctive hide-away is that the cuisine is excellent and you may devour a ham steak so delicious that it melts in your mouth, candied yams (yum-yum), hot muffins, sliced tomato and pickle and java, all for, s'helpme—40 cents! . . . Fifty cents if you ask for hen-fruit . . . But then there is the ace of the oriental places . . . The Pageant on Delancey St. . . . Where before you order the grandest chow-mein, suey or soandso, you whet your appetite with the tastiest pork dipped in bird-seed . . . And the almond-eyed host, last-named Lee, entertains you in Jewish . . . Lee can speak Jewish better than you . . . Vell, den you!

ROMANCE IS HERE

KELLY'S on Houston near Bleecker, where the proprietor, a former fighter, still draws the tall millinery crowd . . . And where Elinor Terry, whose torso reminds you of Mae West's, warbles saucy ditties, one of which packs a Carnera punch . . . Kelly, by the way, is an Italian! . . . And among the memorable things in his exciting career is that Tommy Lyman was his pet star . . . Lyman drew the swells all the way down there by making "Come To Me, My Melancholy Baby," famous all over again 11 years after it was published . . . And it was Kelly who one yawning there, introducing Irving Berlin to Ellin Mackay, which gives you an idea how romantic a spot it is.

WHITE WAY WHITES

THAT'S the fascinating part of this racket . . . You never know from where your next paragraph is coming . . . Take last night frinstance . . . As we ankled out of the office into 45th Street and turned west to Third Avenue seeking a cab, a policeman chirped: "Howya?" . . . We returned the salutation . . . "You don't remember common people like cops since you got a break, do you?" he added . . . "So sorreh," was our retort. "can't place your body" . . . "You don't mean to tell me," continued the bluecoat, "that you don't remember Whitey? Why, I pounded the Broadway beat for 10 years and knew you when—yeah away back when you were among the lay-offs in front of the Palace!"

"Oh, sure!" we jockeyed. "I remember. I didn't make you at first. Howz things and how come they got you over here five blocks, east of Broadway, where nothing ever happens?"

NOT BRAGGING

"I DON'T like to brag," he said dejectively, "but ten years over there on Broadway and you get to know everybody and like 'em, an' I suppose they liked me. So I was shifted because I couldn't arrest nobody."

"No kiddin'?" we said. "That's certainly interesting. But tell me, Whitey, how does it feel being away over here on Third Avenue where there's seldom any excitement? Where you've got to walk two blocks to reach a speakeasy? Don't you miss all that? . . . Still," we said as an after-thought, "it must have been a relief, eh? After ten years of the Broadway lights?"

"That's just where you're wrong," glumly replied Whitey, "After ten years on Broadway, kid, where the lights at least break the monotony, you sorta go a little crazy over here on Third Avenue—waitin' for the traffic lights on the 'L' pillars to switch from red to green, an' green to red."

Poor Whitey.

WHAT YOU MISSED

PERHAPS you were at the play or your radio outfit failed you when the pride of the Winchell tribe made faces at the WABC microphone the other night . . . At any rate, we told our alleged listeners our favorite O. Henry classic, the title of which we theft-ed for this column . . . And because a good fable is always interesting a second, third or tenth time, here is part of it . . . O. Henry once searched all over Manhattan to find a "typical Man About Town." But while the critics, reporters, night-loafers, head-waiters and other locals pretended they knew the type, they could never find one for O. Henry.

Finally, after many months devoted to searching for "a typical Man About Town," O. Henry decided to give it up. While crossing a street in the Herald Square sector (or wasn't it?) a speeding vehicle struck him and knocked him colder than a swelled-head's hello.

He remained unconscious for several hours.

"Want to see how it happened?" she said.

O. Henry read it. The report closed with these lines: "... the victim was rushed to Bellevue, where it was said his injuries were not serious. He appeared to be a typical Man About Town."

NOT BEING A KIBITZER WE CAN'T CALL HAND STANLEY HOLDS

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

The wildly heralded "Take-a-Chance Week" show of the Warners got underway in the Stanley yesterday. Like a deck of cards, it has its aces—and its deuces.

We aren't going to be a "kibitzer" and queer the 'game' by calling the cards, or rather the acts. But we'll venture a few hints.

The screen feature deals out a lot of fun. It has as its heroine, a wealthy young girl who wants to be talked about, and as its hero, a young fellow who is startled into bolting and bolts through a window of her room. But he doesn't continue so bashful as the reels go by.

And we guess we won't be guilty of disclosing a secret if we tell you the girl is his at the final fadeout.

It is a gay and lively film, presented by a gay and lively cast.

As for the stage, it strives for a better-than-the-average revue. Frowns though are in order for a dance called 'Stockyard Shuffle," or some such. It is our idea of vulgarity.

The best part of the stage bill is a comedian—we don't know his name so couldn't tell you it if we wanted to—who really is a small-sized "scream."

The show—both on stage and screen—is not startling. It follows the Stanley's usual presentation style. However, the "gambling" atmosphere is created. There is even a flashy barker "barking" before the box office. And the "game" is on the level. If you don't expect a royal flush, it is worth an admission stake to sit in on it.

Camera Question Box

The Sun-Telegraph's "Camera Question Box" each day will ask a question of public interest to Pittsburghers and will photograph those interviewed.

Today's questions: Is true Americanism menaced by the decreasing birth rate in the better educated class families and in the "average American home?"

Miss Evans

IRENE EVANS, North Side, waitress: "I don't think Americanism is menaced. The rich should have as many children as the poor, though. People shouldn't have any more babies than they can take care of."

Miss Thomas

MISS NELLIE THOMAS, Downtown, secretary: "I don't think it's hurting the country a lot. I don't think the children of the rich are such a lot of good, anyhow. They don't look very much."

Capt. Morris

CAPT. JOHN P. MORRIS, Rogers Field, aviator: "I don't believe Americanism is being menaced. Because all classes are gradually being educated. What you should do is give the poor birth control as well as the rich. Look what happened to China and Japa without birth control."

Patsy Munno

PATSY MUNNO, East End, laborer: "It is good for the country to have enough babies. The rich man's children are often failures, anyhow. The poor man's offspring make better citizens, even though they do have such a tough time."

Miss Kemats

BESSIE KEMATS, North Side, waitress: "Sure, that's bad for the people. Poor people should have less children—only as many as they can afford to raise. Rich and educated folk should have plenty of children.

Mrs. Jenkins

MRS. BILLIE JENKINS, East End, stenographer: "Why, absolutely. I think the educated class should have more children, the uneducated, less. I think it's a sin to bring babies into the world without money to raise them. It hurts the country."

Do you like your room? If you don't find a better one. There are plenty advertised in the Classified Section of this newspaper.

ALLEGHENY COUNTY
'Public Improvements Promote Progress'
Convinced that public improvements exert an important influence upon the progress of any community, the Board of County Commissioners of Allegheny County on January 1, 1924, initiated a program of major public works, many of which are already effectively serving the citizens, while others of vital importance are being rapidly brought to completion.
During the year 1929, upon the approval of the County Commissioners, a very effective system of direction signs was devised for the purpose of guiding traffic to their destinations throughout the County. For many years there have been frequent complaints that the County Highway System was deficient in this respect. At practically every road intersection there have now been erected large metal signs, with directions to the various villages and communities shown in bold, readily readable letters.

Davison Poco-Mixed Coke Finds Good Market in Vicinity of Pittsburgh

On Tuesday a large party of Pittsburgh district Neville Poco-Mixed Coke dealers visited the plant of Davison Coke and Iron Company on Neville Island and were shown how this clean, smokeless fuel is produced.

The enthusiasm shown by these gentlemen who supply Pittsburgh's heating fuel, reflects the favorable reception of Neville Poco-Mixed Coke by consumers. Although this better coke, in sizes suitable for domestic heating furnaces, was placed on the market, through fuel dealers, by Davison Coke and Iron Company late in November, these dealers almost immediately had a demand for a daily increasing tonnage. Modest claims on quality of this coke by the producer were so far surpassed that fuel dealers soon found their best salesmen were consumers; telling their neighbors about Neville Poco-Mixed Coke.

SMOKELESS FUEL

Each year has found the smoke and soot question receiving more consideration, and authorities on the subject point out that 60 per cent of this nuisance can be eliminated by use of proper heating fuel.

In Neville Poco-Mixed Coke, Pittsburgh now has a home product that will burn well in heating equipment now in use, and without smoke or soot, giving a uniform, penetrating heat. The task of furnace tending is greatly lessened, and the cost over a period is comparatively low, as three tons of this fuel, burned according to instructions, should last as long and produce as much heat as five tons of good bituminous coal.

MAKES IRON

The location of this important industry on Neville Island, that, in addition to coke, produces pig iron and Green Bag Cement, places it in position to give unexcelled service by truck, rail or barge and to insure its dealers having available, at all times, an adequate supply of its products.

Pittsburgh's importance as a manufacturing center is greatly increased by this new industry.

Cleveland Bank Cuts Rate To 4 Per Cent

WASHINGTON, March 15.—The Cleveland Federal Reserve rediscount rate has been reduced ½ per cent to 4 per cent, the Federal Reserve Board announced. The previous rate of 4½ per cent had been in effect since February 7, last.

The Cleveland rate is effective today on all classes of paper of all maturities, the Federal Reserve Board announced.

The New York Reserve Bank made a similar reduction yesterday.

FIRM TO BUILD $100,000 PLANT

WHEELING, W. Va., March 15.—(AP.)—Plans for the immediate construction of a $100,000 plant at McMechen, a suburb, by the Wheeling Tube Company were announced by the Ohio Valley Industrial Corporation, local industrial promotion organization. Wheeling Tube was granted a charter March 10.

The plant, which is to be completed within four months, will cover eight acres. Welded steel tubing will be manufactured, with an estimated output of 2,000 tons a month. Two hundred men will be employed at the outset.

R. R. HEAD SEES TRADE GAIN

NEW YORK, March 15.—No decision has yet been reached as to what action will be taken by the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific railroads regarding their consolidation as partially approved by the interstate commerce commission, Ralph Budd, chairman of the Great Northern, said yesterday.

"Some difference of opinion exists among large stockholders regarding conditions which the commission made a part of its approval," he said, "executives of the two lines are now in the West where various problems are being taken up in detail."

Speaking of conditions on his line, Mr. Budd said that both the gross and net operating income last month were less than in the corresponding year, but, "judging from early March car-loadings, there appears to be a slight picking-up occurring in business in the northwest."

Newsprint Deal Reported on In Canada

QUEBEC, March 15.—Rumors are current in financial circles that a huge merger of newsprint companies operating in Canada is developing. While conversations may not have reached a stage to permit any announcement, it is understood the main preliminary details are fairly well rounded out.

Assets of the companies likely to participate are well over $500,000,000 and have combined newsprint production of over 6,000 tons daily.

It is said the merger will center around Abitibi, that preliminary negotiations have almost been completed and Canadian International Paper and Canada Power and Paper are likely to enter the merger. This would leave Price Bros. the only larger company outside the merger.

Recommends Cut In Apple Rates

WASHINGTON, March 15.—Rates on apples in carload lots from points in Virginia, West Virginia and Maryland to various destinations east of the Mississippi river would be found unreasonable by the Interstate Commerce Commission under recommendations presented today by Examiner Arthur Kettler.

While recommending lower rates from the Cumberland-Shenandoah-Potomac district, the examiner held the complaints did not support their contention that the railroads are unduly favoring competing apple producing centers located principally in Western New York.

OIL AND COAL EXPORTS UP

WASHINGTON, March 15.—Exports of domestic crude and refined oil in the six-months period ended December 31, 1929, amounted to 80,281,330 barrels, an increase of 8,408,714 barrels over exports in corresponding period of 1928, according to Department of Commerce. In the same period, exports of domestic coal increased only 195,706 tons over the 1928 period to 11,313,769 tons.

Value of petroleum exports in the last six months of 1929 was $272,974,895, increase of $17,002,950 over value of exports in last six months of 1928. Value of petroleum exports in January this year declined $391,566 to $44,464,311, compared with 1929 month, reflecting the lower prices prevailing.

Value of coal exports, while increasing $2,031,029 during the final six months of 1929 to $60,200,232, declined $204,736 in January to $7,919,861.

STUDY TANGLE IN FOX SUITS

NEW YORK, March 15.—(INS.)—With a truce declared by opposing factions in the court battle over the finances of the Fox Film Corporation and Fox Theaters Company, attorneys today studied the maze of suits now pending.

William Fox, founder of the companies, applied for an injunction in Federal Court yesterday restraining minority stockholders from proceeding with a suit filed in state court to halt a refinancing plan. This will be argued on Tuesday.

Receivership actions will be heard in Federal Court Monday. Should Judge Coleman Grant sanction the receivership five other actions in the litigation now pending will have no force.

European Steel Cartel Extended

PARIS, March 15.—The steel cartel has been prolonged on the present basis until October and present tonnage quotas will be maintained during the second quarter. Details of new sales organizations are still being worked out.

Comite de Forges denies rumors of participation of American interests in the cartel.

Bond Offerings For Week Higher

NEW YORK, March 15.—New bond offerings this week totaled $184,699,000, compared with $94,973,000 last week, and $82,481,700 in the corresponding week of 1929.

Austin to Ship Cars Early in May

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

SHIPMENTS of the new Austin car are scheduled to start about May 1. Production of the first cars will be started within about two weeks.

Machinery is being installed in the new plant at Butler. The final shipments of equipment are to be on hand within the next 10 days and the complete assembly line will be ready for operation within a short time.

Orders have been placed for materials and parts for cars for the early months of production. The assembly of cars will be expanded as rapidly as an organization can be properly trained and machinery can be put into working order.

To Make 500 Cars a Day

OFFICIALS of the company plan to reach a production of 500 cars a day in September. By that time between 650 and 750 men will be employed in the production department. This will be in addition to the office force.

Sale of the output of the early months is assured. The American Austin Car Company, Inc., has booked orders from dealers for 109,000 cars. This is in addition to orders for 60,000 cars from dealers who are under investigation and whose standing has not yet been determined.

To Show Profit in July

WHILE the results to be expected still depend largely on the speed with which production problems are solved, officials state that they expect operations to be established on a profitable basis in July. By that time a sufficient number of cars will be moving from the assembly lines for the company to achieve satisfactory production costs.

Exceptionally good results have been secured in building up a dealer organization. At present about half of the sales territory in the United States has been covered although the production of cars on a quantity basis is still some time ahead.

Novelty in This Market

THE Austin car will be a distinctly new departure for the American market. It will be an exact duplicate of the English Austin Seven except in minor details which have been changed to meet particular requirements of the American market.

The car will be only 9 feet 2 inches long, over all. It will be 3 feet 10 inches wide and will have a road clearance of 8¾ inches. This is far smaller than any car now made in this country.

A high degree of riding comfort is claimed for the new car. Exceptional efficiency and economy are calimed with a four-cylinder motor with a bore of 2.2 inches and a three-inch stroke. The gasoline consumption will be 42 miles to a gallon with one quart of oil to 1,500 miles.

Expected Markets

ON a recent visit to this country Sir Herbert Austin, president of the British company and a director of American Austin, stated that a favorable reception had been given the car in every country where production had been started except in the Netherlands.

He expects the greatest volume of sales to be to corporations using large fleets of cars for salesmen, to users of cars for light deliveries, to families requiring a second car and to an entirely new market which has never been attracted by transportation at the present available prices.

Employment Good In Food Industry

NEW YORK, March 15.—Employment is normal or slightly over normal in a large part of the food industry, according to Colby M. Chester, Jr., president of General Foods Corporation, in an interview today as he released the annual report of his organization to 32,000 stockholders.

General Foods operates plants in 40 cities and sells more than 80 food products. Employment in practically all these plants is normal or slightly above normal, according to Mr. Chester.

Auburn Motor to Step Up Production

AUBURN, Ind., March 15.—Production schedules of Auburn Automobile Company have been increased effective this week to 2,500 complete cars a month compared with production last month of 1,869, R. H. Faulkner, vice president, said today.

Divisions of the company both here and at Connersville, including the Central Manufacturing Company, coach building unit at Connersville, will increase production to the new schedule this week and further increases may be made shortly, Mr. Faulkner indicated.

Building Trend Turns Definitely Upward

NEW YORK, March 15.—Early March business indicators show the usual instability and irregularity of March weather and basic industrial activity in the United States continues to slacken, says The Business Week in its report covering the week ending March 15.

The secondary weakness of business that developed in late February, foreshadowed by the downward drift of stock prices for the month, may run on some way into March, but there is some reason this week to hope it will not be prolonged.

Steel is down, somewhat sharply, for the third consecutive week, in contrast to last year's roaring upward swing, and the spring peak seems farther away. A belated chill of caution about consumer demand has caught steel and automobiles. Coal production continues to slide, and even oil is running more slowly. The building trend, however, is definitely upward after some hesitancy in the middle of February.

Trade, too, has felt a touch of spring and begins to stir encouragingly. Non-bulk carloadings have further cut their deficit to about 2 per cent below last year and have at last practically caught up with 1928. Money turnover outside stock-trading centers also is swinging somewhat nearer last year's levels. Commodity prices are still feeble, but their sinking spells are growing less frequent and acute.

STEEL BUYING CONTINUES DECLINE

February Steel Ingot Production Was 83 Per Cent of Present Capacity

By B. E. V. LUTY.

Sometimes the best signs as to the course of affairs in steel are found within the steel market, sometimes the best cue is obtained from general trade and financial conditions. At the present time both classes of signs are lacking in conclusiveness.

Considering first conditions within the steel trade, there has been a swing in the volume of buying and production contrary to all seasonal precedent and even more notably contrary to what would be expected in the peculiar conditions lately existing. The volume of steel buying culminated early in February and the peak rate of production fell at about the middle of the month, since then there has been a decline in the neighborhood of 5 per cent. Precedents show seasonal peak production in March, unless, as in each of the last two years, it comes later. Certainly the general opinion at the beginning of the year was that in view of special conditions the peak would come later instead of earlier than usual.

FEBRUARY RATE

Steel ingot production in February was 86.43 per cent of the old capacity rating, dated December 31, 1928, or approximately 83 per cent of present capacity. The peak rate was 84 to 85 per cent, at the middle of the month, and the rate in the last week has been 80 per cent or a shade less. Some lower estimates than 80 per cent have been made this week, but they are made by the same observers whose February estimates were shown to have been too low by the official report, and apparently they have not modified their systems in the light of this fresh information.

It is only a theory, but it is a plausible and attractive one, that steel will shortly come back, that with spring not yet arrived either by the calendar or by the weather, steel cannot so early have seen its best days for the half year.

TRADE OUTLOOK

From the viewpoint of general trade and financial conditions a similarly confusing picture is presented. The fallacy of the idea that interest rates foreshadow the volume of industrial and building activity has been indicated by various exceptions. It was early in 1928 that interest rates began to rise and the higher they went the more active steel became. Fabricated structural steel lettings promptly mounted to a pace far beyond all previous records. Lately interest rates have been coming down and last Thursday the New York Federal Reserve Bank reduced its rediscount rate from 4 to 3½ per cent. It would be well to remember that in commodity markets a decline in price generally represents a decrease in demand.

As to general trade a plausible theory is that the influence of the stock market collapse, purely as a stock and financial affair, was over-estimated. Men would realize that such effects would not last long and thus they would be right in line to overestimate improvement to follow recovery from that particular occurrence. There would be left, however, the long range effects of the special bulge in general industrial activity that ran from about the middle of 1928 to the middle of 1929.

Manager

G. W. G. SNYDER

Mr. Snyder, manager of the Architects' and Builders' Exhibit.

GENERAL TRADE UNCHANGED

Conditions during the current week have shown comparatively little change, the volume of business as a whole continuing below normal and still below the average of a year ago, according to R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review. Retail trade continues rather quiet and jobbers of men's and women's wearing apparel, dry goods, etc., report business still slow although improving slightly. There is a moderate demand for dry goods and millinery but future orders are not very numerous. While some improvement is noted in the jewelry business, it is still comparatively quiet. Sales of automobiles continue below normal, with stock of used cars, unusually large. Lumber and building supplies, while moving slightly better, continue slower than normal.

Industrial operations are at a slightly lower rate, although some lines report a slight increase in orders. Manufacturers of electrical equipment are operating steadily while producers of sanitary equipment and plumbing supplies report business quiet.

Crude oil production has shown a sharp decline, while demand for refined products is increasing. Production of bituminous coal is at a slightly lower rate, with demand quiet and price showing little change. Western Pennsylvania grades of run-of-mine coal are quoted per net ton at mines as follows: Steam coal, $1.25 to $1.75; coking coal, $1.50 to $1.75; gas coal, $1.65 to $1.75; steam slack, 80 to 90 cents; gas slack, $1.00 to $1.10.

Mexico Oil Exports Higher in January

TAMPICO, March 15.—Mexican crude oil exports during January amounted to 1,577,983 barrels, a gain of 125,855 barrels over December but 682,670 barrels less than January, 1929, exports.

Mexican Eagle Oil Company was the largest shipper during the month with a total of 638,550 barrels, an increase of 256,505 barrels over December, but 174,747 barrels under the company's exports in January, 1929. Pan-American Petroleum & Transport Company was next with 391,903 barrels, a reduction of 24,101 barrels from December, and 98,622 barrels less than company exported in January, 1929.

NEW BUILDING MATERIALS SHOWN

Architects' Exhibit to Be Expanded By New Products on Display

The Architects' and Builders' Exhibit at 514 Seventh avenue is being steadily expanded as additional manufacturers add to the already extensive displays.

The exhibit, which is permanent and free to the public, is being extended to the second floor of the building. Paul Coleman, secretary of the organization, states that it is planned to eventually use all four floors.

The exhibit provides a convenient way for the architect, the contractor or the individual planning a home to study and compare all the most recent developments in materials and equipment.

SAVES TIME

An opportunity is given to see at first hand a wide range of products within a few moments. Examination of such a large number of materials at individual sales rooms would be a task requiring weeks of time.

Although the exhibit has been open less than a year, it is exceptionally complete. It includes light structural steel, brick and tile products, hardware, heating plants, plumbing fixtures, electrical appliances, roofing materials, plasters, stuccos and a wide range of other products.

NEW PRODUCTS

A study of the products is a revelation to one who is not thoroughly familiar with the vast number of new building products being placed on the market each year.

Such new products as aluminum and copper shingles completely revolutionize all the old conceptions of the materials available for the modern home. A model bathroom has what appears to be a tile wall but the visitor learns that the material is really zinc.

Countless other surprises are in store for everyone interested in taking advantage of the most advanced engineering thought in construction work and in design.

The officers of the organization are C. A. Sweadner, president; G. W. G. Snyder, manager, and Paul Coleman, secretary.

The advisory board is composed of M. Nirdlinger, of the Pittsburgh Chapter, American Institute of Architects; Roy R. Cappe, Pittsburgh Real Estate Board, and William F. Trimble, Jr., of the Builders Exchange of Pittsburgh.

END OF STEEL SLUMP SEEN

YOUNGSTOWN, O., March 15.—Steel makers believe that the decline in buying which has been in evidence for several weeks has been halted and will be followed by an improved trend. Meanwhile, they are preparing to take a firmer stand on prices. Leading interests declare that a firm price stand is necessary at this time if the market is to become stabilized.

Recent scrap prices are holding, and the market ranges from $16.50 to $17.

Important steel consumers are beginning to show more interest in second-quarter requirements and in prices which they will be obliged to pay.

So far as the Valley mills are concerned, the automobile industry will be the determining factor in the volume of business to be placed in the first half.

Companies with highly diversified production are finding business this month about equal to the volume for the first two months of the year.

Western Electric Co. Installations Grow

NEW YORK, March 15.—Western Electric Company announces the installation of the 5,000th sound system. There are 3,629 theaters equipped with Western Electric sound equipment in the United States, 587 installations in Great Britain, 216 in Canada, 210 in Australia and the remainder in theaters in 37 other countries.

EASIER CREDIT TO REVIVE BUILDING

Col. Ayres Says Lower Money Will Stimulate Corporate Construction

CLEVELAND, March 15.—Col. Leonard P. Ayres, noted statistician and vice president of the Cleveland Trust Company, believes that the present abundant credit supplies will create a demand for bonds and thus bring increased municipal and corporation building activity. In his latest bulletin on the business situation, Col. Ayres says:

The hope for improvement in business rests on the fact that credit has become cheap and is becoming plentiful. If cheap and abundant credit could effect a recovery in building, and especially in residence construction, the prompt return of prosperity would be made sure. Building booms destroy depressions. So far this year the progressive easing of credit conditions has had a stimulating effect on security prices, but it has not succeeded in checking the long decline in residence building. The reason for this does not seem far to seek.

BOOMS OVERLAPPED

During several years past the American people have used truly enormous sums of our national savings for two sorts of investments, the purchase of homes and the purchase of securities. It was a period of prosperity in two phases. First, every city had its real estate boom, and then every exchange had its stock market boom. The two kinds of booms overlapped and intermingled. Finally both booms flattened out, the real estate boom going down first. Probably it is true that the nation-wide shrinkage of values, from the top figures to the present ones, has been greater on the real estate than it has been on the securities.

CREDIT NOW RELEASED

While the two sets of booms were going forward great amounts of credit were being extended in the form of loans to help purchase real estate, and loans to help buy securities. Now that both booms have come to an end there is ample opportunity to compare the results of lending on real estate with those of lending on securites, and the comparison is painfully to the disadvantage of the real estate loans. Foreclosures and tax sales are everywhere numerous. Many building and loan companies have suspended. Almost every bank has taken losses on its real estate loans, and is still taking them.

BASIS FOR BOND MARKET

Lenders on securities suffered no such losses. Call loans in Wall Street proved to be entirely safe. Few banks are worried about their collateral loan accounts. The result is that abundant credit supplies do not now make second mortgage loans available to the prospective home builder, but they do stimulate the stock market. In time they will create a demand for bonds, which will bring increased municipal and corporate building activity, but the process is a slow one.

Allis-Chalmers Co. Not to Cut Prices

CHICAGO, March 15.—General O. H. Falk, president of Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Company, when asked whether his company would reduce tractor prices along with International Harvester, said his company had no such plan under consideration.

Officials of Oliver Farm Equipment Company state they have no intention of reducing tractor prices.

Deere and Company, J. I. Case Company and Minneapolis Moline Power Implement Company officials said they would make no definite statement as the matter had not come up for consideration.

President

CHARLES B. HORTON

Mr. Horton, president of the Horton Insurance Agency.

TRADE VOLUME IMPROVES

WASHINGTON, Mar. 14.—The dollar volume of business during the week ended March 8 showed a decided improvement over recent weeks but was lower than for the same week of 1929, according to the weekly statement of the Department of Commerce. Reports from the steel industry, covering the latest reported week, indicate lowered activity as compared both with the previous week and the same week of last year. Bituminous coal production and crude petroleum output were also smaller than for either prior period.

The general level of wholesale prices was lower during the week than for either the previous week or for the same period of 1929. Cotton and iron and steel prices also declined from both prior periods. Wheat and copper prices for the latest reported week showed no change from the previous week but were lower than a year ago.

Loans and discounts of Federal Reserve Member Banks at the end of the week were larger than at the end of either the preceding week or of the corresponding week of last year. Prices for stocks also advanced from the previous week but were lower than a year ago. Interest rates declined from both prior periods. Bond prices were fractionally higher than in the previous week but lower than a year ago.

Steel Firm Buys Site for Plant

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., March 15.—The Standard Steel Specialty Company, of West Mayfield, has purchased an 11-acre tract of land, on which three buildings are located, at Hammond, Ind., Ernest J. Wagner, president, announced. Plans are under way for the construction of a modern plant on the purchased site.

RECOMMENDS INSURANCE TRAINING

Agency President Sees Policies For Children As Important Factor

Life insurance as a constructive and basic element in education is just beginning to be recognized by educators and economists, according to Charles B. Horton, president of the Horton Insurance Agency, located in the Standard Life Building.

Mr. Horton said:

"A son does not have to be very old to understand that his father, in buying him a life insurance contract, is creating for him the beginning of an estate of his own. Very early in life he will look forward to the time when he personally will be able to take over the management of the estate. Younger than most people suspect, children can be taught wisdom in regard to spending which, after all, is real thrift.

"We believe that a boy, conscious of the fact that his father is investing in life insurance for him, will have a feeling of moral responsibility and increased self-respect. It will give him a pride in possession of property, teach him to avoid waste, and develop a habit for planning for the future.

AIDS THRIFT

"Your friends, whose far-seeing fathers purchased life insurance when they were young, will unhesitatingly declare that constructive habits of thrift, business judgment and a sense of money value came, not through school and college training, but in the extra curriculum of education in owning life insurance, and they will follow up this statement by saying that they have found life insurance to be their safest investment.

"Your boy will be happy in knowing that you have taken him in as a partner in this father-and-son investment and realize that this insurance bond is a much greater thing than the nickel-a-week burial benefit insurance he has heard his boy friends talk about."

Prospects for Glass Trade Doubtful

The flat glass market continues to be very quiet, according to the National Glass Budget. There is little, if any improvement in the demand for glass from either the producer or distributor. At this time it can be safely stated that the amount of business done during the first quarter of the year will be disappointing to interested firms. The amount of glass moved during the first three months of 1930 will be considerably below that of the corresponding period a year ago. It is believed that there will not be as much activity in the industry during the second quarter of the year as was in evidence in the comparative quarter of 1929.

There are conflicting reports current as to the stability of the markets. Although orders for plate glass are quite a bit below what they were a year ago, prices are weathering the lull in demand. A similar situation is said to exist in the rough and wired glass branches. With window glass, conditions are reported to be very unsatisfactory. Production is at a low point. An unofficial estimate made at the middle of the week placed factory output of window glass during February at less than 500,000 boxes each containing 50 square feet. Even at that it is doubtful if demand was equal to production.

Industry Not Enthused Over Washington

By B. C. FORBES

EMPLOYMENT reports are somewhat better.

Apparently, however, there has been delay in the speeding-up of construction urged by President Hoover. Certain corporation and industries comment—privately, of course—that Washington has been attacking them vehemently and at the same time imploring them to help out the administration by providing more work. Hoover critics complain that he has not displayed effective leadership qualities. Less biased citizens are disposed to suspend judgment until he has had a little more time to prove himself.

It is admitted all round that the Hoover regime has not yet inspired enthusiasm. And this unquestionably has an influence upon sentiment in the higher reaches of finance and industry.

SWIFT & CO., Armour & Co., Wilson & Co., Cudahy & Co., the four big packers, are among those asking Washington for what they call a square deal. Ten years ago, when under governmental attack, they consented to a court decree restraining them from owning and operating stock yards, selling foods other than meats and meat products, and operating retail stores.

The big four ask why 1,196 of the 1,200 meat packers in the United States should be allowed to do any or all of these things and only four packers forbidden to do it. A decade ago chain stores were comparatively few and not so powerful as they are today. Now one large chain store operates two meat packing plants and a big sausage factory. A Boston firm has completed a huge smoke house to smake its own meats. One Northwest packer owns and operates some 80 retail stores. A Texas packer sells practically all his output through his own retail outlets. New York City has a store that cuts all its own pork.

The Chicago packers also point out that one large combination of food concerns has now taken over an important Eastern meat packing establishment and will have its salesmen sell a complete line of wholesale groceries and meats. The packers are petitioning the Supreme Court to be put on the same footing as all other 1,196 packers.

Here we see big business vs. littler business. The court's decision is awaited with widespread interest.

PERSONALS: Thomas W. Lamont, who bears the brunt of running J. D. Morgan & Co., plans to sail for Europe before the end of this month. Mr. Lamont has put in a lot of work on the Bank of International Settlements, sponsored by the Young plan, which he helped to prepare.

Owen D. Young has been out in the West for a fortnight and is booked to make an important address at the University of California. He may make another talk in the Middle West on his way home. Oftener than once Mr. Young has gone far beyond the prevailing attitude of "capital" towards wage earners. His attitude towards farm relief is also called radical by most financiers and old-line economists. He is not afraid to say what he thinks.

Charles E. Mitchell, back from a business, combined with pleasure, trip to Cuba, where his bank has extensive interests, and Bermuda, where he played a couple of rounds of golf and half-a-dozen sets of tennis daily, told the reporters he had nothing to say about mergers or anything else. He wants to get his land legs and his bearings after his absence of several weeks. Wall street is rather inclined to expect further expansion by the National City. Mitchell is so dynamically aggressive that it isn't easy to picture him jogging along in a rut.

Albert H. Wiggin is still busy on his ambitious Chase National-Equitable Trust merger. For good measure, the $85,000,000 Interstate Trust Company will be thrown in if and when the big deal goes through, as it in all probability will. One or two very important changes in high-up personnel, I understand, will be made.

OIL stocks have made several false starts in the last few years. The start made this week may prove more substantial. The very biggest companies are the best regarded.

REDUCTION in the New York reserve rediscount rate to 3½ per cent emphasizes the anxiety of the Washington reserve authorities to make money abundantly available at low cost for industry, business and agriculture. It was dear money that finally killed the stock boom. Cheap money, if maintained, will in time stimulate another upward movement, but monetary changes rarely have drastic effect immediately.

The country could stand pronounced improvement in the bond and stock market. Sentiment needs a tonic.

Business Failures Higher for Week

NEW YORK, March 15.—The number of business failures in the United States remains relatively high, according to R. G. Dun & Co., with a total of 560 being reported for this week, an increase of 33 over last week's 527 defaults, and 100 above the 460 insolvencies reported for the corresponding week of 1929.

TAX SHEET NOT TRUE INDEX TO LOSSES

Profits on Stocks Tossed Away in Panic Offset Near Term Declines

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER.

NEW YORK, March 15.—Deflated speculators and ill advised investors, who were victims of last autumn's panic will take Uncle Sam into their confidence today, when they, in common with other more or less affluent Americans solemnly declare what their net income was for 1929.

Curiously enough, in spite of the human tendency, not to brag to the tax collector, numerous statements will not fully reveal the extent of the year's losses. One reason for this is that during the panicky weeks numerous operators of means, sorely in need of cash, took from their strong boxes gilt-edged stocks, acquired years previously at low prices, and tossed them on the market place for what they would bring. Even at panic prices such standard stocks, which had been acquired prior to 1928, showed substantial profits, which were taxable, and which offset near term trading losses on more recently acquired securities held on margin.

CAUSE OF DEBACLE

This analomous situation results from the fallacy in the internal revenue act, which treats capital gains as income. The British tax law, on the other hand, distinguished between capital gains and income. The failure of the American law to do so caused numerous rich men to over-stay the bull market. They were reluctant to take profits and report taxes. Accordingly, stocks developed a scarcity value, which was not warranted by economic conditions. When the public awoke to the fact, the debacle ensued.

An abundance of investable credit and capital is welling up, and will tend to restore normal business conditions. The country is on the eve of a growing supply of mortgage money for building. Although funds will become increasingly available for conservative first mortgages, the supply of second mortgage money will come more slowly. This is not because of a capital shortage, but because of a disinclination on the part of lenders to limit their profit without assuring themselves that they are also limiting their losses.

Of course, second mortgages as a class should not be condemned, as in ordinary times many of them are good. The newer tendency to allow the public to participate in common stock commitments in real estate is, however, a forward step, for it enables the risk bearer to get a full share of the profits, when and if realized.

MERGER FIGHT LOOMS

In spite of the approval by the directors of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube of the proposed merger with the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, reports from Ohio indicate that the consummation of the gigantic deal is by no means assured. From Cleveland comes word that Cyrus S. Eaton, who recently consummated the $350,000,000 Republic Steel Merger, controls enough stock in Youngstown to wield an effective veto. Strong efforts have ben made to sway his opinion, but at this writing I am informed that he is still adamant.

His present maneuver is to assure the automony of Youngstown Sheet and Tube, rather than to seek to absorb it by Republic, Bethlehem's new and still somewhat smaller competitor. Mr. Eaton's policy fits in with the local pride of the people of Youngstown, who have been waxing eloquent about keeping a home industry under automonous control. Although Mr. Eaton, his affiliated companies and associates are said to control less than 200,000 shares of Youngstown, his spokesmen indicate that his group and new associates will control the votes of 500,000 shares—enough to block the two-thirds vote needed—and a proxy fight has been promised.

The decline of the rediscount rate of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York to 3½ per cent is further evidence that the power of the central bank system has been definitely mobilized to contribute to business stabilization. The system now has a bias toward cheap money, and this is expected to prove a tonic in improving trade conditions.

Bank Clearings Continue Decline

WASHINGTON, March 15.—Bank clearings continue considerably below the heavy volume of a year ago, although this week's report is somewhat less unfavorable than those for the earlier weeks of the year. Total clearings at 23 leading cities in the week of March 13 aggregated $10,240,139,000, a decline of 16.2 per cent from the like week a year ago. New York City's clearings of $7,052,000,000 were 18.4 per cent lower, while total of $3,288,139,000 for principal centers outside of New York was 11.6 per cent below a year ago. Cities reporting increases from a year ago were Baltimore, Richmond, Louisville and San Francisco.

Expect Criticism About Reserve's Lowering Of Bank Rate.

AS usual the Federal Reserve may come in for some criticism because of its action in lowering the bank rate in New York. Those who have taken officials to task because of what happened in 1927 will probably set up the cry of the danger of encouraging a renewal of hectic speculation. But the condition statement of the system certainly speaks for itself in support of the action taken. The Reserve bought $28,000,000 government securities last week, and its total holdings are now three times larger than a year ago. But rediscounts were cut by $42,000,000 and are now only about one-quarter of the total this time last year, when the aggregate was near a billion, and holdings of open market bills ran off again, standing about $27,000,000 under a year ago. In consequence the total volume of reserve credit in use was cut $32,000,000 and is about $4,000,000 under a year ago, while the reserve ratio is 10 per cent higher at 80.8 per cent.

Steel common was favored yesterday on the buying side on the news that the corporation had secured a tax refund from the government in the amount of $23,555,000, representing over-assessments in 1918-1919 and 1920. This rebate was approved by the congressional committee on internal revenue and confirmed by the Treasury Department. The refund will be allowed either in the form of cash or as a credit, and it is expected will be used to the extent of $17,000,000 to pay that amount due from the corporation on its 1929 profits. This would leave a $16,000,000 cash balance available to the corperation.

INTERNATIONAL TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH was a weak spot during yesterday, yielding sharply before persistent selling, a large part of it for short account, influenced by the announcement overnight of new financing through the issue of additional stock to shareholders. Under the offer shareholders are accorded the right to subscribe for the new stock in the ratio of one new share for each eight shares held at a price of $50 a share, based on yesterday's closing price, the "rights" had a value of slightly over $2, but for the present at least new financing, even though it creates such "rights," is not construed as bullish, as happened to be the case this time a year ago.

While the street appears sanguine that the New York City traction unification bill will be passed during the current session of the legislature at Albany, a story has been going the rounds during the past few days to the effect that Brooklyn-Manhattan transit interests are quietly acquiring a substantial block of Interborough Rapid Transit with the hope of obtaining working control of the latter corporation. It is pointed out that since the Interborough is opposed to unification and hopes ultimately through the courts to obtain a fare higher than five cents, that elimination of this opposition will expedite unification considerably.

THERE has been considerable selling of American and Foreign Power during recent market sessions. In some quarters this is attributed to the fact that unsatisfactory economic conditions exist in some of the South American countries where the company is engaged in its activities. It is thought that this situation might result in smaller earnings for properties already developed and at the same time retard the construction of additional connecnections.

Standard Oil of New Jersey featured in the oil group yesterday. It is pointed out that Standard Oil of New Jersey is held by more investment trusts than any other oil stock and that there are only seven other stocks which appear as frequently in 1929 trust portfolios. Company's annual statement will not be made public for a month or more and when it is released it is expected to make interesting reading. Earnings estimates run between $5 and $7 a share, and even though the former is only shown some market students feel that the stock is relatively cheap on a times earnings ratio basis.

Detroit Aircraft Reduces Prices

DETROIT, March 15.—Detroit Aircraft Corporation has reduced prices on the two Ryan model planes, including the brougham, sister ship of the Spirit of St. Louis, about $1,000 each, according to James Work, vice president. Price of several of the Parks models, however, has been increased.

So great has been the increase in passenger travel since air transport operating companies reduced fares to a level with or below railroad fares at the beginning of the year, that several companies now contemplate raising the fares slightly. This can be done, they feel, without impairing the present volume of traffic. Some companies, it was said, have more than doubled the carrying capacity of last year.

Ludlum Steel Co. Rights Offered

The Ludlum Steel Company is offering common stockholders the right to purchase 34,000 additional common shares at $33 a share in ratio of one new share for each five held and 5,000 shares of convertible preferred stock at $98 a share.

TEXAS REPORTS HIGHER NET

NEW YORK, March 15.—The Texas Corporation and subsidiaries reported net earnings for 1929 of $48,318,072, equivalent to $5.12 per share on 9,433,164 common shares, as increased from $45,073,879 for 1928, or $5.56 per share on 8,107,763, the average number of shares outstanding during that year.

The balance sheet showed cash on hand of $27,926,201, an increase of $2,539,068, and marketable securities with $49,727,694. Total assets on December 31 were carried at $609,853,048, an increase of $148,034,720. Investment expenditures during the year amounted to $82,562,621, of which the largest amunt, $27,845,823, was spent on refineries. Heavy refinery construction will be continued this year.

President R. C. Holmes, in his annual report to stockholders, spoke optimistically of the prospect of controlling crude production. He explained that there had been actual or potential over-production since 1923, and that this condition had become chronic.

Taplin Protests Postponement Of Hearing

WASHINGTON, March 15.—Vigorous protest against postponement for 90 days to June 9 of hearings on the conflicting Nickel Plate, Pittsburgh and West Virginia applications to acquire control of the Wheeling and Lake Erie was voiced by C. F. Taplin of Cleveland in a letter to the finance director of the commission. The scheduled hearings of March 10 were deferred at the instance of the Wabash.

In this connection, Taplin charged that "there must be some ulterior motive" behind the Wabash move for a continuance.

Animal Trap Co. Earns $3.08 Share

Animal Trap Company of America reports for the fiscal year ended January 31, 1930, net profit, after interest, depreciation and taxes, of $184,924, equal after preferred dividends to $3.08 per share on the 51,000 shares of common stock outstanding, compared with net of $284,923, or $5.04 on the common in the previous year. The company's shares are listed on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange.

STEEL SALES MODERATE

CLEVELAND, March 15.—Cold finished steel bar demand is steady, but shows no improvement compared with the activity one month ago, according to Daily Metal Trade. Shipments generally have been completed against January orders, and producers' backlogs are at a minimum. Automotive requirements indicate no expansion in the immediate future, and while demand from other consuming lines is fair, it is not sufficient to offset the restricted automobile trade.

The pig iron melt is not showing any appreciable increase, but deliveries are holding up surprising well. Second quarter sales are moderate. Steel plates are easier in the East, and the price has slipped off slightly. A somewhat firmer tone is noted in strip steel. Pittsburgh warehouses are now on the new quantity differential basis which has been adopted at most important distributing points throughout the country.

PACIFIC CRUDE OUTPUT DOWN

LOS ANGELES, March 15.—At a meeting of the general council of the California Oil Operators' fact-finding committee, it was reported the state's output was down to 644,000 barrels daily as of Thursday, representing an approximate cut of 42 per cent from the state's potential production as of March 1.

TULSA, Okla., March 15.—Extension of the oil curtailment program in Oklahoma for a period of 90 days after April 1 is recommended by the legal and proration committees of the Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association.

$10,250,000 Gold Due From Japan Today

SAN FRANCISCO, March 15.—The Bank of Italy will receive $10,250,000 gold yen from Japan on the Shinyo Maru scheduled to arrive today. This is the largest gold shipment from Japan since lifting of the gold embargo.

Why you turn pale with Fear or Horror!

Yesterday, while driving the car it swerved dangerously, a startling surprise—sudden fright—the blood left your face and you turned deathly pale: Today, an unexpected and embarrassing question and you blushed furiously! Ever wonder why your face should be pale one instant and pink or flushed at another? Is that one of Nature's mistakes? Until recently the average scientist knew more about Mars than he did about the actions of the blood capillaries in the human face. Now you can read the complete answer in "Why You Turn Pale with Fear or Horror"—Next Sunday in The American Weekly.

The Truth About the Famous Ghost of Minsden

Near the quaint old town of Hitchin, in England, stand the ruins of Minsden Chapel. The natives whisper, "haunted." Recently a photograph was taken of the ruins. When the plate was developed the strange, robed figure of a man was noticed. Was it the ghost? Newspapers published it with the statement that the figure was the photograph of a genuine phantom nun. Read the story of this and other spectral appearances—next Sunday in The American Weekly.

Do you agree with Madam Galli-Curci? She points out that there are no worth-while new operas—states that the public is tired of the same list of old ones repeated again and again with their childish plots and manifest unrealities and absurdities. Read what she has to say about it—about her predictions—you will be interested—Next Sunday, in The American Weekly.

SIX CARDINAL MANAGERS SINCE 1925

BASEBALL fans in St. Louis already are beginning to speculate as to whether or not Gabby Street will survive the Cardinal managerial test of 1930, and to wonder if the Redbirds will be found starting out under still another new pilot a year hence. Street hasn't had a chance to prove himself yet, it is true, but apparently that fact doesn't enter into the reckoning, in the opinion of the experienced Missourians. For success doesn't necessarily assure a manager's retention in the Mound City. A skipper there may do all that anybody could reasonably expect and yet find himself out of a job before the arrival of a second season.

Gabby Street.

At least that is the conclusion to be drawn from the fate of other Cardinal leaders in recent years. No club in history has made so many changes within the same period of time in the face of continued good results, so there is never any telling about the future where President Sam Breadon and Vice President Branch Rickey are concerned.

DURING the last five seasons the Cards have not once failed to finish in the National League's first division. In that time they have won two pennants and a world championship, landed second once and fourth twice. That would have to be classed as an exceptional showing, even under the most favorable of conditions, and one that probably would satisfy the owners of any other club in the majors.

But they're different in St. Louis. Street makes a total of no fewer than six managers the Redbirds have had during that short span. And one of the six, Bill McKechnie, served two separate engagements, making seven helmsmen in a sense since the beginning of the race of 1925. In that time, not one of Street's predecessors started two seasons at the head of the team.

RICKEY held the reins when the campaign of 1925 got under way, but stepped down on Memorial Day in favor of Rogers Hornsby. The Cards finished fourth. Hornsby led again in 1926, winning the pennant and the world title for the first time in the city's National League career, but was supplanted in 1927 by Bob O'Farrell.

The club landed second under O'Farrell's leadership in the latter campaign, losing out to the Pirates for the flag by only nine points, or just a game and a half. The Bucs did not clinch the championship until the day before the closing date of the season.

Sam Breadon.

O'FARRELL'S head was not saved by that creditable finish, however. McKechnie replaced him in 1928 and the Cards again brought home the pennant, but there had to be a new manager nevertheless, and 1929 found Billy Southworth in the driver's seat. On July 22 Southworth was dropped and McKechnie was again placed in charge. The Wilkinsburg man kept the team in the first division and finished fourth, but at the end of the race Breadon allowed him to accept a Boston offer rather than give him a long contract, and Street was appointed in Bill's stead for this year. Little wonder, in view of the numerous shifts, that Gabby's chances for holding on in 1931 are considered uncertain, regardless of what he may accomplish in 1930.

WHEN you try to single out the busiest college athlete in the country, you've got to give quite a bit of consideration to Albie Booth, of Yale. The Elis wind up their basketball schedule today, but that won't stop Booth. The ending of one sport season means only the beginning of another to that sensational sophomore. As you won't have any trouble in recalling, Booth was the outstanding player on Yale's football team last fall. Then he jumped into basketball.

He has been busy on the court ever since, and now he has come out for baseball and has already been given the shortstop assignment on the varsity nine. He has been steadily active in Yale varsity sports since September 15, but appears to have thrived on the grind, as he is 18 pounds heavier than at the close of the football season.

THE injury to the right shoulder of Frank Boucher, crack hockey center of the New York Rangers, is merely a dislocation, not a bone fracture, X-ray pictures reveal, that it will serve to keep the star out of the remaining games of the waning season and the play-offs.

And that spells the interruption of one of the most remarkable records for continuous play ever made in professional hockey, as Boucher has gone through eight consecutive seasons without missing a game. In a sport as rough and as fast as hockey, such a record belongs among the modern wonders.

Frank Smith.

WHEN Frank Smith, Theos Manos or Al Bialas goes into action against Al Banuet, of San Francisco, on the handball courts of the Keystone Athletic Club this afternoon, the Pittsburgh representative will find himself up against the greatest handball player in the game, according to so good an authority as J. Rogers Flannery. When Banuet won the National A. A. U. singles championship in New York last year and repeated in St. Louis this year (and incidentally he shared in the capture of the doubles title both times), Flannery officiated as referee, and the Pittsburgher, himself a former junior champion, declares that he has never seen the Californian's equal. "Pittsburghers will see handball as it has never been played here before by any individual," Flannery said. "Banuet is not merely the best of the country's handball players of today. He is a marvel. I have never seen any one who could be compared with him."

IT'S a far cry in Pittsburgh sports history back to the famous date of July 13, 1881, when Maud S set a new world trotting record at the old Homewood track here by covering a mile in 2:10½. Harness racing marks have taken many a beating since then, until now the trotting record stands at 1:55¾, by Peter Manning, and the pacing peak is 1:55, by Dan Patch.

What is the explanation of the deep cuts in time? Are horses that much better, or is the difference due to improved track conditions and racing appliances? Horsemen probably will never agree on that point. Old-timers insist that the trotters and pacers of a quarter of a century ago would compare very favorably with those of the present day if it were possible to test them under the new conditions.

MODERNS seek to refute these claims, and to uphold the contended superiority of the horses of the present, by pointing out that the bicycle sulky has been in general use for almost 40 years and that fast tracks have been in existence for an even longer period. They

GAME TONIGHT.
(Upper Bracket).
New Castle vs. Duquesne, Pitt Stadium.

New Castle and Duquesne, meeting in the semi-final round in the upper bracket of the annual W. P. I. A. L. title elimination tournament in the Pitt Stadium tonight, will have their work cut out for them if they are going to provide more thrills than New Kensington and Uniontown did last night in the lower bracket semi-final.

Tonight's victor will meet the Ken-Hi passers in the tourney final next Tuesday evening for the crown won last year by Homestead.

Last night's battle went into four (count 'em) extra periods before New Kensington nosed out a 23-22 triumph. A successful foul toss, flung by Harold Wilson, blonde forward star of the upriver team, decided the contest after the boys had battled through 44 minutes of grueling basketball. It was a ball game that will be long remembered by those folk who jammed their way into the Stadium.

UNIONTOWN TRAILS

Uniontown, trailing from the first until near the end of the regular playing time, staged a stubborn uphill battle. Neither team played exceptional basketball, but New Kensington managed to keep out in front until the very end, by no great margin, but nevertheless, out there.

The score at the end of the first period favored Ken-Hi by 2 to 1, with neither team scoring from the court. McCandless handled the scoring for New Kensington in the second quarter, dumping in a field goal on a left handed, overhead shot, and making two tries at the free throw line good. Everhart, star of the game for Uniontown, son of the coach, bagged a nifty basket and Ford tallied a pair of fouls.

The third period was a scoring orgy, compared with the others, both fives getting seven points. Everhart threw two goals and one foul and Capt. Rankin one field goal. New Kensington's points came on Ames field goals, two of 'em, one by Dayoub and McCandless' successful free throw.

FORD, JOHNS SCORE

Ford and Johns, the latter subbing for Pike at center, were good for baskets in the fourth period, Johns' coming in the nick of time to give Uniontown a 14-14 tie as the game ended.

Wilson, who had been well-guarded all evening, scored his first field goal in the last quarter and McCandless continued his bombarding from the foul line to give the Section I champions a grasp on the old ball game.

They went into the first extra period and Wilson bagged another, only to have Harris offset this shot with one of his own just before the first three minutes of overtime was up. They played another, with neither team scoring.

Then, going into the third, Everhart took matters into his own hands, and kept pace with Wilson and McCandless by flipping a pair of goals, matching the ones recorded by the New Kensington stars. Wilson missed a chance to win the ball game in

Nick Altrock Says:

BILOXI, Miss., March 15.—I see Bob Shawkey is still wearing that old red flannel shirt, even if he was promoted to manager of the Yanks. Bob had that shirt when he broke in as a rookie pitcher and it has worn better than an Oriental rug.

There is a lot of sentiment in baseball that way. Rabbit Maranville has chewed the same piece of gum since he came up to the big leagues, and President Baker, of the Phillies, still has the original nickel he took in when he started as a magnate.

The championship of the 112-pound class was won by Joe Kushner, Cleveland, who defeated Tony Marino, Pittsburgh, also in three rounds.

Pete Landi, Pittsburgh heavyweight, was also defeated in the semi-finals, bowing to Peter Letke, of Toledo, after three torrid rounds.

DISTRICT TITLE AT STAKE

GAMES TODAY
DISTRICT LEAGUE
Pierpoint Motors at Clan Douglas
Lewis S. C. at Pittsburgh Celtics

By TOM BIRKS

With the championship of the District Soccer League at stake, the Pierpoint Motors and Clan Douglas will meet at Swissvale this afternoon in the final game of the league titular fight.

Clan Douglas must tie or win in order to cop the championship, while the Motors aggregation, being one point behind, must win to take the title to Baum Boulevard.

Should the ground be muddy, the Pierpoints should win easily. Not one team in the district, except Gallatin, can give Jimmy Moreman and his boys a battle when the going is heavy. On the other hand, a fast field will give Douglas the edge. On a fast field, Adam Miller and his clansmen should be clever enough to win. Punch around the goalmouth is likely to be the deciding factor. Andy Verish will referee. The game will start at 3:15.

Another game will find the Lewis S. C. meeting Pittsburgh Celtics at Leslie Park.

W. & J. Elects Local Boy Cheer Leader

WASHINGTON, Pa., March 15.—The corps of varsity sport cheer leaders at Washington and Jefferson for next year has been completed by the election of Edward H. Power III, of Pittsburgh, a freshman. Power won in a popular election over Benny Kounta and Harry Blank, both also of Pittsburgh. William R. Dom III, of Greensburg, has been appointed cheer leader with R. W. Gibson, of Bellevue, Pittsburgh, as the third member of the corps.

Carver to Captain Beaver High Quint

BEAVER, Pa., March 15.—John Carver, guard, was elected captain of the Beaver High basketball team for 1930-31 at the annual activities banquet of the local high school here last night. In addition to being a basketball star, Carver is regarded as one of the best infielders in the lower valley. He is a member of the champion Paul Jones club.

BUCS MEET 'FRISCO CLUB TOMORROW

By CHARLES J. DOYLE
Staff Correspondent

PASO ROBLES, Cal., March 15.—The well-conditioned Pirates today were close to the end of their Paso Robles training. The whole squad had to remain idle yesterday, owing to a steady rain, but Manager Ens was hopeful that he would be able to get in at least two more days of beneficial practice before the camp is closed for the season. The team is due to leave late Monday afternoon for San Francisco.

The last camp scrap is set for this afternoon, with the Seals of San Francisco being scheduled to sport themselves against the Pirates tomorrow afternoon in a banner attraction. While the two first teams are in action at the local park, the second squads will be competing at Monterey, the training camp of the Coast League club. Monterey is a bit more than 100 miles from Paso Robles.

SHEELY OPPOSES SUHR

Earl Sheely, Pirate first-sacker of last year, is one of the big attractions for tomorrow's contest. The fair-haired giant is now a full-fledged Seal, he having come to terms recently. Sheely will be opposed at first by Gus Suhr, who will take Earl's place in the Pittsburgh line-up.

Ira Flagstead, boss of the Yannigans, will lead his team out of Paso Robles early tomorrow morning. The Hooligans will make the journey by bus. They are slated to return tomorrow night and will take part with the Regulars Monday in the final workout of the season.

It is altogether possible that Flaggie will find his hosts opposed by a couple of former Pirate pitchers in the Monterey game. It is reported that John Miljus and Jimmy Zinn, now members of the Seal outfit, will hurl the rocket against the Yanigans. Leon Chagnon and Steve Swetonic are slated to twirl for the Pirate seconds, with Ralph Erickson, Martin Lang and Ivan Green on the job in case they are needed.

ENS AFTER WINS

Ens is not certain as to his hurling selection for the big contest with the Seals tomorrow. Jewel will not know about this until tonight, as the slab choices are contigent on the contest scheduled for this afternoon. Ens is anxious that today's game be played and he will attempt it if the weather remains even close to favorable for the sport.

The Pirate skipper has let it be known that he wants to win as many games as possible beginning tomorrow. Jewel thinks the winning habit is a fine thing and he is determined to cop as many battles on the impending barnstorming jaunt as he can. A long series will be staged in San Francisco and Oakland before the Buccos head for Los Angeles. Games are carded with the Missions, the Seals and the Oakland Club. When the Pittsburghers wind up their play in the bay district, they will hurry to Los Angeles to cross bats with Joe McCarthy's Cub champions.

PIRATE ELEVENS IN SNAPPY WORKOUT

LOOKS AS IF THE BOYS DIDN'T KNOW THE RULES

Pirates in camp at Paso Robles, Cal., indulge in a game of "football" to break the monotony. Here we see two elevens lined up for action. Lloyd Waner is the quarterback of the team that has the ball and he has just fed it to Comorosky, the fullback. Fred Brickell, the outside half, is starting around his own right end, who happens to be Ralston Hemsley. It's all very pretty except for one thing—the lines haven't charged! What kind of a game is that?

PITT SEASON ENDS AGAINST STATE TONIGHT

PANTHER STARS END BRILLIANT CAREERS

I do not care for opera,
Although its final scene
Is like an undertaker's fete
With all the actors—low and great—
Expiring on the green.

By JESS CARVER

The undertaker will call for the defunct basketball body after tonight, and gruesome as it may seem, the fact that the college season winds up with the Pitt-Penn State game at State College tonight, will be hailed with great joy by those citizens who fail to become hoarse over the court game. The above poetry, penned by Mr. Robert Casey, intended as a backhand slap at opera, goes for basketball too.

The noble Panthers, who have slipped back into their stride apparently, for the last games of the campaign, go to rags with Dutch Hermann's Nittany Lions in a return battle. Pitt took State here with little or no trouble, mostly no. If they win tonight's ball game, they'll have a record for the season of 23 victories against two defeats, and of 63 triumphs in the past three years out of 70 games played.

Chipper Charley Hyatt, Les Cohen and Paul Zehfuss, of the Pitt entourage, complete their varsity careers tonight, and will take great delight in beating in the ears of the State College history teacher's ball club for the second time. Hyatt, with a new scoring record of 303 points, hopes to finish up with a mark of 325.

The Tipoff

Spring football practice starts at Pitt today, and will be welcomed by much sneezing and groaning on the part of the young gentlemen who prefer to perch on the steps of Alumni Hall and aid the co-eds rather than chase about in the balmy spring air under the watchful eye of Coach Sutherland.

Dutch Eyth, the portly Tech halfback, will go out for track if they agree to put the Tartan runners, jumpers and weight heavers on a training table.

Everett Utterback, Pitt's Negro track star, competes tonight in the Septathlon at the University of Illinois Indoor Relays. He will take part in the 70-yard dash, the 70 yard high hurdles, the broad and high jumps, the shot put and the 880.

Eatin' tobacco sales will jump today and from now on as the colleges begin spring football practice.

SQUASH PLAY UNDER WAY

The city squash racquets championship got under way yesterday at the Keystone Athletic Club under the direction of the Western Pennsylvania Squash Racquets Association. The preliminary round and part of the first were staged. The first round will be completed by Monday. Results of yesterday play:

Livingstone, University Club, defeated P. Bovard, P. A. A., by default.
McMahan, P. A. A., defeated Quay, Allegheny Country Club, 15-14, 15-7, 15-8.
J. Heron, Pittsburgh Golf Club, defeated Hicks, unattached, 15-12, 15-13, 15-12.
Ryan, K. A. C., defeated McLeod, Pittsburgh Golf Club, 14-16, 15-11, 15-12, 15-8.
G. Bovard, P. A. A., defeated Dr. Lepdo, C. M. H. A., 17-15, 15-10, 15-8.
Bowers, K. A. C., defeated Wagner, P. A. A., 15-11, 15-7, 15-12.
Keinath, K. A. C., defeated Elbert, Pittsburgh Golf Club, 12-15, 15-11, 7-15, 15-13, 15-14.
Hicks, K. A. C., defeated Robinson, Allegheny Country Club, 17-14, 15-8, 10-15, 15-11.
Kaufman, K. A. C., defeated Hoffman, P. A. A., 15-10, 15-13, 16-17.
Reed, P. A. A., defeated Fagan, K. A. C., 14-16, 15-10, 15-7, 15-8.

Knute Rockne, whom I feel most indebted were men who not only taught me some few facts but men who had some personality. They gave me a zest for life itself, stimulated my imagination and gave me the urge to try to succeed. They gave me part of themselves.

So many professors have taken it upon themselves to state what is wrong with the coaches and football that I think turn about is only fair. Every football coach is vitally interested in sane education, but we are offered a great deal of it. The professors whom I remember as having left indelibly their own imprint upon me and to

This type of professor today is almost extinct. The glorification of research, the insatiable demand for expansion, has eliminated these kindly, sympathetic chaps whose value, in my opinion, never was fully appreciated. Today they are comparatively few in number. Why? Because the rewards all have gone to the chaps who do research and to the men who come along with loads of degrees and credit hours, which in my opinion, mean nothing.

I know of one school dedicated to research where I would not send a son of mine. The faculty has about as much human sympathy as one would find in a slab of cold marble. I consider human, informal and sympathetic relations between a professor and a student far more important than research, impersonal aloofness, credit hours, degrees and all the other modern forms of educational poobiah.

JACK DEMPSEY TO TRAIN IN MEXICO

DETROIT, March 15.—(AP.)—Jack Dempsey said here last night that he intends to go into training as soon as he completes the theatrical tour in which he is engaged at present.

"If I find that I can get into proper condition," said the former heavyweight champion, "I will be ready to meet the outstanding claimant of the title."

Physical condition, rather than financial considerations, will determine his future course, Dempsey asserted. "It won't make any difference if I have a million dollars or haven't a dime," he said. "If I can't get back into condition I will remain retired."

TO GO IN TRAINING

LOS ANGELES, March 15.—(AP.)—Jack Dempsey, former world heavyweight champion, who announced in Detroit that he would re-enter the ring, has notified his representative here to prepare a training camp for him.

The camp will be established at Ensenada, Mexico, and will be ready for the former champion by May 1, the date he indicated in his telegram he will be ready to start conditioning.

Dempsey's tentative plans for training include rigorous hiking, running, fishing and hunting along the coast of Lower California as the first stage, and then workouts at the Ensenada camp.

M'GRAW TO WAR ON HOLDOUTS

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, March 15.—(AP.)—John McGraw, manager of the New York Giants, has declared war on holdouts. McGraw had plenty of contract difficulties this year, the most notable cases involving Freddie Lindstrom, Bill Terry, Bob O'Farrell, Edd Roush and Larry Benton.

"These fellows who stay away from training camp," he said, "and neglect the early work are a detriment to the club. They slow up the whole team. They won't do it again next year if I have anything to say about it. At least if they do, they will pay for it."

CARDS RELEASE ROOKIES

BRADENTON, Fla., March 15.—(AP.)—The exodus of the rookies began today as the result of Vice President Branch Rickey's arrival at the St. Louis Cardinal training camp. Joel Hunt, flashy looking third baseman, returns to Houston. Eddie Delker, last year with Minneapolis; Tex Carleton and Paul Derringer to Rochester were the first to go.

Rumors had it that Catcher Gus Mancuso will be traded to the Boston Braves, and another grapevine had Pitcher Fred Frankhouse going to the Phillies.

Willis Glassgow, University of Iowa phenom, and Catcher Bruckman are slated for Danville.

Trinity High Grid Card Completed

WASHINGTON, Pa., March 15.—With one open date reserved for an opponent with which negotiations are not completed, Trinity High School, of this place, has completed its football card for next season. The schedule:

September 20, Monongahela, away; September 27, Dennis, away; October 4, open; October 11, Rahstone Township, at Washington; October 17, Monessen, at Washington; October 24, East Washington, away; October 31, South Brownsville, at Washington; November 7, Canonsburg, at Washington; November 15, Farrelsburg, away.

PHIL SCOTT SAILS

NEW YORK, March 15.—(AP.)—Phil Scott, English heavyweight, sailed aboard the Majestic last night for home. Scott, knocked out by Sharkey at Miami last month, said he planned to return here in June.

SAYLOR RALLIES TO DEFEAT MALCO

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

Ol' Homer Gobert, of Charleroi, better known in the ring as Young Saylor, carried home another victory last night on the end of his marvelous left hand and through the timely functioning of his wits in the main bout at the Moose Temple. His victim was Tommy Malco, of Soho, rugged welterweight, whom he defeated even more handily in the same ring a few months ago, only to see the decision go to Tommy.

Last night's fight was fairly close and was viciously contested. For five rounds, Homer Gobert Saylor committeed the atrocious faux pas of trying to slug it out with Tommy at close quarters and took a bad beating about the midriff and ran into a flock of jolting lefts and rights to the jaw as well. Malco was riding high and seemingly on the road to certain victory, carrying all of those sessions except the third, which was even up. And then Homer Gobert Saylor took to thinking the thing over and figured he had better go out there and do his stuff.

TIDE TURNS SUDDENLY

Which he did. And how! So much so, indeed, that he romped off with the last five frames and the unanimous and well deserved decision of the two judges and the referee. The tide turned just like that! Moving about and jabbing and hooking with his left to the head and body and then tying up Malco in the clinches, Saylor was complete master of the situation from the time he quit slugging and began to box until the final bell. He had Malco stumbling about and missing and looking awkward and sheepish in every one of the last five rounds, just as he did over almost all of the route in their first meeting. But he didn't start any too soon last night. Had he delayed changing his tactics one more round he would have been too late for Malco's lead then would have been insurmountable, in view of the fact that there were no knockdowns, and, while he had Tommy flustered and floundering about, he never had him in serious danger from the cuffing he handed out once he got going.

Malco landed the best punch of the fight in the very first round. He nailed Homer coming in with a left and then shot over his right and Homer's knees sagged and he held on.

Both were overweight at scaling in time. They had agreed to make the compromise figure of 147½ pounds. Saylor weighed first and was one-quarter of a pound heavy and Malco's manager demanded that he take it off. When Malco hopped on the scales, however, he tipped the beam at 148 pounds, which made him twice as much overweight as his opponent, and then both claiming of forfeits and arugments about taking off the excess flesh went by the board.

WILSON STOPS WOLFE

Jackie Wilson, of Jersey City, knocked out Charley (Tarzan) Wolfe, of Rochester, Pa., late in the second round of a hard-punching semi-final, in which Wilson always was ahead. Wolfe reeled down out of a rough mix-up at close quarters and took the count, getting up just as the referee completed the toll. His left eye was cut just before he hit the floor. He weighed 159 pounds and Wilson 154½.

Tommy Ward, of the South Side, outboxed Joe Zink, of McKees Rocks, by a comfortable margin in the second round, winning the unanimous decision, and Billy Hatch, Negro, of the Hill, substituting for Georgie Tomosky, of Wilmerding, punched out a spectaular victory over Jimmy Thomas, Negro, also of the Hill, in the six round opener, but both judges and the referee strangely found for Thomas. Zink weighed 145½ pounds against 144¼ for Ward, and Thomas scaled 117½ and Hatch 116.

McTIERNAN-PIAI NEXT

The arena was not jammed, as for the Jackie Rodgers-Howard Mayberry fight the week before. It was announced that Buck McTiernan will box Johnny Piai, of Greenville, Pa., in the windup next Friday night. Hans Roberts and Cowboy DeLuca may meet in a return bout in the semi-final.

Red Robinson refereed all bouts last night. The judges were the two fearless Franks—Brown and Ferris. Chappie Couch was the timer and Bill Schuster the announcer.

Facts and Fancies About Our New Bucs

No. 11—AUGUST RICHARD (GUS) SUHR, FIRST BASEMAN

PASO ROBLES, Cal., March 15.—Thousands of words touching on the baseball skill of Gus Suhr have been written since the big German was sold to the Pirates several months ago, and the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, through its Coast connections, endeavored to give the fans an insight into the character of the homerun walloper, but, after an intimate talk with the recruit at the camp here, this writer is fully convinced that the Pittsburgh club has acquired a most singular player—even if he doesn't make the big show. His boosters, however, are confident he will be a Pirate regular.

Gus Suhr

For a youth who does so much smiling, Gus has a rather strange complex. Upon reaching the hotel after a practice session, the players bathe and then gather in the big lobby to play cards or otherwise relax. It was noticeable that Gus did not show up in the lobby. I wanted to talk with him about himself, but he was not to be found. Eventually, Ira Flagstead, his roommate, escorted me to their room, where I found a cheery lad ready and apparently anxious to talk baseball from any angle.

After a long talk with Suhr, I encountered Russ Newlands, sports editor of the Associated Press for the Pacific Coast section. Newlands immediately went into a dissertation on the new Pirate, whom he classified as the most unique player he ever had met.

"I have been close to the Seals for many seasons and an admirer of Suhr since he joined the club," said Newlands, "but when I walked onto the Paso Robles field the other day it was the first time I met or shook hands with him. But I can tell you plenty about him.

"In the first place, he doesn't drink, smoke or swear and he has not an enemy in the Coast League. You will find before long that he is a bearcat for endurance. He will have to be on crutches before he will leave a game—and is he strong! He loves baseball, but the so-called whoopee phase of the sport is so much applesauce to him.

"You had to go to his room to find him, didn't you? Well, he's right in his natural stride at the start. Suhr was a star on the Seal team when it knocked off Sacramento for the Coast championship a couple of years ago. On the way back, the San Francisco boys staged a smashing celebration in their private car, that is all but Suhr did. A couple of us walked through the day coach in the midst of the wild doings in the private Pullman, and there was Gus riding with the rest of the passengers as if he had not known anything about the events of the big afternoon. He's the most natural self-effacing person I ever saw and I don't think the big league will change this trait in his character."

Gus divulged that he played first, second, short and third for the Seals, but he would just as soon not talk about his feats at the last three positions.

"First base is good enough for me," said the maker of 50 homers in 1929.

Well, anyhow, Skipper Ens has another ball player of whom he will not have to worry about after 11 p. m. It will be the hay for Gus.

Suhr was born in San Francisco. His hands are almost as big as those of that famous "Dutchman" who roamed the short field for Pittsburgh, Honus Wagner. Gus is one of a big family, but he's the only one who went after baseball in a big way.—CHARLES J. DOYLE.

COUNTY LEAGUE LEADERS MEET TOUGH FOES

By JULIUS LEVIN

Deadlocked for first place in the second half of the Allegheny County League race, the J. J. Veronas and Homestead Ackermans face stubborn resistance tonight in their fight to retain their grip on the top berth, the Ackermans engaging the champion Duquesne Lafayettes at Homestead, while the Veronas invade Charleroi to tackle the Lions.

Both the Ackermans and Veronas are striving to earn the right to meet the Lafayettes, first-half winners, in a post-season series to settle the County League championship and neither can afford to lose a game at this stage as a defeat means certain elimination.

OUT TO BEAT CHAMPS

The Homestead Ackermans made an impressive showing in their clean-out victory over the Goldensons last Wednesday night and if they display the same form tonight they stand a good chance of upsetting the Scarlet Hurricane.

The Charleroi Lions are known to be a tough team to beat on their home court and the Veronas expect a stiff battle tonight. The local alderman, however, should triumph if they continue to play the ball they have been flashing during the last three weeks.

In the West Penn League tonight the Y. M. H. A. goes to the North Side to engage the Community House passers in a West Penn League game. Both teams are former A. A. U. champions and in the running for this year's title, being slated to clash in a semi-final game at Kingsley House this week.

St. Joseph's Lyceum opposes Catholic Men's Club in the only Catholic Lyceum League game on the program.

GORDONS IN OHIO

Dr. Lewis A. Singer took his Lou Gordon Juniors to East Liverpool, O., today to compete in the annual junior tourney in that city. The Lou Gordons are undefeated and should make a strong bid for the title. Levine, Felser, Kalson, Newstein, Rosenfield and Sakol will make the trip.

Jack Selznick, former manager of the Duquesne Saltzers, now pilot of a Cleveland five, brings his team to Duquesne tonight to meet the Duquesne Lutherans. The Lutherans have won 27 straight victories.

LAFAYETTES WIN

The Duquesne Lafayettes broke Allentown's winning streak by copping their County League game, 28 to 22, last night. The Penn Five tripped the Knickers, 27-24, in an extra-period West Penn contest.

The Mt. Washington Triangles trimmed St. Paul, 44 to 29, and I. K. S. Reserves beat Penn Cadets, 29-27, in the Metropolitan loop.

Joseph Hornes lost to I. K. S., 54-46, in the Central League and Real Estate toppled Carnegie Steel, 31-17, in the C. & I. The County League lineup:

Lafayette—28.		Allentown—22.
Minnick	F	Berchem
Whitehead	F	Bonsell
Ramsey	C	Courtney
Cleminski	G	Leemiller
Substitutes—Bond, J. Minnick, Wunderlich, Bonsell, Berchem. Goals—Bonsell, 3; Minnick 3, Whitehead 2, Ramsey, Cleminski 2, Berchem 2, Smith 2, Courtney, Albrecht 2. Fouls—Lafayette, 8 out of 11; Allentown, 4 out of 6. Referee—Carroll.

Fight Results

At Erie—Georgie Nichols defeated Indian Tiger West, two rounds; Sammy Harris knocked out (technical) Al Johnson, 1 round; Joey Coleman defeated Jackie Shuppert, 6 rounds; Johnny Zacks and Carl Stalker drew, 4 rounds; Turkey Haslett knocked out (technical) Tommy Thompson, 5 rounds.

At Chicago—Rene De Yos defeated Cirio Chastain, 10 rounds; Ernie Schaaf and Paul Pantano drew, 10 rounds; Harry Dublinsky defeated Emery Calanta, 8 rounds; Frankie Hayes defeated Jimmy Landry, 6 rounds.

Andy Andrucci Signs With Buchanan

Andy Andrucci, East End lightweight, who won the decision over Johnny Smackey, of Canonsburg, in their third battle, at Duquesne Garden, last Wednesday night, yesterday signed a contract with Jim Buchanan, of Charleroi, manager of Willie Davies, the flyweight star, whereby the latter will act as his pilot for the next three years.

Andrucci, a former amateur star, has been handling his own business affairs since turning professional, but has had the advice of his former coach, Jack Metz, handler of the Willow Club amateur boxers. Buchanan plans an aggressive campaign for the Italian favorite.

KID WALLACE WITH MASON

James (Red) Mason, dean of local boxing managers, who left last night for Chicago to join Jackie Rodgers and Johnny Deutsch, who departed earlier in the day for a siege of training for Jackie's fight with Archie Bell at Motor Square Garden one week from next Monday night, has added Harry (Kid) Wallace, Philadelphia 142-pounder, to his stable of boxers and will have him move here.

Wallace has an imposing record. He recently defeated Tiger Joe Randall at Johnstown and also has boxed Jack (Kid) Berg, Johnny and Frankie Hayes, Sylvan Bass, Tommy Cooney, Joey LaGrey, Georgie Balduc, Willie Garfola, Richie Martell, Nick Palmer, Johnny Ketchel and Johnny DeMarco, among others. He is 22 years old, married and has a four months' old child.

Jackie Rodgers will do his training in Chicago in Howard Carr's gymnasium. Arrangements have been made to provide for him a retinue of sparring partners calculated to prime him to the minute to cope with an opponent of the speed and boxing skill of Bell.

Between Rounds

K. O. Hicks and Ralph Cauhon have been substituted for the Red Jaderberg-Dick Hyatt semi-final in the Kennedy-Piccolo-Al Feldman bout at the New Castle Jolly Bowl Monday night. The original bout was pulled out after Jaderberg was knocked out in two rounds by Hicks at Youngstown Wednesday night.

Young Judy, of Charleroi, and Frankie Nanni, of Monessen, are in the semi-final in the Johnny Chiodo-Mickey Davis bout at Johnstown next Tuesday night.

Sylvan Bass, of Baltimore, who wants to fight Jackie Rodgers, Sammy Baker, Joe Trippe, Young Saylor, Dusty McTiernan or Mickey Quinlan here, handed Joey Spatola, of New York, a bad drubbing in his most recent bout, at Atlantic City.

Maxie Strub and Tex Phillips, both of Erie, want to box in Pittsburgh again. Their manager, Lester Dunning, thinks they'll show the fans improved form over their last starts here. When Strub, in his local debut, lost to Joey Goodman, of Cleveland, at the Motor Square Garden, he stopped only his fourth opponent in 32 bouts and followed it up by knocking out Benny Nabors, of New York, in one round at Oil City.

Lou Brown, of New York, new manager of Tommy Crawley, would like to show Harry Carlton, his Irish lightweight here. Carlton has beaten Jack Bernstein, Gaston Charles and Georgie Balduc, among others, and has held his own with Tom Volante, the Englishman, and Bruce Flowers, who has fought three times in Madison Square Garden, New York, this season.

John Birck will box Eddie Crawley, Young Francesk will meet Mike Pistano and Kid Koko will oppose Young Crowley in three of the seven bouts on the amateur boxing card of the Pastorius A. C., for the benefit of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Post No. 418, in Lithuanian Hall, McKees Rocks, Monday night.

Dominick Profio will be one of the principals in the semi-final to the Joey Goodman-Eddie Brannon bout at Duquesne Garden next Wednesday night. Matchmaker Leff is trying to dig up an opponent for him.

Mike Moran, local bantam, is in Chicago under the management of Joe Glaser and has been matched to box Pee Wee Kaiser, of St. Louis, in a 10-round preliminary to the Benny Bass-Eddie Shea title fight in St. Louis March 28.

Cardinals Send Fielders to Farms

BRADENTON, Fla., March 15.—(AP.)—Branch Rickey, vice president and business manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, has announced that Joel Hunt, third baseman, will be sent back to Houston, of the Texas League, and Eddie Delker, another infielder, would be sent to Rochester of the International League. Both Houston and Rochester are affiliated with the Cardinals "farm" system.

Hill Top, E. Liberty 'Y' Teams Lose

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., March 15.—Wilmerding Y. M. C. A. advanced at the expense of Hill Top Y, of Pittsburgh, 27 to 25, and East Liberty Y, of Pittsburgh, was defeated by Juniata, 40 to 37, in the opening day's play of the Y. M. C. A. floor tourney yesterday.

East Liberty meets Tyrone, Hill Top battles Tarentum and Wilmerding takes on Juniata this morning.

The Boston Bruins and the Montreal Maroons, leaders in the American and International Groups, respectively, of the National Hockey League will oe strong favorites to strengthen their positions at the top when they act as hosts in league games tonight.

The Bruins, who have had the Group title clinched for several weeks, are to entertain the Detroit Cougars, American Group fourth-placers, and the Maroons will tangle with the Toronto Leafs, in fourth place in the International Group.

In the only other game on tonight's slate, the New York Americans will opose the Ottawa Senators at Atlantic City. This fray is of the utmost importance to the Ottawans, for should they win, they will pass the idle Canadiens and move into second place in the International Group race.

Pittsburgh's Pirates are idle this evening, but they will swing back into action tomorrow, when they meet the Rangers in New York in a game that originally was billed for Pittsburgh tonight.

NAGURSKI TURNS PRO

MINNEAPOLIS, March 15.—(AP.)—Bronco Nagurski, All-America star on last year's University of Minnesota football team yesterday announced that he had signed to play professional football next season with the Chicago Bears of the National League. Nagurski has been playing professional basketball this season.

Long's Sport Comment

won't admit that the improved records are due so largely to purely mechanical aids as the veterans assert.

"Then," comes back one authority in support of the old school, "how do you account for the fact that since Lou Dillon trotted a mile in 1:58½ in 1903, Nedda has been the only other mare ever to beat that mark? And Nedda's mark, the present record for her sex, is 1:58¼, or an advance of only a quarter of a second in 27 years. Even Peter Manning's present world record of 1:56¾, is less than two seconds better than Lou Dillon's. Where do they get that stuff about the great betterment of trotting speed in recent years?"

Harold McCracken.

THE fact that four of the five regular players are Western Pennsylvania boys makes the success of Mercersburg Academy in winning the South Atlantic prep school basketball championship particularly gratifying to the floor fans of this region. Harold McCracken, forward, resides in Waynesburg; Flenniken, forward, and Donley, center, in Carmichaels, and Kennedy, guard, in California. Leroy E. Glunt, athletic director at this Woodstock (Va.) school, also is a former resident of California, Pa. He attended Teachers' College and coached basketball there, and also coached at East Bethlehem High School and in Fredericktown.

OTHER Pennsylvania boys on the squad are Cover, forward, and Maust, center, of Meyersdale; Sheehand and Nagle, guards of Allentown, and Cole, forward, of Punxsutawney. Under Director Glunt's able coaching, the team won 22 out of 24 games, not suffering a defeat in the South, and scored 1,109 points to its opponents' 637, averaging 47 points to a game.

McCracken and Flenniken, forwards, scored more than 500 points, Donley at center controlled the tip-off against every opposing center, and Capt. Cuomo, Nagle, Kennedy and Sheehan played a consistent game at second. Cover, Buonanno, Caito, Cole and Maust were dependable substitutes.

BANUET PLAYS HERE TODAY

Al Banuet, of San Francisco, hailed as the greatest handball player in the history of the sport, arrived here this morning from Detroit to appear in exhibition matches at the Keystone Athletic Club at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon.

Banuet, who recently won the national singles title and shared in the doubles championship for the second successive year, is to oppose Al Bialas, of the P. A. A., or Theos Manos or Frank Smith, of the Keystone Club, in the singles competition, and he will team with J. Rogers Flannery against Manos and Smith in the doubles play. Smith is the A. M. A. singles titleholder, and he shares local doubles laurels with Manos. Flannery is a former junior champion.

NICHOLS BEATS WEST

CANZONERI, DE VOS WIN BIG BOUTS

ERIE, Pa., March 15.—Georgie Nichols, Buffalo middleweight, gained the decision over Indian Tiger West, of Monessen, in the 10-round main event here last night, in a vicious battle which saw Nichols all but knock out the Indian in the third round. In that hectic chapter West slumped to the ropes under a terrific left hand volley and was half-knocked, half-pushed on to the floor. He was assisted back into the ring and took a count of nine. He fought gamely, but ineffectively during the remainder of the bout.

Sammy Harris, Akron Negro lightweight, stopped Al Rowe's 48-bout victory march when he registered a technical knockout over the New York lad in the first round. Joey Coffman, Buffalo, bested Jackie Shupack, Paterson, N. J., in a 6-round bout, and Johnny Zacks, Erie, and Carl Scalise, Erie, fought a 4-round draw. In the opener, Tusky Hazlett, Franklin, scored a technical knockout over Tommy Thompson, Conneaut, O., in the third round.

CANZONERI COPS

DE VOS VICTOR

CHICAGO, March 15.—(AP.)—Rene De Vos, Belgian middleweight, was awarded a decision over Clyde Chastain, blond youth from Dallas, Tex., at the end of their 10-round battle in the Chicago Stadium last night.

PAUL, BROWN DRAW

BUFFALO, March 15.—(AP.)—Tommy Paul, of Buffalo, weighing 121¾, fought a 10-round draw here last night with Al Brown, recognized bantamweight champion.

N. KENSINGTON HIGH WINS

WILSON'S FOUL WINS

The fourth session was all but over when Wilson was fouled as he attempted to cut under the hoop. He made the first one drop through, but his second was short. The one proved to be enough, for Dayoub was getting the tip-off and New Kensington successfully froze onto the ball until the final gun.

New Kensington continued to show a fine passing game, and handled the ball well. Only the close guarding of Rankin and Ford, and the fact that Wilson and Dayoub were unable to find the range prevented New Kensington from winning earlier. Wilson missed shot after shot under the hoop, as did the big center.

Uniontown's marksmanship, too, was off color, although young Everhart, dropping in five fine goals, and making good on one out of four tries at the foul line, led in the scoring with 11 points. McCandless and Wilson each scored eight points for New Kensington.

New Castle, meeting Duquesne tonight, scrambled into the semi-finals by scoring triumphs over North Union and Waynesburg in first and second round tussles. Duquesne defeated Swissvale and North Braddock to get where it is today. Last night's lineup:

N. Kensington—23.		Uniontown—22.
Wilson	F	Ford
McCandless	F	Everhart
Dayoub	C	Fike
Ames	G	Rankin
Laughlin	G	Harris

Scores by periods:

New Kensington	5	4	7	3	2	4	1—23
Uniontown	7	4	3	2	4	0	2—22

Substitutions—Uniontown, Johns for Fike.

Field goals—New Kensington, Wilson 5, McCandless 2, Dayoub, Ames 2. Uniontown, Everhart 5, Ford, Harris, Rankin, Johns.

Fouls—New Kensington, Wilson, 2 out of 3; McCandless, 4 out of 7; Dayoub, 0 out of 1; Ames, 1 out of 1. Uniontown, Ford, 2 out of 3; Everhart, 1 out of 4; Fike, 0 out of 1.

Team fouls—Uniontown, 4 out of 10; New Kensington, 7 out of 14.

Time of periods—8 minutes. (Four extra, three-minute periods).

Referee—Beggs Snyder. Umpire—Yats Wallace.

DUKE PREPS ENTER

The Duquesne Prep five, runner-up in the state Catholic high school tourney staged here recently by Duquesne University, have accepted an invitation to compete in the National Catholic interscholastic tournament at Chicago, beginning Tuesday of next week.

Shady Side Academy's polo team, the first in the history of the school, will play Culver Military Academy riders at Culver, Ind., today. The team, including Flaccus, Lynch and McCahill, left for Culver last night.

E. McKEESPORT COPS

East McKeesport Junior High copped the Allegheny County junior floor title by defeating Stowe Township, 7 to 5, on the Scott High of North Braddock floor last night. The lineup:

E. McKeesp't—7.		Stowe Twp.—5.
Berwick	R	Shaw
Forman	F	Wonasik
Burton	C	Laquinta
Ridinger	G	Skirlin
Hanauer	G	Larkosh

SHARON IN FINAL

GROVE CITY, March 15.—Sharon and Erie East will meet in the final of the Northwestern Pennsylvania tourney this evening as the result of wins in the first round play here last night. Sharon won by a wide margin, 35-12, but Erie East encountered trouble with Punxsutawney, winning out, 21-18. The lineups:

Erie East—21.		Punxsutawney—18.
Trostmiller	F	Kingsley
Petrosky	F	Gerbolt
Kepler	C	Fagley
Palmquist	G	Catanzarite
Forrest	G	Simpson

Substitutions—Erie, Miller for Kepler, Punxsutawney, Honey for Kingsley, Field goals—Trostmiller 5, Petrosky 2, Grube 2, Catanzarite 2, Simpson, Honey for Fagley. Erie, 5 out of 6; Punxsutawney, 4 out of 13. Referee—Bolster. Umpire—Wahs.

Sharon—35.		Sheffield—12.

JOSEPHINE M'KIM

Miss McKim, former Homestead miss, is defending her 440 and 880-yard and one-mile titles in the National A. A. U. swimming championships for women at Miami, Fla., this week-end. Yesterday she set a new record of 3.49 in the 300-yard event.

MISS M'KIM SETS RECORD

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., March 15.—(AP.)—Stars entered the third day of their assault on existing records in the National A. A. U. women's indoor swimming championships today with the distinction of having established four new world marks since the water carnival opened Thursday.

Josephine McKim, of Los Angeles, former Homestead (Pa.) star, knocked 9 2-5 seconds off the record for the 300-yard swim when she splashed the distance in 3 minutes 49 seconds.

Jane Fauntz, of the Illinois Woman's Athletic Club of Chicago, retained her title in the low-board diving event yesterday, while Helen Madison, Seattle, set a new record in the 100-meter trial against time, breaking the former record by 1 2-5 seconds. Miss Madison was clocked at 1:08.

Sport Vignettes

And now it's check and rubber check! . . . One reason Jackie Rodgers is anxious to knock out Archie Bell in their bout at Motor Square Garden a week hence is that he has scored only eight successive knockouts and Primo Carnera, with nine, is one up on him . . . The hockey playoffs will be with us next week and maybe they'll be finished in time for next season to start on schedule . . . Great racket, those playoffs, which include as many teams as possible and are stretched out over as long a period as possible . . . Of course, they're all in the interest of the sport and the gate has no bearing on the matter . . . Just like having the first eight clubs in each major league in baseball stage a world series at the end of the season to determine which one really is the champion . . . Or like the endless heavyweight elimination tournaments in boxing . . . Frank Visotsky, the new pitcher of the Giants, probably will make the family name famous in the baseball lineups as V's't'k' . . . Richard Shikat defends his alleged world heavyweight wrestling championship against Fereno Holuban, the alleged European champion, in an alleged title bout in New York on March 24, if anyone cares . . . Matty won 28 games by 1-0 scores during his career with the New York Giants . . . That was in the days before the lively ball, when John McGraw was famous for his strategy and base-running was an art . . . You could get on base by stopping one with your elbow, be sacrificed to second, go to third on an infield out and steal home, and zip—there would be the old ball game, right in the sack . . . Three fouls in six bouts in Madison Square Garden, New York, the other night indicate that the Phoul Scott influence still is with us . . . Emmett Rocco, the Ellwood City heavyweight, takes on a tough opponent in Al Friedman, the Jewish star, of Boston, in the main bout at the New Castle Jolly Bowl Monday night . . . Friedman only a week ago really defeated Tuffy Griffiths in a 10-round bout in Boston, but didn't get the decision . . . He had Tuffy almost out in the eighth round, and Tuffy is the very tuff young person whom Jack Sharkey refused to meet at Miami, "choosing" Phil Scott instead . . . It was Friedman's second moral victory over Griffiths, who also received a disputed decision over him in Chicago some time ago . . . Last month Friedman was beating Jim Maloney in Boston when he missed a swing and went headlong out of the ring in the fourth round and was injured so badly that he could not continue and lost on a technical knockout . . . A little more than a year ago, the clever Jewish heavy won a decision over Rocco in Cleveland, and Emmett will be out to avenge this setback Monday night.—HARRY KECK.

Unite Lovers
How Mavro's timely tale converts a selfish mother who opposed her daughter's love, will be told.
The girl loves a young lobleman of obscure family, but her mother is ambitious for a better match and resorts to ill health to occupy the girl's time until the opening of the social season.
Discovering that her daughter has met the lad in the garden, the mother develops a fine case of hysteria. While she rails at the girl, a flute is heard and Mavro appears.
He tells of an empress who forbade her son to marry any of the young girls of the court, telling him that none were worthy. The lad protests, but the mother, aided by the court doctor, assures him that if he wants evil will befall her.
One day in the great hall a pretty figure comes to life. It is a porcelain duchess, and he falls in love with her. She tells him that she cannot return his love because he is a porcelain doll, but he has a heart of flesh and blood. The mother and doctor try to poison her, but with no effect. They make a potion to kill all human affection in the lad's heart. It succeeds, and he becomes more devoted to the duchess, and she returns his love for the first time.
The mother in a rage strikes the duchess with a sword, and she is shattered into bits. Turning, she discovers that her son has also been killed. Examination proves that his heart had turned to porcelain and was smashed to bits.

We Now Present

By DARRELL V. MARTIN,
Radio Editor.

NANCY CARROLL, who was seen here this week in "Dangerous Paradise," will be heard in the Paramount-Publix Hour from Hollywood at 10 o'clock tonight, WJAS will be the Pittsburgh station.

KDKA will contact the Byrd expedition at 11 o'clock. Although the pioneer has made no announcement there is a possibility that the voice of Byrd will be relayed to listeners from Dunedin. Anyway, at this end of the 10,000-mile span, several messages of congratulation will be read to the explorer by Louis Kaufman and "Big Bill" Farren.

Will Rogers will receive $15,000 for a 12-minute talk over a chain of midwestern stations, it is reported.

* * *

This brings up the question of how much Walter Winchell received for his Van Heusen speech this week. We would guess three to five thousand.

Like many other men who later have become famous, Floyd Gibbons was fired from his first job as a reporter. The paper was located in Minneapolis, and the job paid Gibbons $7 a week.

Our genial Claude Morris, KayDee announcer, will play the part of Samuel Adams in the British Stamp Act drama at the pioneer next Friday night.

BOTH PLAY DOG

Asked which was the dog, Andy told the Sun-Telegraph:

"Both of us. If Amos is talking, I am the dog. If I am talking, he is the dog. Also frequently the man nearest the microphone does it. At first we used the resined string pulled through a tin can, but no more."

* * *

When the spirit moved Amos to call up Ruby Taylor in Chicago while he was entertaining visitors in the William Penn Hotel a week ago, the conversation went something like this:

"Dis is Amos, honey," he said. "I'se in Pittsburgh!"

Ruby, however, couldn't seem to get it, and after several attempts to spell "Pittsburgh," Amos finally said:

"You knows where I left for, honey. Well I got there!"

AND ANOTHER—

When Amos and Andy visited Washington, D. C., they put over a serious attempt to have Robert, the famous Negro waiter at the Press Club, join the Mystic Knights of the Sea.

"But, gentlemens," said Robert, who never forgets his good manners, "I already belongs to the Knights of St. John. And I pays my dues."

Whereupon Andy gave the distress signal, but that was as far as they got with Robert.

CHICKIE

By ELENORE MEHERIN

CHAPTER XXXIV.

JAKE swung his shoulders with a high, jaunty air. Chickie laughed—a bright, reckless assent, her eyes all at once sparkling.

As Jake helped her into his car there came into her mind—vital, imperious, young—the face of Barry Dunne as he challenged her when she inclined to the luxurious joy of the yachting trip. She shut it from her with a hot, defiant passion: "I don't care! You should have much to say! You care so much!" Her hurt was a raw, open cut, throbbing in her mind.

They went dashing along the smooth roads.

Chickie running away from work, running from that window across the alley into the wide open beauty, the beaming color of the warm spring day, felt a ripple of defiant gladness. Nice in Jake to come just when she was so deep in gloom her heart was a lump of lead; gay to be swinging so merrily down the valleys. She looked at him gratefully and smiled.

"Now I want to know, Helena Bryce—how are you? For you see the high gods gave us the spring to let us perceive it's O. K. with them if it's O. K. with us. I may not bring you back since such is such!"

She threw him a startled look of fear. He slowed the car and touched her hand.

"See here, Chickie, that's not the way I want you to look at me. Understand? Some one of these days you're going to come and put your arms around me and kiss me because you want to—because you want to like anything—as you say yourself. Till then you are as safe as a babe in the madonna's arms. I'm telling you something."

He began to laugh, his black eyes touching her like wild fire, sending a strange, expectant shiver through her. "And Chickie—shall I tell you something? I've a wish I never had before. You know I'd like to have Helena Bryce think me the finest fellow in the world. I'd rather like to be that for her—"

She said eagerly, a catch in her voice, a sudden ache opening in her heart, "Oh, would you? I do think you're fine. I've thought it right along. I think you are just kingly."

Suggests Vacation

The red lips sobered. He said quietly: "I want more than that, Chickie. I mean to have more than that. I'm going to have it. You see—I know what I want from life, Chickie, dear—so I get it. You don't know what you want. That's a mistake. I've told you this before. You ought to take a vacation and think the whole thing out. Make up your mind what you're after; set your vision on it; keep it there. It will come to you. I know. But if you don't have your goal set, you're likely to land where you never in the wide world intended to go."

"Oh, I know what I want! Indeed I do."

"Are you sure that your head wants it as well as your heart?"

"Well, it doesn't pay to be too greedy, does it? We can't satisfy both all the time. Like a big family, there's always sure to be one with a grouch."

He glanced at her a little sadly. "Chickie, I had an idea you'd call it all off."

"I don't know what you mean, Jake."

"Yes, you do. I mean your heart. I thought you'd call it home again."

She laughed nervously. "Ears it has, but it hears not! That's the way a heart is. Did you know that? It goes where it will and stays till it breaks!"

"Young hearts break easily, Chickie. They're very brittle. After a while they learn to bounce. Then they're happy, and we are, too. I shan't mind a break or two—even a very bad break. But what is it you want from life—tell me, will you?"

"You promise to get it for me?"

"I promise that."

"Quite a large order, my kind Lord Bountiful. I want just oceans—coming in with gigantic waves all dazzling—look—"

Stately Homes

They were now far in the hills. Soft clouds of white shot through with rose drifted about a pink stone palace surmounting a landscaped bluff. She pointed to it.

"Suppose I ask for that? Is it mine?"

"Could you do with an acre or two less than that?"

"No, sir! Not an inch less."

"Want it enough, my dear—it shall be yours."

They went circling about the magnificent places. Chickie's eyes drank eagerly the wild loveliness of the gardens; the deep-toned harmony of line and color in the architecture. She had a burning curiosity to enter these stately homes, be invited to tea—oh, just somehow saunter through the gorgeous rooms. She said with childlike impulse to Jake:

"Well, do you know Janina was in one of these places where the women had five closets just stacked with clothes and a hundred pairs of shoes — there must have been that many, for Janina stopped counting when she got to 39. I'd love to get into some of those closets, rummage among them—maybe drop a rag or two out the window—crafty-like and you down in the lawn to catch it! Would you?"

"If I'd known you had this hankering, Miss Brice, I'd have taken you through that one we passed about a mile back. I know the owners. Next time we're down here"—he paused, mirth on his lips—"the very next time we're down here, Chickie, suppose we go through it."

"Really — you mean that, Jake?"

"Yes—"

"Soon? Why, you don't know I've just ached to get into one of these places for years."

"Name the day, then, my dear!" He caught her hand suddenly, pressing it hard between his palms. "I've ached for a thing or two, Chickie. Are you happy just now? Like my brilliant hunch—and the pair of us playing hookey together?"

"I love it!"

"Then we'll do it again. How is Saturday?"

"I — I don't know — well" — All at once little movements trembled on her lips. She felt tears rush to her throat, pelting there hotly. She kept pinching her thumb till it was pointed as a mandarin's. "I'm not sure about Saturday, Jake."

Chickie Nervous

"Please, Chickie. Take a tip from me—an old dog, Chickie—won't hurt your case. Saturday at noon — lunch at the Ritz then down here and rummage through the closets. How is that?"

"I suppose that's lovely."

"Lovely is good enough for me, my dear! So that's that!"

Half a dozen times during the afternoon she started to say: "No, I can't come with you Saturday. I forgot a date. Oh, I can't break it!"

She grew nervous. Her thought brought Barry Dunne before her. Her thought pleaded eagerly with him. She imagined his young, ardent eyes hard with scorn.

But she let the date stand.

Her pillow was damp. She turned it over and pressed her face against the cool fabric. Then she switched on the pretty blue lamp over her bed and reached for a book. It was a book Barry had given her—the story of Ethan Frohm.

But she didn't read. She sat upright and let her thoughts and her emotion beat and exhaust her with the battle they waged. Her love railed against her resentment; in the end love won, leaving her shaken with regret because she had allowed Jake to lure her into another date.

Her thought protested: "I have a right to take a little pleasure! He doesn't care! He's hardly let me see him this whole week. He means that about waiting years and years. Why, he thinks I'm anxious! As though I'm throwing myself at him! And he must remind me—oh!"

Decides Against Jake

Love answered: "He's working like a slave. He can't run from the office as you did! And didn't he say he wished it could be right away? He loves enough to wait and wait"——

The room filled with images of him; as he stood that Sunday morning at the Abbots', his profile etched in glory against the clear autumn sky; as he came swiftly toward her, looking up, laughing, saying with his lips, "I love you!"

Running down the country with Jake because she was piqued! Furious with Barry because he had to work nights and couldn't entertain her, because he happened to say lightly that they had years and years to talk. Ah—that was a mean, petty way for her to act!

But she would make amends. She would be worthy of the fine, strong beauty she saw in him. There would be no "next time" with Jake; no long drive through the hills; no more dinners at quaint, out-of-the-way places that only he might know. Oh—she would give it up, and gladly. Love bathed her in its sad, terrible humility.

She went to work the next morning in a state of exaltation. Yesterday she would wipe away. She wouldn't speak of it. But there was the future—all of it bright with promise. And it was for him.

The fervor of her resolution made her radiant; filled her with a happy mirth. Janina observed and made her own deductions, which she promptly conveyed to Chickie in a note:

"Not such a babe in the woods, after all, huh? Glad to see you're not going to follow in our dear Stella's footsteps! Have a nice li'l trip and get back 'as was.' We got your stall, ole dear, but Mitchell didn't. Better look a little pale. Remember, you were too ill, to work yesterday!"

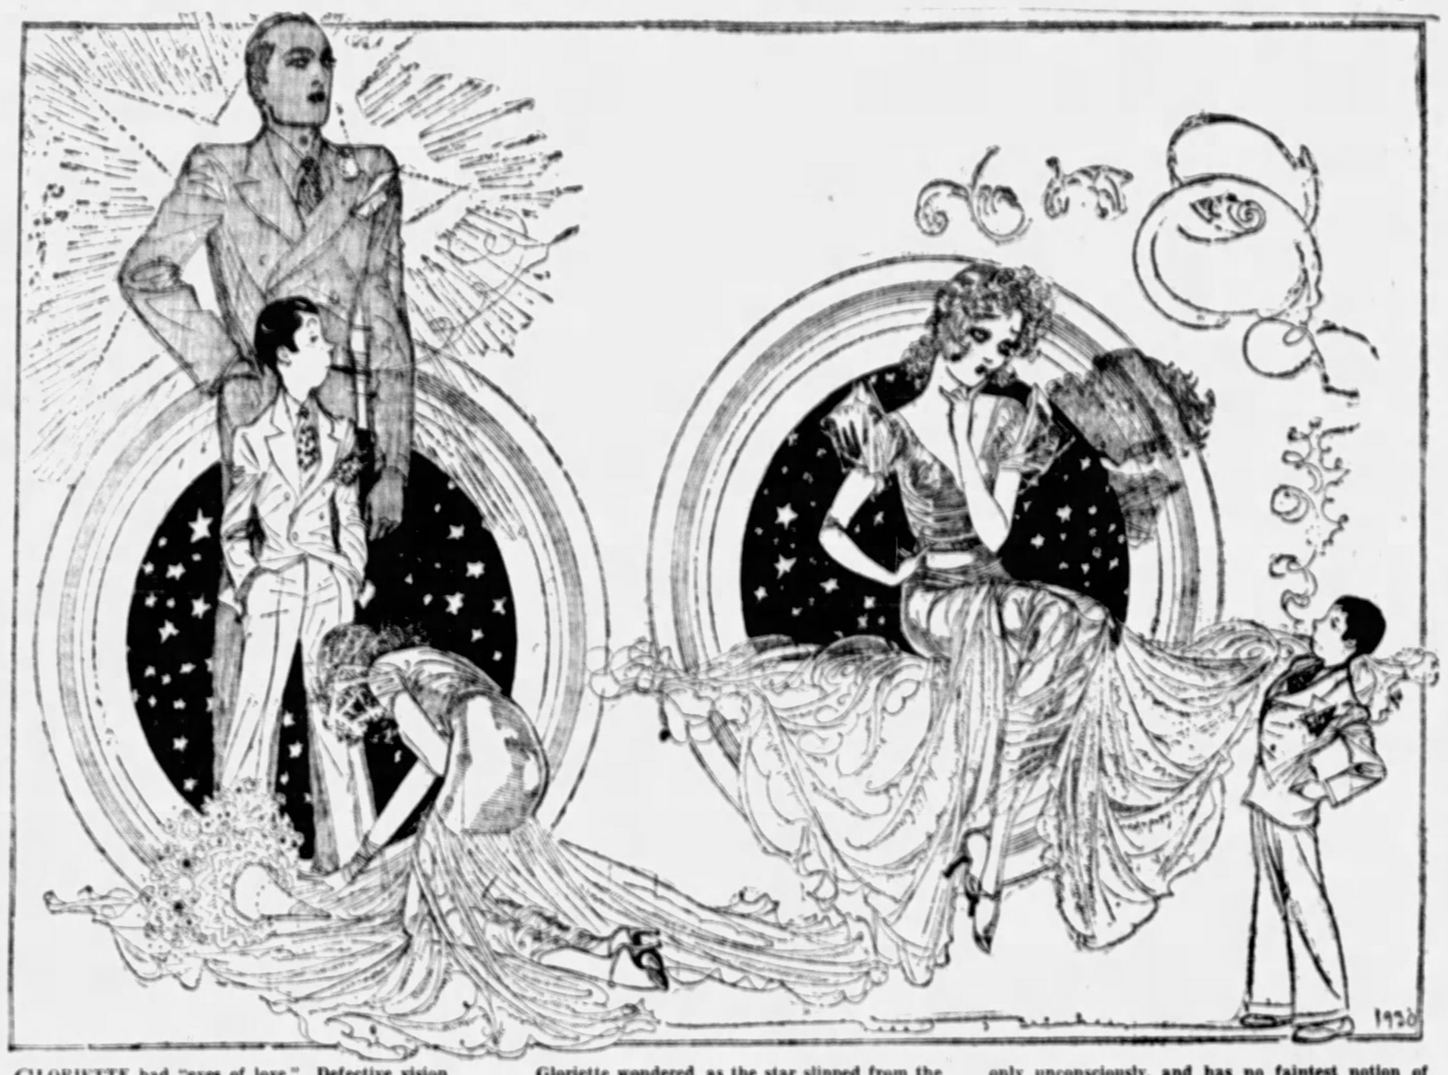
THE EYES OF LOVE

DRAWN BY Nell Brinkley



GLORIETTE had "eyes of love." Defective vision, you would say.

She saw a great big boy, with character and shoulders fit to meet the world with and show it its place. Dazzled by the light of love in her eyes, blundering blissfully in its amber glow-and-glitter, she tied her wagon to what she thought was a star, as a girl is urged to do, and found the star just a bit of clod. And herself contemplating the rest of her life in its company.

Star-shine! It was just the polish on his hair. Pride! It was but the boastful puffing of a chest and heart too small to ever really grow. Good temper and wit! It came out that it was only clowning—that never tired.

Gloriette wondered, as the star slipped from the sky, the glow faded, the vision that she had set up for herself to bring bouquets shrank from a "big" man to a "little" one—little in soul—how she could have ever seen him as anything but what he was. Looked past and through him to a splendid figure that was only a dream fashioned by herself, with blind eyes, out of the stuff that girl's hopes and beliefs are made of. The rest of the world had stood around at the wedding and wondered that, too!

Somebody said that women were given two eyes; the one to love with, the other to "see through men's shifts." They might better have said to see him as he is. For the average lover, who is a poor choice in the clear eyes of the rest of the world, turns his bright side only as any other human would, poses only unconsciously, and has no faintest notion of that other person Gloriette thinks he is!

But that's just a bit of poetry. Women's two eyes set alike, and both blindly sometimes.

Aunts and uncles, moms and dads, younger brothers and sisters, and other young things, marvel at the man that Glorious Gloriette adores and means to take. And even other men stand aghast at the man "a nice girl will fall in love with!"

Said a big man and good one, a kind one and splendid one, one day to the artist, "My girl thought him a musician—but he was only a 'crooner'!"

The father saw the "crooner," saw the lack of forehead and the near-set eyes, but "Eyes of Love" was listening to the "Moonlight Sonata" played by Eros in the dark. —NELL BRINKLEY.

Love's Reawakening

Continuation of Loves Awakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Mary, Near Collapse, Begins Story of Events

MARY was lying back in her chair as I asked her to tell me what had happened preceding the attack upon Noel. The hot bath and coffee had aided in skirting the danger of the collapse I had feared for her, and if Lillian's mandate and the necessity of knowing the truth had not been upon me, I should not have dreamed of questioning her. As it was I was quickly contrite as I saw a long rippling shudder go over her at my query, and I determined that Lillian must question her in the morning after I had gone, or, if necessary, I would postpone my journey to the farm until after she had awakened, telephoning Katherine not to wait for my arrival before starting.

"Never mind the question, dearest," I adjured her. "It can wait until tomorrow. I shouldn't have asked you now."

She drew a long breath, as if bracing herself for a disagreeable task, and began her story, slowly at first then more rapidly.

"The worst of it is that I am to blame for everything," she said, her eyes darkening with pain. "I don't mean now— I can't help anything now—but I'm still being punished for that wickedness of mine—you know."

I nodded, for I knew only too well to what she referred, her stealing out of our apartment, disguised to appear as a masked dancer at a cabaret with Jack Leslie, a cad—and worse—who, in order to be revenged upon Philip Veritzen, whom he hated, had planned to make a byword of Mary, the great producer's protegee.

"I thought I was all through with that," she said. "But I guess if you do something real low down like that you never get through paying for it."

"'Never,' is too hopeless a word, Mary," I told her. "I'm sure you don't need to use it. Now suppose you forget your own conscience and remorse for awhile—there's nothing to be gained now by remembering then—and tell me just what happened."

She twisted her fingers nervously within my hand, then tightened them convulsively on mine.

"It began this afternoon," she said, "when I went for my bus ride and run in the park."

I tensed with sudden interest. It had been at my insistence only that Mary had resumed the brisk walks—almost runs—along the park skirting the Hudson River, which had been the scene of her first encounter with Grace Draper, who, with such venomous adroitness, had brought Jack Leslie into the young girl's life. Since she had a horror of the vicinity ever since Grace Draper's suicide and the terrifying episode which had marked her final performance as the masked dancer. But the resilience of youth, her need of exercise, and the fact that the river park was the nearest thing to the country to be found in the city, had led her to follow my suggestion that she resume her daily walks there, although our location at the hotel made it necessary for her to travel to and from the park upon the buses.

"It was the queerest thing," Mary went on. "I hadn't thought of Jack Leslie for months, when, all of a sudden today, on the bus, I had the oddest fancy that he was close to me, watching me. I had all I could do to keep from turning around and looking over the people on the top of the bus—I was up in the very front of it. I kept still, however, until I came to my street, then, as I got off I looked at everybody, but there was nobody on the top of the bus who even looked like him. I could just see the top of a man's hat going down the stairway.

"For two cents I would have turned back and taken another bus home, but I thought that would be too silly for words, after I had traveled away up to the Drive. So I went on into the park and started my run. There were very few people in the park, but as I neared that seat almost opposite our old apartment on the Drive, the seat where I first saw—those—awful people—I saw Jack Leslie standing half hidden by the bushes, and he said—he said—"

Horoscopes

Sunday, March 16

SUNDAY'S horoscope is not very important excepting for mental preoccupations and interests. The mind may be profoundly studious, leaning toward the occult or metaphysical. There may be vaxations or financial anxieties.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of financial worries, with some friction or misunderstanding. Shun extravagance, speculation, strife and litigation. The mind may be alert, high-keyed and lean toward original research.

A child born on this day may be mentally alert, independent and original. It may be quick and tempestuous, extravagant of gambling instincts.

Monday, March 17

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is for very lively and probably exciting conditions in both business and social affiliations. New projects should flourish under high Martian stimulus. Social, artistic, domestic and romantic affairs should react to a gracious Solar-Venus aspect.

Those whose birthday it is will find a year of lively and progressive conditions with much enterprise and initiative. Personal affiliations will also be active and flourishing.

A child born on this day should be aggressive and resourceful, and also endowed with engaging social graces and talents.

Sidelights on the 'Mere' Sex

EMOTIONAL appeal is something that every woman thinks she has, until she tries to use it to get her husband to put on his evening clothes.

The trouble with the modern young Lothario is that he so often mistakes audacity for "technique" and swagger for "it."

affairs, that husbands and wives will soon be getting together after five happy years apart, to celebrate their "wooden divorce."

If the new long skirts are going to bring modesty back into vogue, a lot of girls will have to learn all over again just what to blush at.

Now that the bathroom is becoming so ornamental, the average man feels almost as though he were committing a sacrilege or desecrating a mosque, when he splashes soap on the floor or spills the tooth powder.

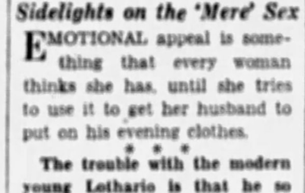
That hollow sound which a bachelor's heart gives out when tapped is due to the vacuum, which nature, and every woman, just naturally abhor.



The man who made his first wife get up at dawn to rustle his breakfast when he went fishing, usually finds himself carrying a breakfast tray up to his second wife—and wondering how it all happened.

No matter how many other men may admire her, one man's indifference can give a woman an inferiority complex that will spoil her life for a week.

Removes Scratches

A cork over which a little rouge is sprinkled will remove scratches from glass. Rub the cork over the affected parts with a circular movement until the scratches disappear.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

The Discriminating Hostess

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. If a young lady invites a young man to her home for dinner, and then decides to see a movie, which, of course, is agreeable to both, is it correct for her, being hostess, to give the money to the man and ask him to get the tickets, or should she get them herself?

2. If the gentleman is well known to the young lady, is the following a good introduction to her mother: "Mother, Mr. Brown; John, my mother"?

A READER.

SINCE she is hostess, it would be best either for her to get the tickets ahead of time, if this is possible, or not to suggest going to the movies. After dinner it would be quite natural for her guest to suggest that they go to the movies, but if he does not it is not gracious of the hostess to do this, unless she has the tickets. This is the evening of her entertainment, of her "extending of hospitality," and she should not, therefore, suggest something that she cannot, without embarrassment, provide for. In other words, it would be embarrassing for the young man if she gave him the money to buy the tickets, and she should not do this. Nor should she buy them, when she is with the man, at the theater.

2—No, this is not a good introduction form, since it is not good form to make such a double form of introduction. Say, either, "Mother, may I present Mr. Brown?" or "Mother, this is Mr. John Brown," or "Mr. Brown, this is my mother." The use of the term "this is" is particularly appropriate for family introductions such as this.

Inviting the Guest of Honor

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

A club was recently organized in the office where I work, and I was elected secretary. One of the employes has just been promoted to a higher office, and we decided to have a party in his honor, and I was chosen to write the invitation to him. Could you tell me the proper way to word this?

F. M. B.

Dear Mr. Lambert:

The members of the ——— Club are so delighted at your promotion that they wish very much to express their congratulations and happiness at your success by giving a party in your honor. Tentatively we have chosen the evening of Friday the tenth of April. Will this evening be agreeable and convenient for you? If so, will you be our guest of honor on that evening at the rooms of the club, at 10 o'clock, at a supper dance?

Best wishes from us all, and high anticipations for the tenth.

Faithfully,

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

AN inheritance of good features is good fortune. Every smart girl child should pick out a good-looking grandmother. There's no denying that a well-chisled nose, a thatch of ambrosial locks, a complexion like the lily and the rose, and divinely beautiful eyes combine to make life sweeter and gayer—at least that part of one's life that is spent in reflections before the mirror. If a girl hasn't these inheritances she must develop other qualities of beauty—kindliness of speech, pleasing voice, graceful carriage, delightful personality. Beauty in one form or another is possible to every woman.

When women open up their purses, eyes peek in. If the purse is a storehouse for all kinds of junk, it is no testimonial for neatness and daintiness. Paper money should not come in contact with powder pads; there is danger of bacteria being spread upon the noble nose. Soiled handkerchiefs do not belong to this day and age of cleanliness and order.

A new toilet article appears in the makeup box. It is a camel's hairbrush used on the heads of infants, but the beautifying dearhearts employ it to brush away surplus powder before applying rouge. Powder should never be rubbed into the skin. Why? The skin doesn't like it and gets mad.

PURPLE eye shadows are the latest cosmetic nifty to be tucked into the make-up box. But beware of them unless they are laid on with discretion. Overconfidence in these beauty smudges—one layer too much—and the beauty-quester looks as if she had just emerged from a fist fight. When applying any eye shadow the fact must be kept in mind that it is applied to a skin surface that is creased and which is moveable. Therefore the flesh should be held flat with the left hand while the mysterious magic is ironed on with the first finger of the right hand. Eye shadows are not recommended for daytime wear—they belong to the evening.

Cold compresses should finish up a massage treatment for reducing the double chin. The best method is to dip a piece of gauze in ice cold witch hazel, or any other good astringent, place it over the twin chins, and keep it in place with a chin strap. The proper massage is a rolling of the tissues between thumb and first finger, first anointing the skin with a heavy cream. The astringent is necessary so the tissues won't be left loose and depleted. It tones and tightens them.

How to Keep Well

By DR. COPELAND

Soft Living Takes Its Toll

BEN JONSON, that inimitable sixteenth century writer, dramatist, poet, and friend of Shakespeare, wrote these words:

"Oh, Health! Health! the blessing of the rich!

"The riches of the poor!

"Who can buy thee at too dear a rate since there is no enjoying the world without thee?"

DR. COPELAND

Health is for rich and poor so long as the laws of health are followed. Little does one enjoy the world when health is gone.

What can be done to build for health? You cannot have good health without plenty of physical exercise. Yet the great insurance companies tell us that physical examinations of thousands of persons reveal the fact that human muscles are growing flabby. In this country, and in other countries, at the beginning of the World War, the fact was found, never before realized, that thousands of young men were unfit for service because of flabby muscles, and other physical defects.

Most of the things that our ancestors had were acquired through hard work. They worked for what we merely press the button to get.

In primitive times man dug in the ground, climbed trees and hunted game and animals. He had to be on the defensive against attacks of the enemy.

Today labor-saving devices are increasing constantly. In consequence, most persons are not getting the necessary exercise to maintain good health. They go without it unless they plan for it in the day's program.

Are you getting sufficient exercise? If you are not, the chances are that if you go on very long in your own way you will be in the class with the big army of physically unfit.

When there is a continued lack of proper exercise, not only do the muscles grow flabby and soft, but, besides, the lungs do not get enough exercise. The heart action grows weak, for here, also, is a great mass of muscles demanding exercise. The blood vessels grow weak and fail to do their required work of carrying the blood to all parts of the body.

During the cold months, too many persons stay indoors most of the time. They should be having regular daily exercise, indoors or out, every day of the year. For a normal person, bending and stretching exercises are good for flabby muscles. Do not exercise spasmodically. Begin in moderation and work up to a point of judicious exercise. Nothing could be better for your health.

It is a good thing to find some form of physical play, some form of relaxation from which pleasure and profit are derived. Outdoor sports are more popular than ever today, but there are thousands of people who are onlookers merely. They do not go in for sports themselves, but even so, the open-air life is decidedly beneficial.

Spring is coming on and with it outdoor golf. Here is a form of exercise that takes thousands of persons out into the fresh air and sunshine, and probably adds years to the expectation of life.

If you have been an indoor person during the winter months, now is the time to change your habits and get out of doors. Perhaps you like tennis. This is a splendid recreation, but it should be known that a good many overdo in playing tennis. It is a most vigorous, strenuous game, but none is more conductive to strength and vigor if you are in good condition and can stand the pace.

It is well to have a physical examination once a year, so that you may regulate your exercise to your physical powers.

Answers to Health Queries

B. M. H. Q.—What do you advise for a patient who continually imagines he has a mental obsession?

A.—In a case of this kind it might be well to consult a psychiatrist.

G. P. Q.—I am 5 ft. 9 in. tall and weigh 137 pounds—what can I do to develop my figure?

A.—Improve your health in general and take some kind of outdoor exercise regularly.

Household Hints

If a baked custard has water at the bottom of the dish it is probably because the milk was not slightly warmed before the eggs were added.

Give it a good beating if you want fine applesauce. That is the way to bring out the best that's in this delectable dish. While the sauce is still warm there has been no opportunity for it to thicken, and it is then that the cook takes out her favorite egg-beater and whisks it briskly. Any little stubborn lumps that may have persisted in remaining will be broken up, air is fluffed into the tasty mixture, and, well, just try it for yourself!

NARCOTIC RING QUIZ WIDENS

NEW YORK, March 15.—(AP.)—Charles H. Tuttle, United States attorney, disclosed today that, as a result of the seizure here on two ships, of two trunks, containing narcotics valued at $400,000, his office has been investigating an alleged international ring said to have been smuggling narcotics into this country.

Mr. Tuttle said that the reason Jacob Blum, an American, was held at Southampton, England, on perjury charges, made by the United States State Department, was that Blum, whose real name, he said is John Bell, was indicted here in connection with the wholesale smuggling of narcotics. An effort is being made to bring about Blum's return.

Tuttle said that several weeks ago, $300,000 worth of narcotics were found in a trunk in Blum's stateroom on the Ile de France after the steamer had docked here. Blum, the federal authorities said, escaped to England.

When the Majestic docked here on its last trip, another trunk, with $100,000 worth of narcotics, was found among the baggage of a passenger who denied its ownership.

SHERIFF CITED FOR LAXITY

Sheriff George W. Shaffer, of Armstrong County, was cited by Federal Judge R. M. Gibson to appear in court April 1 and show cause why he should not be adjudged in contempt, because of alleged laxity in the custody of government prisoners.

A complaint was filed against the sheriff by United States Attorney Louis E. Graham in which he charged that three government prisoners in the Armstrong County Jail had been permitted to leave the jail and return at their pleasure.

The prisoners, John Francuillo, Joseph Reich and Paul Hefferson, under jail sentences for violating the prohibition law, were arrested March 5 by prohibition agents on the street in the downtown district of Kittanning. They were brought to Pittsburgh and afterwards returned to the Armstrong County Jail. The federal prosecutor asked that the sheriff be adjudged in contempt.

BREAKS PAROLE, RESENTENCED

Found guilty in Criminal Court of embezzlement after he had but three months before been paroled after pleading guilty to charges of embezzlement and passing bad checks, Robert B. Good, Frankstown avenue, Wilkinsburg, was haled before Judge Harry H. Rowand, who revoked the parole and sentenced Good to serve 4½ to 9 years in the penitentiary. Visiting Judge J. A. McLaughry, of Mercer county, before whom the latest conviction was had, then sentenced Good to one year in the penitentiary, the sentence to run concurrent with the other sentence. The parole had been granted January 13 and a few days later Good gave out that he was to inherit $100,000 from a relative in West Virginia.

Druggist Regains Seized Liquor Supply

A forfeiture libel against three cases of whisky and other spirituous liquors was dismissed by Federal Judge R. M. Gibson, who ordered the return of the liquor to I. Spann, a druggist at 328 Oakmont avenue, Oakmont.

The liquor seized in the drug store by prohibition agents was used as evidence in the trial of Spann on December 13, 1928, at which he was acquitted. The government consented to the dismissal of the libel suit.

Explosion Burns Restaurant Cook

Samuel Campas, 33, of 1833 Boulevard of the Allies, cook in a restaurant at 1925 Murray avenue, was burned about the hands and face today when he attempted to light a gas stove in the restaurant. The gas had not been shut off and exploded when Campas applied a match. He was taken to the Pittsburgh Hospital.

DAILY TRUE STORY

Questions and Answers

"WHERE were you on the night of the 23rd, Mr. Dacey?"

"I was out of town, Mr. Ellis—beg pardon, Judge Ellis."

"This is an informal hearing, we will omit formalities and try to get through with this as speedily as possible. The question was as to your whereabouts on that night."

"I was not in Lakeville."

"Where were you?"

"I would think that my statement that I was not in Lakeville should be sufficient."

"But—but is there any reason why you should not tell, Mr. Dacey?"

"Yes, sir."

"Has it anything to do with the death of James Lambert?"

"I did not kill Lambert, Judge. I had nothing to do with his death."

"However, it would make it much easier if you were to answer the question — when I point out that stating that you were not at a certain place at a certain time does not constitute an alibi, you will see the necessity of answering."

"I was not in Lakeville, sir, on that night."

"Is it asking too much to want you to give proof of where you were?"

"In this case—yes, sir."

"Look here, you weren't friendly with Lambert, were you?"

"I detested the man."

"You quarreled with him?"

"He was—"

"Did you ever fight with him?"

"He was too cowardly to fight—a man. I had words with him on a few occasions."

"Money matters?"

"No, sir, personal matters."

"Lambert was not murdered for robbery. A large sum of money and other valuables were found on him. It was because of some personal matter that he evidently met his death."

Theodore Dacey shrugged his shoulders and said nothing.

Seeks Facts

"Look here, Ted, this is just an informal hearing—we've got to get at the bottom of this crime. We all know each other here, why can't you tell us what you know?"

"I have told you that I did not kill Lambert and that I wasn't in town that night."

"What do you know about the crime?"

"I cannot answer that."

"Am I to believe that you know the guilty party?"

"You are to believe, Judge Ellis, that I did not kill Lambert, that I did not send anyone to kill him, and that I had no idea that he was going to be killed."

"Yet, you won't deny that you know much about this murder—you have information that the authorities ought to possess. Is that true?"

"Whatever I might know won't bring him back to life. I'm not sure that I would tell it, if it would perform that unwelcome miracle."

"Look, here, Dacey, why equovate? Are you going to tell what you know?"

"I am not, sir."

"At least you will tell where you were on the night of the murder and thus clear yourself of all suspicion of having participated in the crime?"

"I didn't kill him, Judge."

Judge Ellis sighed and looked troubled.

"Am I to consider myself under arrest, Judge?"

"Not formally—but do not leave town."

Dacey bowed gravely and moved back from the chair at the long table in Judge Ellis' office where the preliminary hearing was being held.

"Miss Preston," said the judge.

Nina Nervous

Nina Preston was nervous as she came over to where Ted Dacey had been seated during the questioning process. She seemed to be looking appealingly at Dacey.

"You were with Lambert on the afternoon of the 23d, Miss Preston?"

"I was with him yesterday afternoon, yes, Judge. That is, I played in a foursome against him."

"And you went away with him?"

"I rode with him as far as Keely's garage, where my car was being given a change of oil."

"He left you there?"

"Yes, sir."

"You didn't join him later?"

"No, sir."

"Did you drive down to his shore bungalow last evening?"

"No, sir."

"The last time you saw him then was at Keely's garage?"

"It was."

"Did he say anything to you that would give any hint or clue that he apprehended danger?"

"Not at all."

"Did he ask you to come and see him?"

"He has asked me many times. I have never done so."

"Did he ask you yesterday?"

"He did not."

"Did he say that he expected visitors—was going to entertain?"

"He might have mentioned it."

"Did he name anyone?"

"He might have named a number—he was always boasting of conquests, for the most part, imaginary, I believe."

Miss Preston flashed an appealing glance at Dacey. He was seen to very slightly shake his head, as if warning her not to talk too much. This wasn't lost on the judge.

"Where were you last night, Miss Preston?"

"In Madison."

"At your home?"

"Part of the time."

"Diagonally across, some six miles."

"Did you see anyone coming across from that direction in a boat of any sort?"

"I did not."

Find Motor Boat

"Do you know anything about the Carter outboard motor boat found on the shore not far from your home?"

"I heard that a boat was found there."

"You did not see anyone in the boat?"

"No, Judge."

"Did any of your people see anyone? I mean your sister, Mrs. Thayer, who is visiting you."

"My sister went back to her home yesterday morning."

"Then you were alone in your home?"

Miss Preston was silent. Judge Ellis repeated the question.

"No, sir."

"Who was with you?"

Nina Preston turned and glanced at Ted Dacey. Then she turned back to the judge.

"Mr. Dacey was with me," she said, hesitatingly.

The few at the hearing seemed surprised and interested. They wondered why Dacey had refused to tell that he called on Miss Preston. They soon found out.

"Was he with you quite late?"

"He was at my house all night."

There was an embarrassing silence for a moment.

Ted Dacey's face was not red, but quite pale. He half arose from his chair. Nina Preston stared steadily at him and shook her head as he started to stand up.

"What time did Mr. Preston call on you last night?"

Judge Ellis seemed to have shaken off his surprise. He asked the question with gentleness.

"He came over before dark—around seven."

"Did either of you cross the lake?"

"No, sir, not last night."

"What time did Mr. Dacey leave your home?"

"Quite early—shortly after daylight."

"Do you know where he went?"

"I didn't see him go anywhere."

"Is that meant to be evasive, Miss Preston?"

The girl did not answer.

"Do you know anything about the murder of Lambert?"

"Was it murder, Judge?"

One of the detectives came in at this point and placed a note on the judge's desk. He glanced at it and turned to Miss Preston.

"Did you know that Dacey was going to the Lambert bungalow after he left you?"

"I know that Ted Dacey did not kill Lambert."

"You know something about the crime?"

"I have answered all that I can tell you—honestly."

"All that you can or will tell?"

"You may put it either way."

Pair Held

"Miss Preston and Mr. Dacey, I shall have to hold you on suspicion of being accessories after the fact of the crime."

"You may hold me—there is no need—it's absurd to hold Nina—Miss Preston," Dacey cried.

"Both of you know something that should be told—if you know the murderer you are each guilty of a grave offense in not telling."

"Permit me to arrange bail," Dacey said.

He reached for the judge's telephone just as the bell sounded. He stood back and Judge Ellis picked up the instrument and spoke.

He listened and finally said: "That will be the only thing for you to do."

His voice was tense despite his efforts at self-control and his hand shook as he set down the telephone.

"The person claiming responsibility for Lambert's death will be here in a few moments," he said.

The detective whispered to the Judge, who shook his head. He waved Miss Preston out of her chair. She went over and began whispering with Dacey.

And then June Ellis came in, the pretty young daughter of the judge. She was almost paper white.

"As this is an informal hearing, it will not be irregular for me to question my daughter, who telephoned me that she was responsible for Lambert's death," the judge said.

June came forward.

"I can tell it in a few words. I was unwise enough to take too many drinks at a party last night. Jim Lambert offered to take me home. Instead he took me to his bungalow. When he attacked me I struck him with one of his golf clubs—I didn't intend to kill him. Then I took a boat and went to Nina's to ask her advice. Ted Dacey was just saying goodnight to her when I got there. They took care of me all night because I was hysterical and ashamed, and they were afraid I'd jump in the lake." June Ellis paused for breath and suddenly collapsed.

Except to the few at this hearing, the "murder" of Jim Lambert was never solved.

Ted and Nina were married soon after this. They had never realized before that they were in love.

Freeing Forney Shows Need of Jury Reform

Another verdict that is a travesty on justice has been found by an Allegheny County jury in the acquittal of Alfred W. Forney, whose admissions before the grand jury stamp him as a self-convicted slot machine gambling racketeer.

Furthermore, he stands convicted before the public by the finding of the petit jury, a "Scotch verdict," not guilty but pay the costs.

In addition, he stands convicted before the public through the comment of the trial judge that the jury's verdict was in defiance of evidence and law.

Thus, thrice convicted, Forney escapes nothing of odium only the severer punishment that a more justified verdict would have entailed.

The jurors, too, like others that have deserved and met reprimand in our courts recently, stand under implication of being traitors to their own land and homes in betraying the law, made to protect them as part of society in general.

The frequency of such unwarranted verdicts presents a most serious problem. There must be a way to get one or two persons of intelligence on a jury. Lawyers defending persons charged with crime, of course, fight against having any person [illegible] reasoning power getting into juries that will try [illegible] but there must be a way to squeeze in one or two that will [illegible] rank above the grade that seems to prevail.

[illegible] courts are to continue to be made stages for farces that [illegible] must be found.

Another Democrat Hits U. S.-Europe Alliance

More good news to the nation. A second leading Democratic United States senator has declared flatly against involving the United States in Europe's affairs via the Kellogg pact.

Senator Claude Swanson, of Virginia, speaking in Washington, has duplicated the sentiments of Senator Joseph T. Robinson, speaking in London. Senator Swanson said on March 9:

"I DO NOT FAVOR ENTERING INTO ANY MEDITERRANEAN PACT OR EXTENSION OF THE KELLOGG TREATY TO CONSTITUTE A PACT AS SUGGESTED IN THE NAVAL CONFERENCE AT LONDON.

"IF IT MEANS SOMETHING, AND HAS ANY POTENCY WHATEVER, IT MEANS THAT THE UNITED STATES OBLIGATES ITSELF TO KEEP THE PEACE IN EUROPE AND ELSEWHERE AND WOULD BE PARTY TO THE DEMANDS AND SUGGESTIONS MADE AT ANY CONFERENCE FOR THIS PURPOSE, WHEN CALLED."

With these words, Senator Swanson drags the elaborate drapery off the proposed "consultation pact," an agreement for us to join England, France, Japan and Italy in "consultation" whenever their peace is threatened. Of course, as Senator Swanson says, we would be expected to carry out the majority vote on what to do about it.

"THIS WOULD BE AN ABANDONMENT OF THE MONROE DOCTRINE. THE CONFERENCE WOULD BE CALLED BY EUROPEAN POWERS TO INTERFERE AS MUCH IN AMERICA AS IN EUROPE.

"I DO NOT SEE HOW THE UNITED STATES COULD BE PARTY TO A PACT IN WHICH IT WOULD INTRUDE ITSELF INTO EUROPEAN AFFAIRS AND NOT PERMIT EUROPEAN NATIONS TO INTRUDE THEMSELVES INTO AMERICAN AFFAIRS."

That is exactly what was said by Thomas Jefferson, founder of Senator Swanson's Democratic party, in a letter to President Monroe, dated October 24, 1823, just thirty-two days before President Monroe addressed Congress and announced the Monroe doctrine to the world. Jefferson wrote:

"OUR FIRST AND FUNDAMENTAL MAXIM SHOULD BE NEVER TO ENTANGLE OURSELVES IN THE BROILS OF EUROPE. OUR SECOND, NEVER TO SUFFER EUROPE TO INTERMEDDLE WITH CISATLANTIC AFFAIRS. AMERICA, NORTH AND SOUTH, HAS A SET OF INTERESTS DISTINCT FROM THOSE OF EUROPE, AND PECULIARLY HER OWN. SHE SHOULD, THEREFORE, HAVE A SYSTEM OF HER OWN, SEPARATE AND APART FROM THAT OF EUROPE."—Jefferson to Monroe, October 24, 1823.

It is a happy day for the Democratic party and for the nation if, as Senators Swanson and Robinson indicate, the party is returning to the principles of its founder, who said:

"The Constitution thought it wise to restrain the executive and Senate from entangling and embroiling our affairs with those of Europe."—Thomas Jefferson, in parliamentary manual, 1800.

"DO WHAT IS RIGHT, LEAVING THE PEOPLE OF EUROPE TO ACT THEIR FOLLIES AND CRIMES AMONG THEMSELVES, WHILE WE PURSUE IN GOOD FAITH THE PATHS OF PEACE AND PROSPERITY."—From a letter from Thomas Jefferson to President Monroe, June, 1823.

"PEACE, COMMERCE AND HONEST FRIENDSHIP WITH ALL NATIONS, ENTANGLING ALLIANCES WITH NONE . . . I DEEM ONE OF THE ESSENTIAL PRINCIPLES OF OUR GOVERNMENT, AND, CONSEQUENTLY, ONE WHICH OUGHT TO SHAPE ITS ADMINISTRATION."—From Thomas Jefferson's first inaugural address.

". . . AND I AM NOT FOR LINKING OURSELVES BY NEW TREATIES WITH THE QUARRELS OF EUROPE; ENTERING THAT FIELD OF SLAUGHTER TO PRESERVE THEIR BALANCE.

"The first object of my heart is my own country."—From "Writings of Thomas Jefferson," Ford edition; letter to Elbridge Gerry, 1799.

So when Senator Robinson and Senator Swanson are advising against foreign entanglement they are talking good Democratic doctrine, historic Democratic doctrine, the doctrine of the founders of the Democratic party, the doctrine of the founders of the republic.

Sixty Dollars

Not Much to Start With.

Dr. Frederick Cook, who did not discover the North Pole, but who did sell oil stock, quits Leavenworth Prison. He is 65 years old and has $60 in his pocket.

Those $60 are his only asset. He starts life over again, you might say, from scratch.

The doctor is a man of brains. Had he been honest and avoided the short cuts he took to fame and fortune, he might have had more than $60 now.

Young gentlemen with brains, often tempted to take short cuts that look easy, but happen to be outside the law, should think about those $60.

"Bugs" Baer Says:

The Horrible Example

PROHIBITION seems to have defeated itself pretty much as prohibition lecturers talked themselves out of a job in 1920.

"Bugs" Baer

The cancerous corner saloon that ate its way into every neighborhood will never grow back. We all admit that alcohol is a terrible thing. Especially the next morning.

When it took the town guzzler off his rural free delivery route, it took away the horrible example.

The horrible example was a valuable vehicle both on the corner and on the platform.

Every temperance spieler we ever heard started by whipping his audience into a white froth with intricate words of warning and abjuration. He told of the terrors of the flowing bowl and of the fierce pangs of the sparkling gluepot.

We all believed him up to a certain point. And he consolidated his dusty argument when he hauled off that big index finger and jabbed frantically at exhibit A.

Exhibit A was the horrible example. His nose was redder than a tomato surprise. His eyes were blearier than blots of postoffice ink. He twitched and he twizzled under the glare of the footlights and we all shivered in hostile sympathy.

Even when he balanced himself against the corner he served his purpose. Mothers used him as a warning against the evils of bending the hospitable elbow. Workingmen skidded by him with industrial scorn.

We hooted him in summer and snowballed him in winter. All of us kids were determined that we would never grow up into horrible examples.

He swayed there as a perpetual beacon against toeing the brass rail and chinning the foaming glass. But now he has gone where the woodbine twineth and the grass is always green.

He is no longer on the street corner or on the lecture wharf. He has moved into better society.

He doesn't bum snifters by sweeping out the barroom floor or running errands for the barkeep. He wears a tuxedo and crashes all the best soirees.

The prohibitionists would succeed without a struggle if they appropriated a yearly budget to keep the horrible example horrible.

He was the warning light of traffic on the wide and gay path. He was a terrible turnip. But he was an institution and he had his uses.

WASHINGTON, WE ARE HERE

By Herbert Kaufman

SECRETARY STIMSON may as well pack up his COOKED GOOSE and sail home.

He'll NOT bring back a naval reduction treaty, but he WILL return bearing a far more precious gift—the administration's assurance that no international league, covenant or expediency can induce this government to place, in the hands of ANY foreign group, a BLANK CHECK on the wealth, the man-power and conscience of the United States.

Mr. Hoover may score a DEFEAT at London, but his unyielding stand against the French demand for a defensive alliance wins him a vote of confidence which OUT-REGISTERS the majority that swept him into the White House.

His failure to effect a polyandrous marriage between Uncle Sam, John Bull and Marianne will shortly retire him from the premiership.

LA BELLE FRANCE will not forgive a statesman who has put her in the compromising position of being snubbed for her recent matrimonial pains.

Ramsay MacDonald ALSO refuses to tie the fortunes of Great Britain to her APRON STRINGS. "Once bitten, twice shy."

There is no such phrase as AUID PRO QUO in the lexicon of French diplomacy.

France is obviously less interested in the attainment of world accord and the preservation of world peace, than her INDIVIDUAL opportunities. She exacts too large a share for her partnership investments.

History testifies that her gestures and finesses have been consistently objective.

It may be UNGRACIOUS to look a gift horse in the mouth, but even the assistance furnished our colonies in their struggle for liberty is subject to suspicion that it might not HAVE BEEN SO regardlessly proffered if she, too, were not THEN at loggerheads with a hereditary foe. Remember that she was confounding an enemy of her OWN when the swords of Rochambeau and Lafayette helped deliver a mortal blow to the mother country.

HER military and financial assistance at that hour of extremity turned the tide of our fortunes, but it simultaneously fed a fat and ancient grudge AS WELL.

That traditional obligation is now REPAID—and with compound interest.

The future is purged of all such debt. We have served honor, releasing tomorrow to serve AGAIN the wisdom of George Washington and keep us forever free from the foreign entaglements from which his prophetic vision warned us.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

TIMES SQUARE . . . 11:30 . . theater crowds boiling out . . no show like it on earth.

Color . . . color! Black sky, black street, color spurting, dripping, gushing like a cut artery, puddling all over the place . . . red, yellow, blue, green, purple and orange . . . whang!

People . . . people! People spilling out of doors . . . pouring into streets . . . piling up on crossings . . . milling, heaving, swaying, rushing in a black tide down Broadway. Faces on the tide. Men's faces. Hundreds, thousands of men's faces . . . ovals cut from yellow paper . . . tossing, drifting, expressionless as confetti, on the tide. Women's faces more pale ovals, framed in ermine, gashed with scarlet wounds, lip-stick wounds . . . floating beside them . . . flung like spray against the night.

Smells . . . smells! Twentieth century jungle. Gasoline, hot rubber, waffles, cigarets, monoxide, sticky sweet of gin, sweety sour of flesh . . . a million synthetic perfumes . . . not one honest stink—

New York . . . New York! Tom-tom . . . Tom-tom! Mad house. Hot house. Are these people—these pale faces—gashed with lip stick—bleached and baggy? Have they feelings—human feelings—hate and laughter, love and longing—these massed gobs of protoplasm?

You'd be surprised!

Over in Longacre, just above the Times, there's a news stand . . . home town papers. Papers from Denver and Chicago, Portland, 'Frisco, Houston, Savannah . . . big town, hick town, all the way stations . . . telling how The Folks are getting on at home. Telling how Si White has bought a new garage . . . telling how the Smith's have got a baby boy . . . how Mrs. Jones read a paper to The Club . . . how Bill Brown went hunting up Blue Lakes . . . how Ruth and Ed were married, in the church. Over in Longacre, you'll find the news from home—

And when the theater's over, that's where they come heading . . . all the red hot papas . . . all the wild time mammas . . . looking for a paper, to read the news from home! All the lights on Broadway, all the fuss and racket, the false front and hokum, laid aside—forgotten—while they sigh and giggle, over news from home.

Tired, homesick children . . . Reading news from home.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS.

Live Life Lightly

LIVE life lightly and forget
All the weight of living's debt;
Capture what you can of song,
Pass the best you have along;
Give your courage and your trust,
Certain always life is just.

Live life gladly; never sigh
For the joys that pass you by.
Fret not over being's bars,
You are brother to the stars.
Use this kinship, let life shine,
Like the stars, serene, benign.

Live life proudly; cast aside
Thoughts unworthy, deeds denied
To a soul whose aims are pure;
Keep your purpose ever sure.
Lightly, gladly, proudly live,
And you gain all life can give.

Jesus answered and said unto her, whosoever drinketh of this water shall thirst again: But whosoever drinketh of the water that I shall give him shall never thirst; but the water that I shall give him shall be in him a well of water springing up into everylasting life.—John iv.13, 14.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE

By H. G. WELLS
In Collaboration With
Prof. Julian Huxley and George P. Wells.

IN these and other ways new materials are today being accumulated in the form of sheets or layers of varying extent in innumerable regions of the globe and they must obviously have been accumulating in the same sort of way through all the ages since liquid water has existed on our planet.

H. G. Wells

These accumulations of slowly deposited layers are what we call sedimentary or stratified rocks as opposed to the igneous rocks, forced in among the layers of the crust in a molten state from below, or belched out over the surface by volcanoes, and the sheets themselves are technically called by the Latin word for layers—strata.

In these stratified rocks fossils are often found entombed—the animals and planets which were often strokingly different from any creatures alive today.

We need give but a couple of examples. If you happen to spend your holiday on the Dorset coast near Lyme Regis, and search the crumbling cliffs near by (or, indeed, if you explore any clay quarry, across from Dorset to Peterborough) you will be pretty sure to find some biconcave bone discs, the vertebrae of some large animal.

Persistent and lucky hunters have found whole skeletons containing such vertebrae. They are of giant reptiles, christened Ichthyosaurs, or "fish-lizards," wholly unlike anything existing today, obviously aquatic, for their limbs are converted into paddles.

It would not take much research to find other fossils, the spiral ammonites, often beautifully patterned. These, too, though their shells are to be found in millions embedded in various rocks, have never been discovered alive.

But we know that these shells were inhabited by creatures not unlike the pearly nautilus of today, and more distantly resembling the cuttlefish and octopus.

It would not take much reflection, one might think, to realize that in any such sedimentary deposit, whether thick or thin, the lower layers must have been laid down before those above them.

But such were our ancestors' prejudices and preconceptions, based for the most part upon the belief in the sudden creation of the world at a not very remote period, that it was not until the turn of the eighteenth century that this fundamental but elementary idea, was properly put forward, to come from thence-forward the basis of geology.

William Smith, an English surveyor, noted, as his work took him from one part of the country to another, that a number of characteristic rocks, such as chalk, oolite limestone, red sandstone, or gault clay, occurred as layers which covered large areas of country.

Moreover, wherever these layers occurred they were always in the same order. The gault clay, for instance, is always close below the chalk, the greensand always immediately below the gault, the oolite limestone many layers below the chalk, the red sandstone several layers below the oolite, and so forth.

And, a third point, each layer of rock is characterized not merely by the material of which it is made, but also by the fossils which it contains. This last was of vital importance; often two layers of clay or of sandstone may be nearly indistinguishable in their consistency and materials, but easily distinguished by their contained fossils.

For instance, the London clay, over which London is built, lies above the chalk layer. It contains fossil fruits of palms and conifers, some nautilus shells, numerous characteristic sea-snails and a few mammals.

No ammonites or ichthyosaurs have ever been discovered in it. The gault clay, on the other hand, from below the chalk, has no plant fruits, but does contain ammonites, often uncoiled in a peculiar way instead of regularly spiral: while the Oxford clay, a thick layer close above the oolite limestone, has huge numbers of ammonites, almost all built as regular spirals.

Such facts as these obviously mean that we ought to be able to arrange all the sedimentary rocks of the world in a series, according to their age; and, this once accomplished, all the fossils in the earth's crust will fall into their time-sequence too.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, March 15.—Women who play the market are better losers than men. They exercise better judgment and are less inclined to hysteria in a panic. This was strikingly illustrated in the Big Crash. Among thousands of women, stripped of fortunes, not one sought solace in suicide.

While men tore their hair, wrung their hands and vaulted over high up window sills, lady plungers displayed a stoic calm. They did not even indulge the feminine prerogative of swooning. New York has a half million women who make a business of marginal trading.

A dozen brokerage offices with a strictly feminine clientele are always crowded. The traders arrive at 9 o'clock and remain until closing. Instead of hopping about like hens on the proverbial hot stove, they sit placidly in their chairs with notebooks and pencils.

They are not inspired by that market vagary known as the "hunch" and are most careful of all in weighing financial facts. When the big upheaval desolated hundreds of board rooms, those patronized by women remained comfortably filled — waiting, watching and hoping for clearer skies.

Judged by the amount of capital, women also have proved more successful in their stock manipulations than men. They are not so greedy for huge profits as for the safe, quick turnover netting a modest return. Any number were realizing from $100 to $300 a week in this fashion before the debacle.

Ladies who pit their wits against Wall Street are not confined to a particular class. Every type is represented—the professional, the housewife, the stenographer, sales women, chorus girl and ladies of the half world. Indeed, there are many charwomen who "play the market."

A curb hawker near Grand Central averages $15 a day profits selling gilt keys labeled "Key to New York!" to the gar-mouth, flop eared country boys who pack them home and create the impression of being people of importance.

The most no-account joke of the season was played on a Twentieth Century passenger to Chicago two weeks ago. At Cleveland he received a mysterious unsigned telegram reading: "Leave train at once. Warrant out for you." The gentleman immediately stepped off the train without hat or overcoat and contracted a cold that sent him to the hospital, threatened with pneumonia.

A cat shop on Lexington avenue dyes cats various tints for $3. The dyes are non-poisonous and fade out in about 10 days. And there is a dog shop in the Fifties that specializes in giving long-haired dogs "permanents." It was just a month ago, too, in our crass optimism we predicted hope for the world.

In East Fifty-fourth street at intervals. I have noticed a man who tiptoes along with a small hand bellows apparently blowing things off buildings. Sometimes he will stand off and admire his handiwork for a few seconds and then move on. If he keeps it up he is going to wear down my resistance to the point of asking what it is all about, and I suppose he will turn to be another professional kidder with a smart crack answer.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

HOW often do you engage in conversation that is more than small talk?

To think is not in your line so you ramble along on lighter chaff and leave intellectual exchange to the old fogies.

You may have made chatter so much your habit that it would be difficult to command your mental forces, even under pressure.

The result is that you avoid those who have a tendency to talk about more substantial matters.

You also avoid the deeper kinds of reading which "takes too much out of you."

Consequently you have little knowledge of matters that should be familiar to you if you are to be rated a good conversationalist.

You have learned very little in the past five years and you have forgotten most of the things you learned in the past.

The worst of it is that you seem to be perfectly willing to slide along this easy course till you reach rock bottom of mediocre intelligence.

Aren't you going into second childhood much before senile age should claim you?

Who is to blame if you are not?
